

Police respond quickly, catch fleeing suspect

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

A Woburn man faces robbery and assault charges after some quick work by Winchester police this week. The department participated in the arrest of an armed robbery suspect Monday night only minutes after the report came in from Woburn police with the suspect's description. According to police reports, at 11:45 p.m. Woburn police contacted Winchester police and advised them the an armed robbery, along with larceny of a motor vehicle, had just occurred at Manns Court in Woburn. The vehicle was described as a Stoneham Taxi. The taxi driver, a Reading man, had reported to Woburn police that he picked up a passenger at Spring Court, Woburn, and drove him to Manns Court. At that time, the passenger, later identified as Jesus Rodrigues of 57 Webster St. in Woburn, pulled a pair of nylon hose over the driver's head, wrapped a wire around the driver's neck and demanded his money, police say. The driver managed to break away from the vehicle. Rodrigues then drove off with the cab, a 1978 Ford Granada taxi owned by the Bay Colony Transit Authority Inc.. After Woburn police got Rodrigues' description from the driver, they broadcast over the radio that a black man wearing one sneaker was at large with a stolen vehicle, according to police reports. Patrolman James Covino says he was driving east on Washington Street by Prince Avenue when he noticed a Stoneham taxi with a black driver. He stopped the taxi at (Please see POLICE, page 20)

Cleanup intricacies slow development

By SUE SHOR

The Board of Health will meet with state officials to plan a hazardous-waste cleanup at developer Angelo Marotta's Cross Street property. The site contains heavy metals, cyanide and odor-causing chemicals, according to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE). Board member Dorothea Sopper said the board does not have all the facts from DEQE about how the cleanup will be executed. Marotta plans to build a condominium complex called Winchester Woods on the 8-acre site, but development of the land is stalled until the DEQE, Marotta and the Board of Health can agree on cleanup procedures. Department of Health Director Joseph Tabbi says he has questions about what materials will be removed from the site, the schedule for the removal and exactly how it will be handled.

Both Tabbi and Sopper agree that there should be a monitor at the site during the cleanup. That, Sopper said, is in the best interests of the town. "Mr. Marotta assures us that this is the Cadillac of cleanups, and I don't doubt him," Sopper said. But she said the board wants to have a monitor at the site to assure the town that the cleanup plan is followed correctly. The board's main concern, she said, is the effect of the cleanup on the town. Monday night the board met with Marotta and his lawyer, Lawrence Murray, to discuss the cleanup process. Murray said asking Marotta to pay for a monitor was unreasonable. "They wanted somebody to supervise the supervisors," Murray said. "It seems to me to be unnecessary." Murray said there will be DEQE supervisors and engineers whose work will be certified by the DEQE at the site. "The site wasn't in any way injured by the developer," Murray said. "All he wants to do is get in there and (Please see COMPLEXITIES, page 20)

State bill may raise insurance tab Universal health care doesn't come cheap

By PETER MAUST
Special to the Star

Governor Dukakis' universal health care insurance bill could have dramatic financial impact on both Winchester Hospital and the town budget. The hospital opposes the bill's two percent cap on yearly cost increases, while Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer says the measure could increase town insurance costs by $600,000. But an administration representative says the state will find the funds to offset an additional town costs. The governor called for passage of the bill, which seeks to provide health insurance coverage for all Massachusetts residents, by October

1. Senator Richard Kraus expressed confidence that "some bill will go through," though not necessarily before the Dukakis deadline. Two provisions of the bill, H.6000, may be especially important to Winchester residents. One provision seeks to limit the yearly increase of hospital costs to two percent per year after inflation. According to controller William O'Neill, Winchester Hospital opposes this limit, because the plan "provides no relief for low-cost hospitals" and is "tied to existing bases of payment, bases which have been patently unfair." The bill would also require employers in Massachusetts to pay for 80 percent of the health insurance coverage they provide for their employees. W. Chadwick Maurer,

Town Manager, says that Winchester currently pays 50 percent of the health insurance costs for municipal employees. The bill could add $600,000 to town insurance costs. Maurer adds that Dukakis has said the state will be responsible for paying any new insurance costs municipalities incur as a result of the bill. Karen Smith, Assistant Director of Health Policy at the Massachusetts Executive Office of Human Services, backs the governor's contention, saying that the state, under Proposition 2½, will cover new costs mandated by the bill. But she isn't sure where the state money will come from to cover the additional costs. The matter is "under investigation," she adds. It is possible that the $600,000 figure does not accurately reflect the true increase. Smith points out that H.6000 would mandate the town pay 80 percent of a "basic insurance coverage" as defined by the state. The basic coverage may be less expensive per employee, and the overall increase would therefore be smaller. O'Neill charges that the bill favors hospitals which have higher estimated costs than Winchester. He says they will be able to charge more, while lower-cost hospitals like Winchester struggle under the two percent spending cap. There are, according to O'Neill, hospital expenses which will tend to exceed the limit. For example, the current shortage of nurses has driven up nursing care costs in Winchester. Selectmen seek advice on Loop zoning changes

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Selectmen want Planning Board advice on whether Fall Town Meeting should entertain two zoning proposals designed to ease development of the Woburn Loop land. The first would change the required width of a parking space from 9 feet to 8½ feet. Town-owned parking is a mix of 8½-foot and compact spaces. Selectmen Robert Deering explained during last Monday's board meeting. The second proposal would reduce the minimum frontage for a cul-de-sac to 200 feet. Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said the Woburn Loop Subcommittee suggested the changes to reduce the number of variances the Loop developers will have to request on the land, near Hill Street. The two articles would help Russell Hill, whose condominium development will be three to five parking spaces less than original plans called for, and Charles Ferrari, whose development lacks the required frontage without the change. The developers would still have to ask the Zoning Board of Appeals for other bylaw variances, Maurer said. Deering said that the banks that will finance the developers are less likely to lend them money if there are too many obstacles, such as a lot of variances.

"I might be receptive," Lombardi said, "if it were an exception, but to change the entire zoning bylaw for three developers opens the door for all others." "The only reason," Lombardi continued, "is so somebody can make a little extra money." "Is there a reason these particular people don't want to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals?" Lombardi asked. "Why won't they go before three men in this town who we say are honest, trustworthy and fair? I get very suspicious." Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia agreed with Lombardi's concern that the tail may be wagging the dog, but said, "I hesitate not to let it on the (Please see CHANGES, page 20)

Muggia: Board of Selectmen accomplished most of its goals

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia says she is pleased with the progress the board has made on its stated agenda. "Out of the goals we've set for ourselves," Muggia told the board during her quarterly report Monday, "we've made 90-percent progress on implementing them."

Number one on the list was the disposition of the north section of the Woburn Loop. Fall Town Meeting will vote on the sale and rezoning of the Loop north of Hill Street.

Another area targeted by the selectmen was affordable housing. The board is sponsoring two articles that will appear on the fall Town Meeting warrant dealing with housing. One calls for the creation of a Housing Partnership and one for the creation of a community development director, whose main responsibility would be affordable housing.

The community development director will also be a resource to help the town's elected boards set long-range planning policies. That, Muggia said, was another of the selectmen's goals. They targeted four areas within that category: land use, water use, park and playground policy and closer management of the level of services supported by each town department.

The land-use problem is addressed by a Wetlands Protection Act sponsored by the Conservation Commission, which will also be on the town meeting warrant.

The selectmen have taken the first step in the process of establishing a permanent water system hook-up with the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority. At its Sept. 21 meeting, the board agreed to open discussions with the MWRA through a letter to MWRA Commissioner Paul Levy.

The park and playground policy was voted in at the beginning of the calendar year and has already come into play during discussions on the best location for the Society of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary's fiesta and other town activities.

Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer will work with town departments to define the level of services each one provides and lay out the budget with department heads.

To help improve communication between boards and town departments, the selectmen asked Maurer to write a report outlining his ideas on that and other management issues. Maurer presented the report in June, at which time the board voted to support his recommendations.

Maurer has instituted rap sessions in which no decisions are made and no voted taken, but board members and anyone else who wishes to attend can discuss issues facing the town. The meetings are held on the morning of the third Thursday of each month. The meeting is posted at Town Hall.

Muggia also talked about progress the board has made toward a decision on whether to accept the services of the Advanced Life Support system consortium, another of the board's goals. She said ALS had provided almost all the information for which they have been asked. The selectmen will hear final reports on the issue within the next few weeks, Muggia said.

ALS will not be set up to accommodate Winchester until the first of the year, Muggia said, so the town has not lost any time if the board should vote to accept the service.

Muggia mentioned the Special Town Meeting during which the town voted extra bonding to complete the Town Hall project. She said she has seen progress inside the building and is happy with the way the rebuilding and restoring is being handled by the Town Hall Building Committee.

Last, Muggia discussed her interest in the bylaw-infracture law. Fall Town Meeting will also vote on a selectmen-sponsored article to amend the town bylaws. The amendment would allow the town to fine persons for certain non-criminal violations of town bylaws and codes.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, September 27

At 8:36 a.m. police arrived at the scene of an accident on Highland Avenue.

A Mystic Valley Parkway woman in a 1985 AMC wagon was driving up a steep hill on Highland Avenue. According to police the rising sun was shining directly into her eyes.

When a Highland Avenue man in a 1984 Honda Sedan pulled out of his driveway, the two cars collided. The Honda sustained right rear and rear bumper damage, police reports said.

Police responded to a property damage call to find that a town fire hydrant on Main Street had been hit by a vehicle.

A Charleston, V.W., man driving into the Exxon station to ask for directions, according to police.

Police notified the Department of Public Works.

Saturday, September 26

At 8:44 p.m. police responded to an accident call at the intersection on George Road and Cross Street.

A Surrey Road girl driving an AMC three-door did not stop for a stop sign at the intersection, according to a witness and the girl's passenger, police reported. Her car collided with a 1986 Buick Sedan travelling west on Cross Street, according to police.

The driver of the Buick, a Main Street man, and his passenger, a Stoughton woman, were taken to Winchester Hospital, where they were treated and released. According to police reports, the vehicle was totaled.

The Surrey Road girl was issued a citation for failure to stop at a stop sign. Her car sustained front end damage, according to police.

Teachers work to improve students' reading ability

By ELAINE KANE
Special to the Star

"Reading is a basic life skill. It is a cornerstone for a child's success in school and, indeed, throughout life. Without the ability to read well, opportunities for personal fulfillment and job success inevitably will be lost."

So begins the well-published report of the Commission on Reading, "Becoming a Nation of Readers." The recognition of the crucial role of reading in our lives and the importance of teaching reading to our students is reflected in the ongoing efforts being made in the Winchester schools.

Over the last two years, in response to the assessment results of the students' reading ability, Director of Reading Frances Russell has laid the groundwork for implementing the findings of current research in the field of reading.

Russell's goal is to "integrate reading and instruction of all subjects at all grade levels." She has made the teaching of reading comprehension a system-wide goal in the language arts department. Since reading researchers say that students also benefit from understanding how they learn and which learning style is best for them, this goal melds with the system-wide focus on "active learning."

One of the first projects Russell initiated when she became director of reading for the entire school system was the development of a grade K through 6 scope and sequence chart and reading instructional models for the classroom. Through the cooperative efforts of elementary teachers, these materials have already been put into use and implemented throughout the system.

Elementary teachers also took part in two inservice courses focusing on the writing and reading processes. A number of teachers also opted to do independent study work during this past summer to create appropriate lessons and materials. Pupils in the elementary schools have benefited from the sharing of ideas and materials among this group of professionals.

After attending Russell's two inservice courses, junior and senior high teachers have also worked toward developing the writing and reading processes with their students. Members of the English department have tailored departmental reading goals to students' needs in the various courses.

Halfway through last year, teachers met to discuss and share successful reading techniques they had been experimenting with in the classroom. The English department's continued work toward the same goal this year could yield more finely honed lesson plans.

Additionally, in the junior and senior high schools last year's Reading-and-Writing-Across-the-Curriculum grant work is continuing. While the actual grant monies have been depleted, the Winchester School Department has partially funded a continuation of the grant.

Barbara Nixon at McCall continues in her capacity of coordinator at that school. Sue Austin, following Wilbur Johnson's lead, has taken on the role of coordinator at the high school. Both coordinators will be working with a committee of teachers to improve the quality of reading instruction in every classroom.

A highlight of last year and an inspiration to rethink teaching approaches was the well-attended inservice course on reading comprehension organized by Russell.

As noted in the recommendations of the Commission on Reading, "America will become a nation of readers when verified practices of the best teachers in the best schools can be introduced throughout the country."

Advanced researchers in the field of reading came to Winchester to share their findings on methods of developing better readers with teachers and administrators.

Dolores Durkin of the University of Illinois, considered the leader in the field, provided an introductory framework for the course. Each of the speakers who followed elaborated on Durkin's comprehensive remarks.

These speakers included, Betty Murray of the Lexington Public Schools, Bonnie Armbruster, whose specialty is reading in the content areas, Thomas Devine, an expert on reading comprehension and listening skills, Jeanne Paratore from the Center for Assessment and Design of Learning at Boston University, and Sandra Stotsky of Harvard, who discussed the reading/writing connection.

When asked how she procured such an array of impressive speakers, Russell expressed amazement. "Frankly, I'm not sure how I managed to get them. When people hear that I got Durkin, who does not often come out to speak in local meetings, their mouths drop!"

The Winchester teacher's support of these programs indicates their recognition of the role of reading as a basic life skill. The report of the commission recognizes that "becoming a skilled teacher is a journey that involves many steps."

Winchester teachers and administrators know this and are taking many steps to help students improve their reading.

Town Meeting to face choice on hiring of housing director

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Town Meeting will have trouble spelling out duties for a community development director if this week's public hearing on the proposed position is any indicator.

Selectmen hosted the hearing Monday.

Although the selectmen and residents who spoke at a Monday hearing support the creation of some kind of housing coordinator, they do not agree on whether to hire a consultant or a full-time employee.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt said he supports a full-time staffer whose primary focus would be housing. The director could also be used as a resource for long-range planning by elected boards and committees.

Schmitt said that, if voted in by town meeting, the position will still need state funding to cover the director's salary.

Former Selectman Wade Welch said he supports the article in the "broadest institutional sense," but has some reservations about the specific ideas Schmitt mentioned.

Welch said the town needs someone to manage Winchester's affordable-housing efforts because many programs are difficult to understand and difficult to manage. He likened the situation to downtown revitalization. "Nothing ever happened until we got John Connery to be the lightning rod," Welch said.

Town Meeting member Sally Kincaid also used Connery as an example, but as an example to rebut the need for a permanent position. "The experience we had with Mr. Connery has proved that an independent consultant can surely fill the need we have for coordination."

She said a full-time director's responsibilities would overlap with those of existing town departments and boards. "I agree we need a housing coordinator," Kincaid said. "I do not support at this moment making it a town paid-for position and department."

David Mortensen, chairman of the Low and Moderate Income Housing Study Committee, spoke in favor of the position. He said the main problem the town has come up against is communication. He said the position would be state funded and that, "If the town is unwilling to pay the small difference (between state funding and the cost of the position), mostly fringe benefits, the town is shooting itself in the foot."

Selectman Francis Sopper repeated his position that the town does have a moral obligation to provide affordable housing, but said he does not believe a community development director is the best way to handle Winchester's housing problem.

"Do not set up this bureaucracy," Sopper said. "I promise you, you'll be sorry."

Robert Frank, a member of the Low and Moderate Income Housing Study Committee, said the issue is not whether to create a position, but whether to make that position temporary or permanent.

Sopper suggested throwing out the current warrant article and getting a temporary housing director. "What's the rush; what's the big rush," he said. "Let's take our time and do it right."

Sopper's comment prompted Town Meeting member Mary Prosky, a life-long Winchester resident who was watching the meeting at home, to join the meeting. "I am embarrassed for the Town of Winchester, because we haven't moved adequately," she said. "Too much time has gone by and nothing has happened."

Planning Board member Daniel

Chane said he supports the creation of the position, but he does not support a broad range of responsibilities for the director.

Town Meeting member Charles Tseckares also spoke in favor of the position. He said that if the town decided to hire a consultant, it should give the consultant a contract of at least five years as an incentive to the most qualified people.

Tseckares served on the Planning Board for five years. "One thing that always bothered me was that you never had time to think," he said. "You're putting out fires on a weekly basis. Sometimes you get so frustrated, you wonder what is the long-term plan for the board."

CSA sponsors Manchester Field concert

The Winchester Community School Association Enrichment Committee is sponsoring John McCutcheon in concert at Manchester Field.

The committee is comprised of the enrichment chairmen from all of Winchester's schools. The group's objective is to provide all school students with opportunities to enjoy, to experience and to become involved creatively in quality performing arts and to learn about the creative process.

Other objectives include working with teachers and administrators to plan programs that complement curriculum goals, to utilize enrichment funds more effectively by block-booking programs at reduced rates and to maintain eligibility for state and local arts grants.

During the year CSA enrichment will sponsor several events including the fall fundraiser this Sunday. The funds will pay, in part, for the visits of the Concert Dance Company of Boston which will perform "All Feet Can Dance" for elementary and junior high students in October and November.

The fundraiser, to take place on Manchester Field Sunday, October 4 at 2 p.m., features Appalachian traditional music and dance performed by McCutcheon. Admission is $5. For ticket information, call 938-8497 or 729-1537.

If it rains, the concert will be held at the McCall Junior High School auditorium.

Among the committee's other projects are the organization of the Colonial Day experience for elementary school students, which is scheduled for February.

Epiphany to hold rummage sale

A rummage sale will take place at the Parish of the Epiphany Oct. 7 at 6:30 p.m. and continue until 9 p.m.

It will reopen on Oct. 8 at 9 a.m. and continue until 1 p.m.

There will be a large selection of good used items at low cost. Admission is free.

David Maloney and Ginny Reilly will perform at the First Congregational Church Saturday, Oct. 15 at 8 p.m.

Vocal duo to perform at church

Ginny Reilly and David Maloney are coming to town. The vocal harmonies of this red-headed duo from the Northwest will be heard at the First Congregational Church Saturday, Oct. 10 at 8 p.m.

Reilly and Maloney have been performing for audiences for 17 years. They accompany themselves on acoustic guitars. Their repertoire includes original songs, contemporary ballads, folk, blues, country and Broadway show tunes.

The theme of their music focuses on the human experience of love, loss, childrearing and just getting by.

Tickets are available at Henderson Stationers, 605 Main St. For information contact K. Lauterwasser, 729-9087.

Connery to speak at Chamber breakfast

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce will host a breakfast at Maximilian's Cafe Oct. 8 at 7:45 a.m.

John Connery, a project manager for a number of growth management and downtown revitalization plans, will speak. He previously worked for the town of Winchester as economic development co-ordinator.

Connery will discuss business opportunities for Winchester and Boston suburbs in the 1990's.

The breakfast costs $5 for members and $6 for non-members. Reservations are due by October 5.

The Chamber of Commerce has monthly get-togethers for its membership and welcomes anyone from the business community to attend the functions.

Scholarship Foundation holds annual meeting

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation will hold its annual meeting Thursday, Oct. 8, in the Winchester Public Library Meeting Room at 7:30 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Spaces open for St. Mary's crafts fair

An "Olde Yankee Craft Faire" is scheduled on Saturday, Nov. 7, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at St. Mary's School Hall.

Space is still available for any craftspeople interested in participating.

Call Maryanne Nurnberger at 729-4429 or Janice Baker at 721-1386 for information.

Winchester's SAT scores drop slightly as Mass. average rises

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Special to the Star

Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) scores for Massachusetts college-bound seniors overall remain unchanged this year, according to a report released last month by the Department of Education, but in the face of these statistics, Winchester scores have dropped slightly.

While statewide math scores increased one point to an average of 474, the highest average score since 1974, verbal scores decreased by the same amount to an average of 435, which still represents the second highest score since that time.

According to Winchester High School Principal Vincent Larocco, verbal scores for Winchester students declined six points this year to an average of 476. Math scores are down seven points from last year to an average of 514. Overall, however, the scores are significantly above the state average.

The SATs are part of the admissions testing program administered by the College Board. The program also includes achievement tests and a test of standard written English as well as a student descriptive questionnaire.

Participation in the College Board's testing program by Massachusetts students continues to be considerably greater than the national average, according to the report, with 68 percent of Massachusetts 1987 high school graduates taking the SAT compared to a nationwide average of 40 percent. Larocco noted that 92 percent of the Winchester High School class of 1987 took the SAT exam.

According to the Department of Education report, as a result of higher levels of participation, lower average scores would be expected in comparison with other states.

However, the report indicates that Massachusetts average verbal scores have been above the national level since 1982, while math scores have dropped no more than five points below the national level since that time. (1987 national averages are 476 for math, 430 for verbal, according to the report.)

Larocco says there is no need for concern with regard to the slight decline in Winchester scores.

"There is nothing to indicate a trend," said Larocco. "If we could see a trend, we would want to seriously consider it."

While the verbal and math scores are down somewhat, Larocco noted that scores on the majority of achievement tests improved by a few points this year. He added that in a case where scores dropped considerably on a particular achievement exam, a teacher had been ill much of the year.

"I have every reason to believe the SAT scores will be up again next year," said Larocco.

In comparison to last year, Larocco stated that this year's senior class has a larger number of students who have been commended or named semifinalists for national merit.

"If you look at national merit and PSATs (Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Tests), there were six semifinalists and 14 students commended in the class of 1987. This year we have three semifinalists and 26 commended," said Larocco.

"On the basis of these figures, we can speculate that the scores will go up."

In addition, Larocco pointed out that there is a standard error on the test of approximately 15 to 20 points. He says that a drop of six or seven points is not significant enough to cause alarm when taking this standard error into account.

Larocco says that overall, the achievement tests are a better measure of a student's abilities.

"I've always had some difficulty with the SATs," he noted. "It places a lot of emphasis on whether a student has potential. The achievement test says that the potential is real."

There are other factors that may affect a student's performance on the exam as well, says Larocco. Self-confidence, parental problems, and personal problems, as well as what a student did the night before the exam are just some of the factors that Larocco says affect a student's score.

However, he added that "usually taking the exam more than once will discount the problem unless it is a long-term problem."

Larocco feels that scores will naturally vary for each class. "It's not a straight line. We have been steadily up, and now we're slightly down," he said. "But we're still high compared to the national level."

Playground almost done

The Playground at Ginn field is very nearly complete, thanks to efforts of more than 300 volunteers.

Last Saturday and Sunday, workers put the equipment in place. Two Saturdays ago, the project was rained out and work was delayed a week. But that didn't stop the enthusiasm and determination of Winchester's parents.

As one of the finishing touches, the DPW put the ground cover, pea stone, in this week.

A few little things remain to be done. Two picnic tables have yet to go in, and there is still some landscaping to do.

The town-wide project took nearly a year from the first planning stages until its completion.

The ribbon-cutting ceremony will be Saturday, Oct. 31, at 12:30 p.m. The junior high school band will entertain and refreshments will be served.

The whole town is invited to attend. Many local luminaries are expected.

Tim Miller examines wet materials at the Playground at Ginn Field. The construction project was halted halfway through that rainy Saturday.

Democratic Town Committee seeks new members

Nomination papers for those interested in election to the Winchester Democratic Town Committee are now available at the town clerk's office, according to Committee Chairperson William H. Wells.

The papers, which must be returned to the town clerk's office before Nov. 7, may also be obtained from the secretary of state's office in the State House or the Democratic State Committee at 11 Beacon St.

To be eligible, an aspirant must be a registered voter enrolled for at least 90 days in the Democratic Party and not a member of any other party since Nov. 7, 1986. Thirty-five members are to be elected at the Presidential Primary on March 8, 1988.

Speaking for the committee, Wells said its goal is to bring additional and younger party members into party activities and it encourages them to consider committee membership. He said that between elections Democrats can be added to the committee as associate members eligible for election to full membership by the committee when vacancies occur.

Youth Center announces new fall programs

In response to strong student interest, Adolescent Youth Coordinator Darcy Fitzgerald has added new dimensions to the Youth Center's College Preparation Program.

The fall College Campus Tour Program has been expanded to include more representation from state colleges and universities as well as from institutions of the creative arts.

The fall schedule has been set as follows: Boston College, Thursday, Oct. 8 (release day); University of Massachusetts at Amherst, Saturday, Oct. 10; Tufts University, Wednesday, Oct. 21; Rhode Island School of Design, Saturday, Oct. 24; Saint Anselm College, Thursday, Nov. 5 (release day); University of New Hampshire, Saturday, Nov. 7; Salem State College, Thursday, Dec. 3 (release day).

Each trip includes transportation, a campus tour and an information session with an admissions representative.

The College Interviewing Workshop, open to grades 9-12, will be a hands-on learning experience to familiarize students with the structure and content of on and off campus interviews. The workshop runs for two consecutive Tuesday evenings, Oct. 13 and 20, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Youth Center.

The Youth Center has also introduced a nine-week student internship in art and advertising. The chosen student will work on publicity, including computer graphics, local cable television and other assorted media. Participants will also be responsible for the seasonal Youth Center Art Exhibit and will be the design editor of the Youth Center Newsletter. After successfully completing the internship the student will receive a letter of recommendation for their college file, credit for volunteer work and an academic scholarship. The final deadline for application is Monday, Oct. 5.

For information on any Youth Center Programs call Darcy Fitzgerald, adolescent youth coordinator, at 721-7129(5). The Youth Center and Recreation Department are located at 458 Main St., in the McCall School building.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Just when you were getting comfortable

The rich they are not like you and me. They're rich. In a day when attribution is becoming more and more important, that paraphrase comes from F. Scott Fitzgerald, who was himself not particularly rich, but hung around with people who were.

The rich have recently been redefined by two national magazines. Both have published summaries in their October issues of their best guess as to who has at least a billion dollars. Depending on whom you believe, there are somewhere between 101 and 145 billionaires in the world.

The magazines have reason to be a bit embarrassed, as their figures conflict in several places, but the exigencies of the marketplace have dictated that one business journal cannot publish something of such great interest without the other coming up with a suitable response. So we have two versions to compare.

They differ in various particulars. One claims the richest man in the world is Yoshiaki Tsutsumi, clocked in at about $30 billion. The other has him measured at a mere $2.5 billion. One lists Sultan Hassanah Bolkiah of Brunei as the richest man in the world. The other neglects to mention him at all. These two magazines fall all over one another making fools out of themselves for some reason, but what are they really trying to do, other than steal each other's markets?

They are sowing the seeds of discontent among the too complacent populace, that's what.

These two respected publications have reset the game. Just when plebians like the people next door toted up their valuables and were about to conclude that, as millionaires, they could relax a little, someone spoiled the fun. Yes, it's true. Inflation has finally caught up with the millionaire.

Once objects of awe and reverence, millionaires are a dime a dozen now. Why, any yokel from Iowa with 2,000 unmortgaged acres is a millionaire these days. So is anyone who owns a paid-off house in Manhattan or certain parts of California. Winchester surely boasts a couple of good-sized handfuls of millionaires.

The dream of the honest worker has become a derisory achievement. Now we all must strain our necks and squint upwards at the radiance of the truly wealthy. Megabucks is no longer enough. Only gigabucks will do.

We all have to keep our noses to the grindstone in the off chance that we, too, will rise to the ranks of the likes of Queen Elizabeth II and Rupert Murdoch. And that, also, is in the interest of this relative handful of people who employ half the world and control more wealth collectively than there are dollars in circulation.

Being a billionaire is not without its pitfalls. It takes a certain amount of high rolling to get that much money in the first place. And, at those stakes, it's well within the realm of the possible to lose it all and then some.

The Hunt brothers used to be on the list of the privileged. Then they tried to corner the silver market and got into trouble with a few margin calls from their broker. Now they are theoretically in debt by about a billion and a half. They're fighting it in court, but the outcome is far from certain. Not many of us have to wake up in the morning looking around for fifteen hundred million dollars. But easy come, easy go.

What is it like being a billionaire? When the Jag breaks, they might say, "Get that thing out of here and get me one that works."

The Sultan of Brunei was reputed to have said, when asked by an engineer what size airport he wanted, "How big do they come?" Now he has the longest runway in Asia: 2½ miles long.

But not all billionaires squander their money. Queen Elizabeth reportedly runs around Buckingham palace turning off lights to save money. Some of the American billionaires would be embarrassed to do anything other than drive around in their El Dorados and work.

Most of these people don't live appreciably better than your average millionaire, the magazines say. The largest proportion of them work long hours. Of course, there are some playboys, inheritors of great fortunes, but most arrived in the last generation by hard work and they just keep right on working. Or so the magazines would have us believe.

Bill Gates, the youngest self-made billionaire, founded the computer software company Microsoft. He supposedly works until 4:30 a.m. half the time. Hard to enjoy the money when all your waking hours are spent earning it.

The Rockefellers, who we always knew were rich, have recently sunk down to 58th on the list. John D.'s offspring have gotten multitudinous and soft.

In fact, the theme of making, not spending, is what sets the gigarich off from the rest. Many of the Asian billionaires lead rather austere lives as they concentrate entirely on amassing wealth.

No, the picture one gets from the great oom-pah-pah over all this money is a pretty grim one. Rather than granting a life of ease, a 10-figure balance in the bank keeps its owner laboring long. Those little conveniences, jets, car phones, multiple staffs and houses, all serve to make the working machine more efficient.

They set the example for the rest of us. How can we loosen up when they keep up such a relentless pace?

But inflation is eating into even the billionaires' wealth. Remember former Sen. Everett Dirksen from Illinois who, when on the Senate Budget Committee, said, "A billion here, a billion there. Pretty soon you're talking about real money."

WTA president thanks tennis tourney sponsor

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of the Winchester Tennis Association, I would like to thank the Cambridgeport Savings Bank for sponsoring the Junior Tennis Tournament.

This was probably the most successful junior tournament held in recent years thanks to the hard work of Chris Anderson, Jim Keegan and others from the bank. It was a real pleasure to be involved with them and to see the enthusiasm that they generated on the part of the kids.

Winchester has always been proud of the many fine tennis players developed here, and the sponsorship of the bank should help to maintain that tradition.

A note of thanks is also due to Marty Fuller for the job she did in organizing the tournament.

GUEST COLUMN

Needed health care legislation must not be rushed into law

By Rep. Sherman W. Saltmarsh
Special to the Star

Several weeks ago the governor filed legislation to provide health insurance coverage to every citizen and revise the health care delivery system.

The legislature was given a comprehensive, technical, 72 page bill, and asked to render a decision by Sept. 30, the date on which the latest hospital cost containment legislation, Chapter 574, expired. Overall, the financial impact of this measure will be in the hundreds of millions of dollars; and asking the legislature to pass such a complex measure in so short a time is not fair to the people we have been elected to represent.

I suggested, as an alternative to forced deadlines and premature passage of a possibly-unworkable piece of legislation, that the legislature extend the Sept. 30 expiration date for 60 or 90 days in order to thoroughly review the governor's universal health care proposal as well as the hospital cost containment proposal currently pending in House Ways and Means.

The governor's proposal is a major policy change for the Commonwealth. One aspect which concerns me is the requirement that all employers pay 80 percent of their employees health care cost, and the impact this could have on cities and towns across the state.

Winchester, for example, now pays 50 percent of its employees health coverage. A 30 percent increase would be substantial and could cost the town an additional $600,000 annually. I consider this a "mandated" cost on the community, and one which must be reimbursed by the state, in compliance with the provisions of Prop. 2½. However, the state coffers are not a bottomless pit, and increased aid to communities in one area almost always shows as a shortfall in another.

Mandated health insurance coverage for all will have a major impact on business in the state. Forcing private employers to provide health insurance is prohibited under the federal Employee Retirement Security Act (ERISA).

Massachusetts would have to request a waiver; and if this waiver is not granted, all employers would then be surcharged 12 percent of each employee's pay, up to $14,000, to finance the state's purchase of health insurance coverage for uninsured employees. A credit would be given to employers who offer their own plans, but if the credit does not equal the tax, the employer would have to pay the difference to the state.

Initial reviews of this legislation pinpoint many other taxes: an additional .013 percent on the first $14,000 per employee for the unemployed insurance coverage, a 2.28 percent tax on health insurance premiums, a 2.28 percent on PPO gross revenues, and a 2.28 percent tax on HMO premiums.

To oversee the implementation of the governor's bill, a Massachusetts Health Partnership would be created, with wide-ranging powers. A commissioner would be appointed by the Secretary of Human Services and given authority to create as many divisions and hire/fire as many employees as he feels necessary.

Included in the authority of the Health Partnership is the power to create, operate and take ownership of health care facilities, investigate and revoke licenses of providers, insurers, HMOs and PPOs, set hospital fees and rates, review and regulate hospital billing and establish a benefit plan for the uninsured.

One provision of the bill which especially bothers me is the "necessary and convenient" section allowing the partnership to do anything else that "may not be specifically authorized." Having been in the House for 12 years, that type of wording sends up a red flag!

The cost of containment provisions for hospitals includes a cap of 2 percent over the national health care cost inflation index, a reduction in the bad debt/free care payments from the current 100 percent of hospital charges to 70 percent, and a 2 percent cap on increases for new programs and development. Technical details of the hospital financing statute are being analyzed in House Ways and Means.

I have spoken personally with many hospital administrators and health care professionals who are deeply concerned about the ramifications of too-rigid a cost containment measure.

Massachusetts enjoys the reputation for having some of the best hospitals in the world. My concern is that, in the interest of keeping costs down, we not tie the hands of the health care industry and make it impossible for hospitals to provide the quality of care that everyone expects and deserves.

As I mentioned before, the governor's proposal is a major policy change for the state of Massachusetts. The latest cost-containment law expired on Sept. 30, and must be extended or replaced by a new law. There is not, however, a need to create a Massachusetts Health Partnership by the 30th or to couple it with cost containment.

The more I analyze the impact of this proposal, the stronger I feel that it would be in everyone's best interest not to rush the passage of such an all-encompassing law.

Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh represents the 34th Middlesex District in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

MAN IN THE STREET

Do you think Winchester is more prejudiced or racist than other towns?

Georgia Venuti

"No, I don't think so. I have friends in the community who are of different colors. I take people as they are."

Eamon Ward

"I don't think so. I don't think it's more so than any other town would be."

John Looney

"Yes, otherwise it wouldn't be 95 percent white. It's always been like that. I've lived here all my life and I've tried to teach my kids not to be prejudiced, but it's hard with the school system and so few blacks in the area."

Tina MacArthur

"I think it is, slightly. It's not anything very overt, it's very subtle. It's more from pieces of conversation that you hear than from any overt acts."

FLASHBACKS

A look at Winchester news this week...

5 years ago: Oct. 1, 1982

Five truckloads of chemically contaminated fill remain at 81 Surrey Rd., but there is no place to put it. Half of the gray fill was carted out of town on Tuesday this week and health officials were confident the Oct. 18 deadline would be met. But Wednesday morning the fill removal is halted when Weston town officials tell the truck contractor they would not accept anymore fill into their sanctuary landfill area.

The Board of Health works out its final draft of a proposal to restrict the use of sandblasting techniques to remove lead paint from buildings. The regulations require anyone who plans to strip paint from the interior or exterior of his home or business to obtain a permit from the board and to test the paint for lead content. Lead poisoning has been blamed for a variety of physical and psychological ailments, such as anemia, low attention span in children, and low IQ scores.

Three last-minute changes in the $23 million expansion of Winchester Hospital are approved this week by the Zoning Board of Appeal. The board's decision came less than one week after hospital president Jack Hunter requested the modification to the original plan submitted on Sept. 15. The approval changes are planned to allow the hospital to build closer to two streets which neighborhood residents felt were becoming cramped by the hospital expansion.

Fire arms are stolen two days in a row from a house broken into on Chester Street. The owner of the house discovered two revolvers and $100 in 10 dollar bills missing. The following day a shotgun and a 22-rifle were stolen. The thief entered through a cellar window on both occasions.

The first water crisis in Winchester's history concludes, leaving anger and confusion in its wake as local citizens try to sort out rumors and the facts and determine exactly what happened. The State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering orders residents on the east side of town to boil their water for 20 minutes as a result of tests showing high levels of coliform bacteria in the system.

The Board of Selectmen approves a 20-article warrant for the fall town meeting which includes the first step on the road to allowing the serving of liquor in a local restaurant. The licenses would allow restaurants with a dining room seating no less than 75 persons and a function room seating no less than 25 persons to serve liquor as they see fit.

A new site for leaf disposal for the current season on Wildwood Cemetery property is announced by the Cemetery Commissioners. The object is to provide for another future leaf stock pile. Disposal is planned to be limited in the new area to town trucks and trucks of professional gardeners, and to be supervised and controlled by the Highway Department at all times.

Adventures in Music, a non-profit organization whose goal is to provide quality music for children, schedules two family concerts under the direction of Newton Wayland, pianist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra and WGBH artist in residence. The emphasis in the first concert is on the composers writing music for dance. In the second concert, music will be derived from various Flemish paintings.

A new dog leash law is planned to go into effect on Oct. 20, as passed by the voters in a special election held in early June. A $10 fine limitation is imposed, although fines of up to $50 for violation are permissible. The town also plans to operate under a dog control law, as Chief of Police Edward F. Bowler serves as temporary dog officer. The law will require that dogs be on a chain or leash when on public streets, ways, sidewalks, school yards or grounds or parks.

The 1962-63 season of the Winchester College Club opens with an outstanding event when the president of Smith College speaks at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Auditorium. The College Club exists to promote educational and cultural interests in an atmosphere of friendly sociability. Membership is open to all women who have completed two years at a four-year college accredited by the American Association of University Women.

Dr. Alfred L. Frechette, Massachusetts Commissioner of Public Health, requests the help of Bay State merchants, parents and teachers in a campaign to stamp out a teenage glue-sniffing fad. Medical authorities in other sections of the country have examined boys who sniffed glue and publicly expressed fears that they may have suffered serious physical effects.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Resident mourns loss of craft shop

TO THE EDITOR:

Personally, I feel strongly about adding another antique shop to the center of town. Do we really need it, or do we need a craft shop? Most antique shops are in the business of selling.

The one and only craft shop we had in Winchester is no longer downtown. This situation has presented a problem for a lot of customers who not only bought craft supplies, but attended many craft classes to learn of talents you never knew you possessed. And the new talents you could acquire by attending. The craft shop catered to people of all ages, the retired senior right down to the little pre-schooler. "Beehive of Knots" had something for everyone. We miss it!

Attending classes there provided a wonderful form of recreation where you could meet interesting and pleasant people who shared in a common interest of making handmade decorations or gifts for all occasions. This type of creativity is also a form of self-expression and healthy therapy. Who, in these very pressured times can not use a little therapy. Who, in these very pressured times can not use a little therapy for a low price of $3 a class? Where in Winchester can you go for an evening of fun and learning with good friends?

The craft shop attracted customers not only from neighboring towns, but from many other states, bringing outsiders to Winchester, which does not hurt the revenue.

I attended classes at "Beehive of Knots" for over seven years and made some wonderful friends who I intend to keep. Most of them are from neighboring towns, people whom I might never have met if it were not for classes at the craft shop. We have shared fun times, discussed personal problems, swapped recipes, jokes, helpful hints, and many other topics. We all feel our lives have been enriched by these classes, and I speak for the other girls as well.

As for the antique shop that will take over the location of the craft shop, do we really need it? Most antique hunters usually travel to Maine or New Hampshire to find what they are looking for or even Europe. Locally, we have Jim Connelly at the Camera Shop, who carries a wide variety of antiques and if you do not see what you want, just ask and he will find it for you. It is usually a pleasure to ask Jim about antiques.

Whether you are inquiring or buying, he tells you interesting stories about the origin of his items. Why would we need another antique shop only two doors over from Jim?

I say: "BRING BACK THE CRAFT SHOP." It is unique and in greater demand. We would like to have it back and centrally located, downtown for easy access for senior citizens and school children.

As for the antique business, they should move to Maine, we do not need it.

Anyone reading who reads this letter and feels the same, let us hear from you, please.

Driver challenges hit-and-runner to own up to deed

TO THE EDITOR:

On Friday, Sept. 18, someone hit my 1983 Silver Subaru Hatchback while it was parked in front of Winchester Green Condominiums. The damage includes two good-sized dents and a crumpled bumper.

Whoever hit my car failed to leave a note, meaning that I am forced to pay for repairs which should be someone else's responsibility.

If someone out there is feeling guilty, I can be contacted at 729-8441. I would hate to think that I am dealing with a person who has neither the courage, nor moral fiber to own up to a mistake.

Australian Gems

Koala bears and Crocodile Dundee may come to mind first when you think about Australia. But Australian gems are also well worthy of thought.

Best known are Australian opals. Opal is the birthstone for the month of October. It is a gem full of play-of-color, flashes of reds or greens against a light or dark background and is valuable for its beauty and its scarcity. Many gems occur in predictable veins or clusters. Not so with opal. Because the location of opal cannot be predicted with success so far, in Australia seven of every ten opal mines produce no stones, two produce enough to break even, and one is successful. Opal's scarcity has added to its appeal.

which may prove very desirable, especially in men's jewelry, will be diamonds. Australia produces the kinds of diamonds you think of when you think of diamond jewelry. They also produce spectacular pink diamonds, which are quite rare, and an abundance of brown diamonds. These diamonds sometimes occur in rich shades of coffee and mocha and look quite handsome set in jewelry for men.

Cultured pearls are also produced in Australia. A South Seas Australian cultured pearl is grown differently than a Japanese pearl. Cultivation time is longer and only one pearl is grown in each oyster.

If "Down Under" calls to you, "come on down" to see some Australian gems.

Can America still trust Reagan?

By DAVID WALSH

Winchester High School

Being an avid fan of detective shows, I learned at an early age that the law is never black and white, but a thousand shades of gray. Increasingly in society, more and more gray areas are appearing. These ill-defined situations of everyday life are becoming easier to overlook by an increasingly jaded American perspective.

I have been a detective show addict for years. It's true. I can fondly remember the days when Jim Rockford would light up the screen and make my day. Yeah, ol' Jimbo — that's what his close friends and fans call him — was always getting into some sort of mess. Most of the investigatory plots centered around some mindless way in which Jim had become entangled in the web of leg-breaking, gun-toting, loansharks. These were people who wore sixty dollar polyester suits, loud ties, and drove big ugly Cadillacs. Easily identifiable, these guys shot at, stabbed, and otherwise made life miserable for Jim. Their muscle kept the show interesting; Jim's face provided hours of two-fisted amusement, and his uncanny ability to extricate himself from the cause of the physical abuse that was so often directed against him left me, the viewer with a great feeling of satisfaction and confidence in the power of a keen — if battered — mind to defeat the polyester-clad forces of evil.

Real life, as I have learned, in respect to the everyday issues of right vs. wrong, is not as simple. The bad guys don't always wear loud ties. My uncle drives a Cadillac. And no one wears polyester anymore. Detective shows also tend to nurture the "us versus them" mentality that keeps everything neat and clean. The detective (if he wants to keep his job) will, at some point in the sixty minute show, identify and trap the villain, who has committed an act that is undeniably wrong.

At the height of my appreciation for detective shows, I felt that the word "democracy" was synonymous with America, which in turn stood for everything that still remained pure and wholesome in this world. So, when in fifth grade civics I learned about Watergate — the abuse of power and betrayal of the public trust, and the act itself (the attempted bypass of the electoral process by the president of the most democratic nation in the world) — I wasn't enraged. What was the big deal, I thought. The prez got a little overzealous, he was the head honcho after all. If the President of the United States does something, it will necessarily prove to be in the best interests of the United States. Right? I mean, after all, George Washington did found the office of the presidency and the American people do elect the President. So the person in office, just by the nature of the office, is entitled to 100 percent of our support. Isn't he?

Anyway, that's how I saw it at the time. I have been thinking about the possible reasons for my unquestioning faith in bureaucracy and my extreme disdain for everyone who chose to rally around a cause that was against the government line. These were people that I saw as loudmouth communists who were eroding the country from within. So, as I rumaged through my desk drawer, pondering the possible reasons for my earlier political leanings, I came across a favorite childhood distraction: "The Joe McCarthy Coloring Book." For truer effect use only red crayons to color in this book! Hmmm...

Well, aside from my coloring books, I came to the conclusion that we are being programmed to accept the simple, one-sided explanations of a government that is itself entering questionable areas of action more often now than ever.

This does indeed seem to be the way that America encourages us to think. We as a nation, in general, glorify on film and television, acts of questionable ethics. We glorify the maverick. The American people have always had a place in their hearts for the take charge kinda guy. The guy who, paying little attention to the rules of the book, throws caution to the wind and uses any good American hero's healthy dose of American horse sense to save the day is regarded not as a reckless, recalcitrant fool who got lucky, but rather as a headstrong, bold, fighter who gets the job done.

Television is a "prime-time" example of this ethical ambivalence. Every detective of the innumerable series that I have seen, will, at one point or another, no matter how principled or moral the character is, find himself with flashlight in mouth, using the lockpicking technique (that they must teach in every detective school) to gain access to something. They never flash warnings on the screen, "Do not try this yourself. Even if you are gathering information on a bad guy, breaking and entering at night is always a felony." What it seems to amount to is a blurring of the already obscure values of our T.V. generation.

A few years after Stephen J. Cannell began producing The A-Team, (an apparent reawakening of social consciousness on his part — I have yet to figure out the symbolism that I am sure exists in the ratio of chains to chest hair on Mr. T) another president became involved in an apparent constitutional oversight. This time it was a guy whom I honestly admired. A man whom I wasn't about to quickly desert. Really!

By the end of the first chapter, the accepted facts were that weapons were traded for hostages and funding from arms sales was diverted to Ronald Reagan's pet project down in Nicaragua. I still kept a stiff upper lip. I was determined not to condemn the President. His actions must have been merely part of a larger, master plan to bring down a Middle Eastern tyrant, while pursuing the elusive goals of freedom and peace in our mixed-up hemisphere. What was the big deal with a few illegal transactions? I thought about it a little bit.

It was then that I remembered something that my Guru (Bruce Springsteen) had said. It's kind of corny, but relevant: "Blind faith in your leaders, or in anything, will get you killed." Wow, I thought, remembering the draft age, Bruce really called that one. It then occurred to me that the extent of the flaws inherent in any government, have been greatly minimized up until now in our government by the numerous checks provided by the Constitution. Our system inhibits the freedom of the chief executive to act as a maverick for a good reason. It is easy for one man to develop policies that sacrifice age-old principles of democracy with the intention of achieving a larger good. But fortunately for the country, the cries of a loudmouthed minority and a partisan Congress have proven to be a much more effective, if unpopular, means of preserving our democracy.

The American flag is not a substitute for the truth. We must all participate to make our democracy work. If we allow truth to be sacrificed for the sake of blind patriotism, we will indeed be threatening not only truth itself, but the truly greater good of our democracy that allows us the comfort of pursuing it. The "gray area" of all aspects of society — as presented in the best of detective shows — should not be blindly accepted as the status quo.

Fieleke to run
music association

Carol Fieleke of Canterbury Road has been elected president of the New England Pianoforte Teacher's Association.

With more than 300 members, NEPTA is the largest and most active organization of its kind in the country. NEPTA's goal is to improve the quality of piano teaching throughout the region. To this end, the organization holds monthly meetings featuring lectures given by prominent musicians and music educators, and sponsors numerous students recitals, workshops and master classes.

In the spring there is a scholarship competition that awards a substantial scholarship to a graduating senior and cash awards to other high school students.

Fieleke served on NEPTA's board of directors for several years before assuming the two-year term as president.

Her students participate in guild auditions each spring. She is on the board of directors of the Winchester Community Music School, and is active in the Winchester Music Club.

Fieleke has a private piano studio in Winchester.

Ex-U.S. ambassador lectures seniors on Latin America

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Dr. Hewson Ryan, former United States ambassador to Honduras, a long-term member of the United States Foreign Service, and currently director of the Murrow Center of Public Diplomacy at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University, gave an encouraging account of the move toward peace in Central America to Jenks Seniors recently.

Ryan stated that after eight years of war, the fatigue element makes people ready for a cessation of hostilities, despite the many problems that exist in these Latin American countries. Government officials, journalists and representatives from the people are now all emphasizing the need for peace to end the senseless slaughter.

Ryan's topic, "When the Shooting Stops: Central America's Real Problem", was a revelation of the major difficulties that will not be solved by peace treaties alone. The whole area of human rights, the problems of the production of food, the importance of the division of the land, the condition of the soil, deforestation and erosion have to be given specific attention. The mahogany trees that have been felled through the years and sold to the United States, Japan and other countries, have not been replaced.

With the farm land now utilized for the raising of cattle for industrial beef and the exploitation of large segments of the land for the raising of cotton, very little money is available for the poor, who are ill-fed. This malnutrition among children affects the mental faculties of the young.

Unemployment is at an all-time high of about 40-45 percent of the population. The movement of the people off the land into urban areas is changing the patterns of culture. There is a tremendous public health problem with open sewage and polluted water.

When peace comes, the United States has much to consider in giving help to these countries. The enormous debt in Central America, political aspects of foreign policy, in equity in the distribution of wealth and other internal and external conditions have to be addressed.

The United States of America has set Nov. 7 for the signing of peace treaties, but Central America will not be tied to a time schedule. Our own democracy is not packaged to project on other countries. The concept has to evolve from living in a culture.

Ryan's presentation held the complete attention of every member of the audience, all of whom felt that attendance was a well-rewarded experience.

Two-day fair at Jenks

The labors of many people are demanding when an organization decides to run a fair. The 11th annual Fall Fiesta Fair at the Jenks Senior Center has already involved at least 200 people, not to mention the contributions of saleable materials of all types from many donors.

When the final count is taken, it will be of interest to know just how many volunteers gave time and effort in making this special yearly event one of note in the annals of the Winchester Seniors Association.

Tickets for the Ford Escort Pony car are available at the Jenks Senior Center as well as tickets for the Italian Dinner on the evening of Oct. 7 from 5 to 7 p.m. The dinner, served in the new auditorium, is open to the public. Tickets must be purchased prior to the event in order to inform the caterer about the number of meals to be served.

Health Maintenance Organizations to be discussed

One of the biggest questions in the minds of seniors today concerns the whole realm of health insurance. Because of the constant changes in benefits, or lack of them, there will be a panel presentation on the present status of "Health Maintenance Organizations for Seniors" scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 28, from 1:30 to 3 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center.

Kathy Glenzell of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs will moderate the presentations and thus field questions from the audience. Other presenters will be Jane White, special projects coordinator of the Tufts Associated Health Plan; Karen Carraro, Bay State Medi Plus; Lynn Bowman, director, Harvard Senior Care; and Jim Smith, Medical East BC.

The early announcement ensures saving the date for this informational presentation by a panel of specialists in the field of health insurance.

Flu and pneumonia clinics

The Winchester Board of Health will conduct two flu and pneumonia clinics from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. at the Jenks Senior Center Monday, Oct. 5, and Thursday, Oct. 15.

With the approach of cold weather, it is important to have the protection of the vaccine. Those having had the pneumonia inoculation need not have it repeated at this clinic.

Change in square dancing schedule

During the week of the annual Fall Fiesta Fair, the square dancing group will meet at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 6, instead of at 2 p.m.

The change is necessary to permit volunteers to get the booths arranged as well as the tables and chairs for the dinner on Wednesday.

After the fair, the time schedule will be as usual.

Art class

The Art Class has begun its meetings in the Craft Room on the lower level with Ellen Kimball as instructor.

All people who have an interest in drawing or painting are invited to attend the next class on Oct. 6 from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

The class meets every Tuesday.

Reminder of Church Women United Senior Luncheon

The first Church Women United Senior Luncheon of the season will be held at St. Mary's Parish Hall Tuesday, Oct. 6 at noon.

Reservations should be made before Oct. 3. Contact Marge Berger (729-4693) or Mary Collins (729-6285).

Junior volunteers learn while serving

Each day this summer young people from 12 area towns helped the Volunteer Services Department at Winchester Hospital provide services to patients and help to the hospital's staff.

More than 80 members of the hospital's Junior Volunteer group worked on morning, afternoon and evening shifts in several areas of the hospital. Dressed in candy-striped uniforms, they greeted patients at the registration desk, transported them, distributed supplies and x-rays to hospital departments, delivered mail and flowers to patients, and served in the hospital's coffee shop.

Each of the Junior Volunteers, who range in age from 14 to 18, met Marie Johnson, director of Volunteer Services, and attended two orientation sessions and on-the-job training sessions before beginning work in the hospital.

"Many of these young people have chosen to volunteer because they are interested in health-related careers," said Johnson. "For others this is their first opportunity to have a job. But each person has come here showing a concern for others."

"Because of their enthusiasm, good work, and dependability, the Junior Volunteers who serve in the summer months and those who volunteer throughout the year are of great assistance to our hospital staff. In addition these young people provide an extra dimension of caring to our patients."

The service Junior Volunteers give is especially helpful to Winchester Hospital during the summer months, when many adult volunteers have family and travel commitments. Students interested in joining the Junior Volunteer program, which continues afternoons and weekends through the year, are encouraged to call 729-9000, Ext. 3094, for information or an appointment to talk with Mrs. Johnson.

Communities represented by Junior Volunteers this past summer included Winchester, Woburn, Reading, North Reading, Wilmington, Burlington, Lexington, Stoneham, Medford and Melrose.

Hospital offers nursing bra fitting

Winchester Hospital will provide a personal nursing bra fitting service for new mothers who deliver at Winchester Hospital.

On Monday and Thursday afternoons, qualified staff will be available to properly fit each woman who requests the service. This program is designed to make the entire childbearing experience satisfying and complete.

Swing band to play at hospital gala

The VIPs, an eight-piece band specializing in swing music, will be featured at The Harvest Gala, a dinner dance to be held at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Nursery Saturday, Oct. 24, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The group has played at social functions throughout the metropolitan area for more than ten years. Its members also play at Tanglewood and with area musical organizations. Their music includes selections from many musical eras including swing, movie favorites, and current popular tunes.

Cheryl Ferguson McLean of the Winchester Hospital Renovation Project Campaign, which is planning the evening, heard this group at several social functions and was impressed by the quality of its music and performance style.

"Everyone enjoys the VIPs," she said. "I am delighted we were able to book them for this special event. Their music should please anyone's taste and we will all have fun dancing."

Proceeds from the Harvest Gala will benefit the Winchester Hospital Maternity Renovation Project. Tickets are $75 per person. A limited number are available. They may be reserved by calling 729-9000, Ext. 3043.

Checks, payable to the Winchester Hospital Foundation, should be sent to Diane Malcolmson Keefe, director of development, Winchester Hospital, 41 Highland Ave., Winchester, Mass., 01890.

St. Eulalia's to hold blood drive

Blood donors are vital to maintaining adequate community blood supply, so that blood will be available for those who need it when they need it.

Last fiscal year (July '86 - June '87), American Red Cross Blood Services collected 214 pints at the two annual St. Eulalia's Church drives. Other community drives sponsored by the Sons of Italy, the Winchester Hospital, the Girl Scouts and the Red Cross Board of Directors netted 319 pints. In addition, Winchester High School students and faculty donated 82 units.

The McCord-Winn Co. also supported the voluntary blood program by holding bloodmobiles. Its employees contributed a total of 52 pints. Many Winchesterites donate at their place of employment outside of the community.

The 1987-88 total goal for drives held in Winchester is 755 pints.

The annual fall bloodmobile at St. Eulalia's Church is scheduled for Monday, Oct. 5, 2:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the church.

For further information on being a blood donor or a volunteer at a bloodmobile, call Janice Wilson, director of the Office of Volunteers and Blood Services, American Red Cross, 665-1351.

Emotional stress jeopardizes health

Everyone deals with stress. Occasionally stress can endanger health and well-being.

"Take Control of Your Emotions and Your Life," a six-week program to help individuals develop skills to deal with life's stresses, health and their sense of personal well-being, is being offered by the Education Department at Winchester Hospital.

Following a free introductory session Thursday, Oct. 1, the course will be presented on six consecutive Thursdays from 7:15 to 9:15 p.m. from Oct. 8 through Nov. 12 in the Education Conference Room at the hospital.

The course will be presented by David I. Finkelstein and Jo M. Solet. Finkelstein is a licensed clinical psychologist with Wallis Court Associates in Lexington. He is a member of the consulting staffs at the South End Community Health Center, the Biobehavioral Treatment Center in Brookline, and Brockton Community Hospital.

Solet is a registered occupational therapist and a Ph.D. candidate in psychology at Boston University. Her special interest is in behavioral medicine and psychosomatic medicine. She has been a lecturer at Tufts University and has written a number of publications.

A course fee of $90 will be due Oct. 8. Because registration is limited, pre-registration is suggested.

For information and registration, individuals may call the Winchester Hospital Education Department at 729-9000, Ext. 3010.

Hospital offers speakers' bureau

Winchester Hospital offers health education programs to area business and industry, clubs, organizations, schools and congregations.

Through the hospital's Speakers' Bureau, professional presentations on an array of health or hospital related topics are available for upcoming meetings.

The Speakers' Bureau consists of medical staff, administrators, and other professional staff who speak without a fee.

Requests should be made as early as possible and at least four weeks in advance of the desired date.

To arrange for a speaker, program chairmen and personnel directors are invited to call the hospital's Community Relations Department at 729-9000, Ext. 3041.

Warren Berg

Berg to lead United Way effort

Winchester's Warren S. Berg has accepted a top-level volunteer position in this year's United Way of Massachusetts Bay fund-raising campaign. The drive kicked off recently and will run until Nov. 24.

As the United Way's 1987 leadership gifts division chairman, Berg leads the drive among foundations and major individual donors.

Berg recently retired as senior vice president of corporate relations for Shawmut Bank of Boston. He remains a consultant to Shawmut.

A graduate of Harvard College with a degree in engineering sciences, Berg was elected to the Harvard Athletic Hall of Fame in 1957. Following World War II service as an officer in the Marine Corps, he played professional baseball and was a collegiate baseball and basketball coach.

He is past president and now honorary chairman of Boston's Museum of Science. He is a trustee of the Wang Center, chairman of Boston's Freedom Trail Foundation Commission and vice president of the Freedom Trail Foundation, and serves as a director of the Boston Natural Areas Fund and Freedom House.

The United Way of Massachusetts Bay supports nearly 200 agencies that provide health and human services to 1.7 million people in 81 communities in eastern Massachusetts.

Gross completes jet training

Eliot Gross of 1 Webster St. successfully completed naval jet airplane training and received his wings on Sept. 18 at the Naval base in Meridian, Miss.

He is now being assigned to advanced jet training in the EA6B aircraft in Seattle, Wash.

The EA6B is a carrier-based electronics-jamming plane valued at $60 million. Following advanced training, Gross expects to be assigned to an aircraft carrier.

Camie Jackson

Jackson to head computer expo

The International Test Conference (ITC) Steering Committee has voted Winchester resident Camie Jackson, corporate exhibits manager for LTX Corporation, as general chairwoman for 1988.

Sponsored by the IEEE Computer Society, ITC '88, which will be held Sept. 11 to 15, 1988, at the Sheraton Washington Hotel in Washington, D.C., will include technical sessions, exhibits, tutorials, user group and professional group meetings relating to advancements in test engineering. ITC, which was established in 1970, places highest priority on its technical program. The steering committee, which is a non-profit organization of volunteers from the test community, conducts the conference and supports related activities to advance the discipline of test engineering.

Jackson has served on ITC's Steering Committee for six years. She was exhibits chairman from 1982 through 1984, arrangements chairman in 1985 and was named vice chairman in 1986. Jackson, who is a Certified Exhibit Specialist (CES), has been in the trade show industry for 11 years. For the past five she has been the corporate exhibits manager for LTX Corporation, a manufacturer of automatic test equipment. Prior to LTX, she held similar responsibilities with Adair Associates. In addition, she has been a participant of the International Exhibitors Association for five years and has held positions in the Boston Chapter including: chapter chairman, program chairman, membership chairman and secretary.

Originally from Boston, Jackson is a graduate of Somerville High School. She holds her bachelor's degree in business administration/marketing from Northeastern University. She now resides on Vine Street.

YOU'VE GOT A NICE FACE... BUT

Do you know what I consider one of the greatest drawbacks of the seller who tries to sell his own home? The fact that most prospects will not confide their objections to the seller's face. I've found that the great preponderance of buyers are gentle, polite and caring individuals. That's the problem. They don't want to insult you.

You may have the nicest face on the block, but a promising buyer may have abruptly decided that he couldn't afford the price of your home and left. He didn't want to hurt your feelings. On the other hand, price is a subject that they WOULD discuss with a Realtor (they do it all the time) who could then show them how it could possibly be financed within their means.

A nice prospect wouldn't dream of telling a nice seller that the carpeting was worn or certain rooms need to be repainted. They'd tell this to a Realtor though, who could arrange to make minor financial adjustments or repairs and save what could have been a lost sale.

TERMITES

Most home purchase agreements have clauses that deal with termites. After the agreement is ratified, a termite inspection is arranged. Before settlement can occur, the sellers must be able to produce papers signed by a licensed exterminator stating that the house is free of infestation and that, if there is any termite damage, it has been repaired.

Before you sign any agreement to buy or sell a home, you should read the termite clause and be sure that you understand it. Who selects the exterminator and pays for the inspection? If bugs are found, who pays for the treatment? Are the sellers obligated to repair any damage and, if so, have they placed a limit of the dollar amount they will spend on those repairs? If treatment is required, the buyers may want a chance to discuss the treatment options with the pest control company, especially someone in the family is sensitive to the chemicals used to control the termites. Finally, ask about the exterminator's guarantees or service contract options.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors are ready to serve you. Call us at 729-7000 or drop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

Dueling hockey sticks face off during the Winchester vs. Reading varsity field hockey game Sept. 28.

WHS girls win two contests

By CYNTHIA PREE
Special to the Star

The talented Winchester High field hockey team found its offense this week and attained two straight triumphs over Burlington and Reading.

Early last week the future looked bleak for the Sachemettes as Watertown shut them out Monday, 2-0, followed by a 4-0 whitewashing at the hands of Lexington on Tuesday.

But Winchester's confidence and determination did not falter. When they faced Melrose on Wednesday, they were still unable to score, but the defense played an exceptional game resulting in a 0-0 tie.

The Sachemette offense erupted on Friday however, as Winchester beat Burlington, 3-0. It was a shutout in which no shots were taken on Winchester goalie Ritika Bowry while the Sachemettes rolled up 14 of their own.

The Sachemettes started strong with a goal in the first half scored by Katie O'Connor and assisted by Terese Krajewski. Two more goals in the second half by Colleen O'Connor and Leah Schwab put the game out of reach.

This past Monday's game proved to be equally satisfying for the Winchester squad as the Sachemettes picked up their first home victory with a 2-1 win over Reading.

Winchester almost scored here, but Reading goal defenders held them off.

Six minutes into the first half, Colleen O'Connor scored a goal set up by her sister, Katie. Two minutes later, a second goal was scored by Terese Krajewski, assisted this time by Leslie Pedulla. Bowry, an all-star goalie, saved 13 of the 14 shots taken on goal, helping to insure the win.

Coach Mary Brown was ecstatic with the promising turn her team has taken.

"This is only the beginning," said

Brown. "The confidence is building in what we can achieve. We are getting better and we're moving up!"

The Sachemettes will be looking to duplicate their success in their upcoming games with Belmont, Woburn, and Wakefield.

Sachems streak stopped at 13 wins

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High football team opened its Middlesex League campaign Friday night with a tough loss to an improved Wakefield team, 7-6. The loss ended a 13-game winning streak for the Sachems, not to mention a 19-year domination of the Warriors.

Despite dominating the game in almost every statistical category, the Sachems had trouble putting up points. The Wakefield defense constantly came through with the big play to keep Winchester in check most of the game. The key play of the game came during a two-point conversion attempt following the Sachems' lone touchdown.

Wakefield grabbed a 7-0 lead early following a Winchester fumble. While Winchester dominated the line of scrimmage, they were unable to score until the fourth quarter. This put Winchester coach Manny Marshall in a position where he had to go for the win. Quarterback Micky Feeley attempted to run an option play but it was botched in its infancy as a Wakefield linebacker stopped Feeley and preserved the Warrior lead.

The Sachems were not through though and they moved into Wakefield territory on their next possession. This time they were stopped by the turnover as Scott Garvey, who gained more than 100 yards rushing in the game, fumbled away the ball just over midfield.

But Winchester got the ball right back as Albie Colantenio picked off a pass and the Sachems were back in business. A combination of Feeley passing and Garvey running put Winchester back in Warrior territory with just under two minutes left. Feeley averted one fourth-down situation with a 15-yard pass but the Wakefield defense caught up with him on fourth and three with only a minute left and the unbeaten string was over.

Lost in all this was the stalwart performance by the Sachem defense which rendered the Wakefield offense useless except for their one scoring drive. They will have to keep up the good work until the offense figures out a way to put more points on the board. Otherwise, it could be a long season.

Boys soccer team has 3 more victories

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' soccer team continues to impress as they walked through three more one-sided victories over Burlington, Watertown, and Reading.

The Burlington game was supposed to be a tough one but the Sachems pulled the rug out from under the Red Devils' feet in the first half, building a 3-0 lead. After Winchester repeatedly threatened to score, they finally had their way as Vandy French broke the ice with 10 minutes left in the half. A little over a minute later, Paul Er-bafina broke into the scoring column on a nice rush. He added a second goal just before halftime.

Burlington attempted a comeback in the second half but could only muster one goal before Winchester reapplied the vice grips and coasted the rest of the way, 3-1.

The Sachems home opener against Watertown was a laugh as Vandy French showcased his talents, scoring four goals in the 7-0 rout. David Romboli scored twice and Mike Queenan had one as the Sachems showed they will be tough to beat again this year.

The Sachems ended their week with a 5-0 blanking of Reading as Winchester again completely dominated the game. Ken Fowler and Paul Capodano were the key players this time.

"Nothing changes," muttered Reading coach Phil Vaccaro after it was over.

Capodano set up the first two goals as he used his slick ball handling ability to rattle the Reading defense. Fowler picked up a Capodano chip and walked in unmolested to score the first goal. Later, Capodano gave a nice feed to French who scored the second goal. Fowler launched a rocket from 30 yards out to make it 3-0, and the rout was on.

Coach Gene Bouley brought in the reserves during the second half and they continued to control the tempo. Matt Rotondi finally got one past the Reading goaltender with an assist to Romboli. Jason McConkey got a much deserved goal late in the game after threatening several times earlier on. Goaltenders Andy Shao and Tony Fryklund split the shutout.

The team is looking forward to today's showdown with arch rival Lexington at Skillings Field, beginning at 3:30p.m.

WHS Harriers split 2 meets

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High cross country team continues to experience growing pains as they lost to rival Concord-Carlisle on Monday after a pair of victories over Burlington and Reading.

The boys again were led by the one-two punch of Dave McClintock and Mike Aldrich, who finished first and second, respectively, for the second race in a row. Jesse DeGeorge finished fifth and Jon Sudbury placed sixth. Tucker Brandt came in ninth to round out the scoring.

The girls lost despite the fact that Laura Tozza won the race. The problem with the girls is they do not have enough runners to compete fairly. The soccer and field hockey programs have left the girls team with little talent resources to draw upon. Hence, fine efforts by Tozza and third place finisher Jennifer Lee are wasted. Britta Wiest was ninth and the only other Sachemette, Shelley Oliviodoti, finished 12th.

The team will race against Watertown and Belmont this week.

After-school intramural sports continue

The Lincoln School tradition of after-school intramural sports continues the 1987-88 year with group of 70 fifth- and sixth-grade students who have enrolled in the program, which is under the direction of Stephen Frazee.

Pupils convene from 3 to 4 p.m. Mondays, Tuesday, or Wednesdays for soccer, basketball and softball. Future Sachem stars are plentiful.

Girls team loses to Concord-Carlisle

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' soccer team continues to experience growing pains as they lost to rival Concord-Carlisle on Monday after a pair of victories over Burlington and Reading.

The loss dropped the struggling Sachemettes overall record to 2-2 as they continue to search for a leader on offense. The team moves the ball well and has been excellent at setting up scoring opportunities but none of the players has found a consistent scoring touch.

Offense was not a problem last week when they faced a supposedly improved Burlington team. The Red Devilettes kept it sporting for a while in the first half before the Sachemettes took command and went on to roll, 6-1.

Denise Chabot got things underway for Winchester with her first goal of the season early in the first half. Less than a minute after Burlington tied the game, Margaret Cunningham put the Sachemettes back out in front when her corner kick went in after bouncing off a Burlington defender. Emily Doherty gave them a two goal cushion going into the second half with her first goal of the season.

Kelly Meehan races to overtake the ball before a Concord-Carlisle foe gets it as Sandra Bennett and Beth Small look on.

The defense, led by Laura Rutherford, Sandra Bennett, and Sonja Johnson dominated Burlington in the second half, barely allowing them out of their zone. Ingrid Spanjaard netted an insurance goal before tri-captain Debbie Nowell notched two goals in a row to seal the rout.

The Sachemettes won again on Friday but it was tougher than expected. 2-0 victory over hapless Reading. Despite a 42-2 shots on goal advantage, Winchester did not have this one secured until Nowell scored the second goal late in the game. Reading goalkeeper Lisa Hopkins gave the Sachemettes fits all afternoon as she stopped 40 shots, including 22 drilled at her by the combination of Chabot and Cara McDonough. Spanjaard got the game winner early in the second half.

In their game with Concord-Carlisle, the Sachemettes came out strong in the first half. They definitely had the edge in play but yet they were unable to capitalize. As has been the case in both Sachemette losses, they move the ball well until they get in deep. Most of their shots end up being taken off balance or they sail over the crossbar.

Concord-Carlisle caught Winchester flatfooted and the Sachemettes fell, 3-0.

Mike McGreenery of Lynch School gets some last-minute direction for his walk-on part in a production by Opera-to-Go recently presented at the school.

Lynch students get a taste of opera

Lynch School students in grades K through 6 heard the touring opera company, Opera-to-Go, in two performances Sept. 21.

The audience was introduced to the different singing voices (soprano, mezzo-soprano, tenor, baritone) and heard them performing excerpts from familiar arias. Student volunteers participated as walk-ons. The event was professionally videotaped.

The production, part of the Young Audiences of Massachusetts series, was funded by the Lynch PTA.

SCHOOL NEWS

McCall J.H. holds open house tonight

Parents of all seventh and eighth grade students at McCall Junior High School are invited to attend the annual open house tonight at 7:30 p.m.

Teachers will explain their expectations and describe student activities on a typical school day. A parent/staff get-together will follow in the cafeteria.

Guidance office offers Mini-College program

Every Wednesday after school at 2 p.m. in the cafeteria of the high school, the guidance office will be conducting a Mini-College Program to which all high school students and their parents are invited.

On Wednesday, Oct. 7, the following institutions will be represented: Gettysburg College, Laboure College, Maine Maritime Academy, Marian Court Junior College, Moore College of Art, Mount Holyoke College, University of Notre Dame, Pomona College and Worcester State College.

On Wednesday, Oct. 14, admissions representatives from the following institutions plan to attend: Beloit College, Bridgewater State College, Hampshire College, University of New England, University St. Edward's (Texas) and Suffolk University.

Schools receive drug and alcohol education grant

The Governor's Alliance Against Drugs has awarded a $8,263 grant to Winchester schools to expand drug and alcohol education programs as part of the Drug Free Schools Act.

Tom Cullen, executive director of the alliance, praised Winchester school officials for their plans to use the grant money. Cullen stated that the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs looks forward to working with the community in helping to develop successful programs to combat drug and alcohol abuse among students.

This grant represents the first year of a three-year funding cycle under the program. The Governor's Alliance Against Drugs is responsible for reviewing grant applications and distributing funds to all Massachusetts communities.

The Governor's Alliance was initiated by Gov. Michael Dukakis in 1984 with the goal of achieving drug-free schools by 1990. The alliance program calls for:

- drug and alcohol education to begin as early as kindergarten and continue through high school;
- a written memorandum of understanding between school superintendents and local police chiefs on how to handle students caught using or selling drugs on school campuses;
- school discipline codes that include specific penalties for drug or alcohol use or sales on school campuses; and
- local community treatment programs which youngsters with serious drug and alcohol problems can be referred and treated.

'Mentors' film aims to prevent substance abuse

Dr. Robert Fitts, chiropractor and director of the Winchester Chiropractic Center has donated to the Winchester Public Schools the film, "Mentors."

"Mentors" is a film designed for students in the 6th to 8th grades. It includes many interviews with famous sports and music celebrities, such as Steve Garvey, baseball player for the San Diego Padres and Laura Branigan, singer of "Gloria."

"Mentors" is a community service film to help prevent drug and alcohol use in young people. Presently, McCall Junior High School is using it in its health care classes.

Winchester Chiropractic Center is sponsoring this film. For more information concerning use of "Mentors" call 932-0802.

Student group tours W. Germany

Nineteen juniors and seniors from the Winchester High School German program spent three weeks in Bremen, West Germany, this past summer, attending school, living in families, and putting their German language skills to work.

Accompanied by their teachers, Susan Austin and Gale Butcher (currently on leave from the high school), the students had the opportunity to experience German culture from the inside and test their progress in learning German.

The exchange, which lasted from June 10 to July 2, included side trips to historic cities of Cologne and Berlin. The students saw the gothic Cathedral in Cologne and the divided city of Berlin. A day excursion into East Berlin gave them a small taste of life on the other side of the iron curtain.

Funded in part by the German American Partnership Program, the exchange takes place every other year and is open to German students who are juniors and seniors and have completed at least two years of German. Scholarships were available to students this year from the School Improvement Act.

Students earn commendations

The following Winchester High School students were designated Commended Students in the 1988 National Merit Scholarship Program. Each will receive a letter of commendation in recognition of their outstanding academic promise:

Vivek N. Ahya of George Road, Candice M. Ashenden of Billerica, Laurie M. Barton on Leslie Road, Melissa A. Black of Amberwood Drive, Dennis S. Buchheim of Alden Lane, Michael H. Chen of Thornberry Road, Wing Harn Chen of Wainwright Road, Martin R. deVrieze of Symmes Road, Kelly E. Dobson of Park Avenue, Vicotor G. Grigorieff of Grove Street, Douglas E. Holt of Ledgewood Road, Julie C. Kenerson of Brooks Street, Margaret S. Lee of Viking Road, Thomas R. Leonard of Wildwood Street, Mark A. Lundin of Lockeland Road, Courtenay R. McMillan of Central Street, Eric D. Mortensen of Alesworth Avenue, Lauren C. Murray of Olde Village Drive, Lesley A. Pedulla of Samoset Road, Amy K. Robertson of Highland Avenue, Seth C. Rosenberger of Cabot Street, Laura P. Rutherford of Sanborn Street, James A. Selvittelli of Pocahontas Drive, Elizabeth J. Small of Stowell Road, Joseph C. Tahnk of Fletcher Street, and Sarah E. Tobiason of Hillside Avenue.

PFA to hold high school open house

An open house sponsored by the Parent-Faculty Association will be held at Winchester High School on Thursday, Oct. 8 at 7:30 p.m.

This program offers an opportunity to parents to visit the classroom, meet the faculty, and become better acquainted with the objectives of each course.

The Parent-Faculty Association will be collecting dues of $10 per family during a classroom period in the cafeteria. The many families who pay their dues make it possible for the P.F.A. to give financial support to student, faculty, and community programs throughout the year and to pay the cost of publishing and mailing the P.F.A. newsletter to every family on a monthly basis. To expedite collection of dues, checks may be made out in advance to the WHS-PFA.

All-Star musicians begin rehearsing October 8

The All-Star Band, Orchestra, and Chorus, sponsored by the Music Department of the Winchester Public Schools, will begin rehearsals on Thursday, Oct. 8.

These ensembles allow students to have a musical experience with others of their age, making music together that would not be possible in individual schools.

The groups perform at the CSA concert in the spring, providing funds for the CSA scholarship which is awarded to a graduating music and art student.

This year, the CSA Concert on June 2 will celebrate American music as part of the school-wide Celebration of the Arts, and the townwide celebration of the 350 anniversary of the settlement of Waterford.

Students who have attained second-year proficiency on their instruments are eligible to join the performing groups. Sixth graders who are capable singers will be selected by their classroom music teacher. Those sixth graders also in orchestra or band will share the rehearsal time between the two groups.

The All-Star students will be bused from their schools to their rehearsals, which occur on released Thursdays and conference Thursdays.

Two return to Colby

Maria T. Scanlan of Alesworth Avenue and Linda J. Spiller of Prospect Street returned to Colby-Sawyer College recently to begin their senior years. Spiller is enrolled in the sports science/sports management program.

She received a Sawyer Fellowship at the convocation ceremony.

Purcell to be guest on cable television show

The new Muraco School principal, Andrea Purcell, will be the guest on the Oct. 7 "Conversations with Dr. Mitsakos" cable television program.

This half-hour broadcast begins at 8 p.m. on Channel 19 and is hosted by Superintendent of Schools Charles Mitsakos, along with Marty Fuller. The show provides townspeople with information about what is going on in the Winchester Public Schools. Viewers also have the opportunity to call in with questions.

The Oct. 7 show will offer a chance to converse with Purcell, although general questions about the school system can also be called in.

Anyone who wishes to submit questions in advance or suggest ideas for discussion can contact Sandy Rodger at 729-5907.

High Holiday services set

Temple Shir Tikvah, with members from Arlington, Winchester, Woburn and surrounding communities, will continue its schedule of High Holiday Services this week.

All of the Holiday services will be held in Chidley Hall at the First Congregational Church on Winchester Common. Services will be led by Rabbi Cathy Felix and are open to the public.

Yom Kippur Services will begin with Kol Nidre at 6:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 2, and will continue on Saturday at 10 a.m.

In addition to High Holiday and Shabat services, Temple Shir Tikvah continues its active Adult Education program this year. We will again offer Hebrew Literacy for Adults classes and a schedule of speakers on topics of contemporary interest. For information on these activities, please call Jill Hasson, Adult Education Committee chairperson, at 729-9083, or Gary Shostak at 641-0140.

St. Mary's plans synod reflection

Members of St. Mary's Parish will have an opportunity to participate in a process leading to the development of an archdiocese pastoral plan for the next five to 10 years Nov. 1 from 2 to 5 p.m. in the Parish Hall.

This is the second phase of the consultative process begun last fall to identify priority concerns and to indicate where the church in Boston ought to focus its attention and energies for the near future.

Sept. 14, 1986, marked the official call of the Boston Archdiocese into synod by Cardinal Law. The word synod is etymologically derived from two Greek words meaning "together on the road." Vatican Council II is the best known synod of the Universal Church.

Twenty years after its closing is an appropriate time for the church in Boston to take stock of its progress in implementing the teachings of Vatican II. Unlike past synods, which were purely clerical affairs, bishops and priests being the only members, this synod includes as voting members laymen, sisters, brothers, deacons, priests and bishops.

Last fall every parish, campus ministry center, and chapel received copies of a questionnaire. More than 425,000 were distributed in five languages. Findings from the responses were given to members.

As the Masses on Oct. 3 and 4 parishioners will be asked to register for the Parish Reflection Session on Nov. 1, at which time they will assemble in small groups to critique the reports. This session is an opportunity for each person to have a voice in planning for the future of the church in Boston.

The Window Place

For more than twelve years Neil Haggerty has been improving the appearance of area homes and businesses as owner/president of Prime Contracting Inc. In the course of remodeling hundreds of homes and building an impeccable reputation for quality workmanship, Neil discovered a need for a separate division specializing in windows; complimenting his already successful contracting business. In September 1986 The Window Place was formed. This division of Prime Contracting has a permanent showroom located in 601 Main St., Winchester where you are sure to find the window, blinds or shades which best suit your home or office.

With his extensive experience in the field owner Haggerty will help you choose the window that's right for your home or office needs. To help you select the blinds or shades which best with the decor of that home or office, decorating expert Theresa DeConto is available for consultation. Theresa who studies interior decorating at Framingham State College, is a lifelong Winchester resident with more than four years of experience in interior decorating, with a primary focus on window decorations.

After experiencing what he describes as an "overwhelming demand for specialization in 'just windows,' Haggerty formed the Window Place which he says has received a 'phenomenal response.'"

If fact Haggerty explains that "Since the Window Place opened his company has experienced an unprecedented growth."

The Window Place offers a variety of windows including bay, bow, garden, and double hung models. All are custom-fitted and designed for the energy conscious consumer, and all are very competitively priced.

With a contracting background specializing in thermal insulation, Haggerty is more than qualified to assist you in selecting a window that will result in a substantial heat savings. As he explains, "When you want to make the right choice call The Window Place."

The Window Place is open Monday-Friday 10-6, Saturday 10-2, and Haggerty and DeConto are available by appointment at your convenience, for in-home consultation.

With a wide selection of windows, roller and pleated shades and mini, micro and vertical blinds, and a variety of name brands like Levolor, Kirsch and Delmar, you are sure to satisfy your window needs at The Window Place.

CLUB NEWS

College Club holds general meeting

The Winchester College Club recently held its general meeting at the home of Mrs. William Kennedy. The speaker for the meeting was Selectman Judith Muggia, who gave the audience an insight into town affairs.

This meeting of the club coordinated all of the many interest groups. They will begin their meetings in October. For further information call the chairman listed below:

The daytime study groups are: Antiques, Helen Shasta, 729-7639; Book Exchange, Grace Dignam, 729-1119; History, Laura Dunn, 729-2862; Literature, Janet Holborow, 729-2143; Needlecraft, Pat Byrne, 729-7096.

The evening study group is travel. Members share their slides and experiences from trips all over the world. The chairmen of this group are Mr. and Mrs. Byron Peterson, 729-5258.

New and old residents are invited to join the club. The Newcomers Club was begun by several of the members as a way to welcome new residents.

Town to receive $36,350 grant

Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh has announced that Winchester will receive a $36,350 Incentive Aid Grant from the Office of Communities and Development.

"I'm pleased that Winchester's proposal was approved," said Whip. "This program has been an enormous success since it began in 1984, and requests have far outnumbered available state monies."

The goal of this program is to help municipal government and school systems increase their management capability and effectiveness, either through the actual hiring of personnel or management training programs for current personnel.

"Winchester's grant includes $22,500 for a director of information services and $7,850 for a management skills training program for the LAWV educational consortium," concluded Saltmarsh.

611 Main St. project gets staging permit

The Winchester Group has the permit it needs to go ahead with the construction of a three-story building at 611 Main St.

The Board of Selectmen asked the group to come up with a safety plan so that pedestrians would not be in any danger while walking alongside the construction site.

During three-quarters of the construction, a police officer will direct pedestrian traffic. During the last part of the project, a crane will be parked on the street. Two officers will be on the scene at that time, one directing pedestrians, and one, motor vehicle traffic.

The selectmen were satisfied with the plan, which had the approval of Safety Officer Kevin Mawn.

Official tax rate announced

Francis X. Mahoney Jr., chairman of the Winchester Board of Assessors, announced the official tax rate for fiscal year 1988 at $13.90 per thousand.

Certified by the Department of Revenue, the $13.90 rate is the figure recommended by Mahoney to the Board of Selectmen at a public hearing regarding classification.

The Town Treasurer is in the process of issuing tax bills with one tax rate for everyone.

Literature group to discuss Keri Hulme novel

The Winchester Literature Group will be holding its next meeting Friday, Oct. 2, at 9:30 a.m. The book to be discussed is "The Bone People" by Keri Hulme.

The group meets monthly, September through June, usually the first Friday morning in a member's home. Each discussion is led by a member who does some research about a book and its author. This year's selections include: "Egalia's Daughters" by Gerd Brandtberg, "The Family Arsenal" by Paul Theroux, "Things Fall Apart" by Chinua Achebe, "Stones for Ibarra" by Harriet Doerr, "What's Bred in the Bone" by Robertson Davies, "White Noise" by Don DeLillo, and a work by Toni Morrison.

The Literature Group is one of several study groups of the Winchester College Club, founded early in this century "to promote educational and cultural interests in an atmosphere of friendly sociability."

To learn more about the meeting call Janet Holborow at 729-2143.

Richard Rush

Richard McKee Rush of Woodside Avenue died Sept. 26 at Beverly Hospital. He was 90.

Capt. Rush was born in Washington, D.C., and was a 58-year resident of Winchester.

He was an honor graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., in 1918. He went directly into war service on destroyer duty in the North Atlantic, where he served in a detachment that guarded convoys.

At the end of the World War I, he was sent to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology by the Navy where he earned a master of science degree in 1922.

During World War II, Capt. Rush was in charge of ship construction and repair at the Boston Naval Shipyard, where he served four tours of duty. At the close of the war he became inspector of naval material for the First Naval District in Boston.

Following his retirement from active service, Capt. Rush did advanced study in astrophysics at Harvard University and taught courses at Tufts University and M.I.T.

Capt. Rush was a Winchester Town Meeting member for several years and served on the School Committee from 1947 to 1950. He was a member of the Council of Mystic Valley Boy Scouts and served as a troop master.

He became an associate professor of physics at Northeastern University, where he taught for 14 years, retiring at the age of 70.

Capt. Rush was the husband of the late Marjorie (Brown) Rush.

He is survived by two daughters, Marjorie R. Drake of Essex, and Frances R. Rice of Cabot, Vt.; two sons, David E. Rush of Winchester, and Rev. Richard L. Rush of Fairfield, Conn.; 12 grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery.

A memorial service will be held in Ripley Chapel of the First Congregational Church at 11 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 3.

Arrangements were by the Lane Funeral Home.

Dorothy Ghirardini

Dorothy M. Ghirardini of Deer Creek Circle, Fla., formerly of Winchester, died Sept. 18 at York Hospital in York, Maine. She was 72.

Mrs. Ghirardini was born in Hingham on Aug. 28, 1915. She was the daughter of Henry C. and Annie Enwright McKee.

She was the wife of John R. Ghirardini.

She and her husband had been summer residents in the Ogunquit area of Maine for many years.

Mrs. Ghirardini is survived by a son, John R. Ghirardini Jr. of West Palm Beach, Fla.; two daughters, Joan Satter of Atlantis, Fla., and Judith A. Mercer of Concord; a brother, Henry C. McKee of Hingham; a sister, Alice Mullen of Marston Mills, Cape Cod; and seven grandchildren.

A memorial service was held Sept. 21 in St. Mary's Church in Wells, Maine.

Burial was private.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, Maine Division, Inc., 52 Federal Street, Brunswick, Maine, 03909.

Arrangements were by Lucas and Eaton Funeral Home in York.

Washington and Nelson Streets and called for back-up support.

A number of officers responded to the call. Winchester Patrolmen Jed Dean, Stephen Roache and Frank Vozzella arrived at the scene along with two Woburn officers.

The Woburn police brought the taxi driver to the location, where he positively identified Rodrigues, according to reports.

Corvino read Rodrigues his rights and arrested him on charges of armed robbery while being masked.

larceny of a motor vehicle, and assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Police found women's nylon hosiery and a coat hanger in the front seat, according to reports.

Rodrigues was transported to Woburn, where he was booked, and then taken to Choate-Symmes Hospital for evaluation.

He was held in Woburn jail until his arraignment Tuesday morning.

He is currently being held at Bridgewater State Hospital to determine whether he is competent to stand trial.

COMING EVENTS

Red Cross to hold blood pressure clinics

The American Red Cross, Eastern Middlesex Region will hold a blood pressure screening clinic Oct. 17 at the Winchester office from 10 a.m. to noon.

The screening is open to the public. No appointment is necessary. For more information, call 665-1351.

Consultant speaks on getting into college

"Getting into College" will be the theme of a presentation by David F. Donavel at the Winchester Public Library Wednesday, Oct. 7, at 7:30 p.m.

Donavel, an English teacher and free-lance writer, is co-founder of College Application Professionals, a firm offering private counseling in the college application process. He has more than 10 years' experience guiding high school students through the process of selecting and applying to college.

In his presentation, Donavel will focus on choosing a college, getting good letters of recommendation, interviewing, and writing the application essay. There will be a question and answer session at the end of the presentation. This program is free and open to the public. It will be held in the library meeting room.

The library has other resources for college bound students, including several guides to colleges, study guides for the ACT, SAT, and College Boards, information on scholarships and financial aid, and college catalogs.

K of C to hold fundraiser for handicapped

The Knights of Columbus will hold its annual charity drive Columbus Day Weekend, Oct. 11, 12, and 13.

Grand Knight Paul Stevenson of the Knights of Columbus Winchester Council said members will be asking for contributions in churches and in front of Purity Supreme. Volunteers will be easily identified by their red and yellow aprons bearing the words "Help retarded children" on the front and back. Stevenson said the money will go to handicapped youths under the age of 20.

According to the grand knight, about 80 percent of the funds will go to individuals who have requests for wheelchairs and other equipment. The remaining money goes to organizations that work with handicapped children.

To make a request for funds, contact Stevenson at 721-7354 or 729-9876.

League to hold membership coffee

On Monday, Oct. 7, the Winchester League of Women Voters will celebrate the Bicentennial of the Constitution by holding a membership coffee and general meeting at the home of Susan Lippman, 6 Stratford Rd., at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of the league is to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation in government and to act on selected issues. It does not support or oppose any political party or any candidate.

All present members are encouraged to attend to learn more about the league's program for the coming year. Waste disposal, long range land use planning, and health education in the schools will be among the topics of discussion.

New members are encouraged to attend.

For membership information, contact Susan McGonagle at 721-9856.

warrant." Muggia said she believed Town Meeting should decide the issue, not the selectmen.

Selectman Francis Sopper asked why the developers would want to leave the issue in the hands of the 190 town meeting members instead of the ZBA. Sopper said he believed the developers would have a better chance with the ZBA.

Muggia was also concerned that the town had 8½-foot parking spaces, but required a different standard for private developments. Lombardi said the town had different standards for itself in many instances and opening that discussion could cause many problems.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt suggested the board wait until it hears from the Planning Board. Zoning bylaw change articles should be supported by the Planning Board, not the selectmen, Schmitt said.

He said part of the Planning Board's function is to make recommendations after looking at the broad effects of a zoning change. If the Planning Board does not think the changes would benefit the whole town, the proper move for the developers would be to ask the ZBA for a variance, Schmitt said.

The selectmen agreed with Schmitt and unanimously voted to postpone a decision until their Oct. 5 meeting.

The board did open the warrant to add the throwing of snow and ice on town streets to a list of bylaw violations punishable by a fine.

State bill may raise cost of insurance

Smith answers by pointing out that the bill has a provision which will help hospitals pay increasing personnel salaries. She states H.6000 provides a $60 million dollar fund precisely to help these hospitals pay for personnel.

Smith and O'Neill also disagree on whether or not the bill will help hospitals increase their efficiency.

The state health official says that the bill will encourage hospitals to convert existing unused facilities into facilities which address other health-care needs. For example, she says, many Massachusetts hospitals operate at about half of their capacity, an inefficient utilization level which drives up the cost of health care. Smith argues that the health care bill will encourage hospitals to convert unused acute-care space into sections which will accommodate patients with long-term nursing needs or mental health difficulties.

clean it up so he can build safe housing."

Tabbi's next step is asking the DEQE if they will supply a monitor for the site. Winchester's health department is not equipped to monitor the site itself.

Another part of the process that has yet to be completed is an operational plan. Tabbi said the DEQE has final approval on the plan, which will come from the engineering company that intends to clean the site for Marotta.

Murray said Marotta must get approval from the DEQE and a certificate of condition from the Winchester Conservation Commission. Only then, Murray said, can the cleanup begin in earnest.

A tentative schedule specifies cleanup activity from now until December and again from April to June 1988, Murray said. Once the site is cleaned up, Marotta will go through the process of getting building permits, variances and approval from the Conservation Commission, which has a say in the process because the site is on the Aberjona River.

MORTGAGE WEATHER REPORT.

They say that in New England if you don't like the weather, wait a minute. New England mortgage rates can be tough to predict, too. One way to gain the upper hand is with a Convertible Rate Mortgage from CambridgePort. That way you can start off at a low rate, and lock in an even lower rate when you see the chance. We have two sensible plans, both with one of the lowest lifetime caps around. And we don't charge you a fee to convert, which is the whole idea in the first place. If you're not sure which way the wind is blowing, now you can take the pressure.

Convertible Plan A. Pay half a point, float at a competitive adjustable rate with the opportunity to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 10.20%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.26%

Convertible Plan B. Pay two points, and we will give you an even better adjustable rate for the first year, then let it float until you decide to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 8.45%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.24%

Other Facts. No fee and minimal paperwork when you convert to a fixed rate. Convert anytime between months 13 and 60. Annual cap: 2%. Lifetime cap: 5%. Margin: 2.50%. For homes throughout Massachusetts call Rebecca Taber at 661-4900 to find out more.

Boston Lyric Opera

Boston Lyric Opera Company will present Benjamin Britten's The Turn of the Screw and Donizetti's Maria Stuarda this season.

The Turn of the Screw opens the Company's season on Oct. 16 at 8 p.m., with a second performance on Oct. 18 at 3 p.m. this haunting 20th-century opera, based on the novel by Henry James, is known as the perfect ghost story.

Maria Stuarda, Donizetti's compelling and controversial tale of the supposed meeting between Elizabeth, Queen of England, and Mary, Queen of Scots, will be performed Jan. 15 at 8 p.m. and Jan. 17 at 3 p.m.

In keeping with its tradition of making its operas accessible to the handicapped, this season's mountings will address the needs of both the hearing and visually impaired. BLOC will bring its highly successful and innovative shadow interpreted technique for the hearing impaired to The Turn of the Screw.

Each singer will be paired with a singer who physically and facially portrays the role using American Sign language. For the first time, an operatic production will utilize the shadow interpreted technique as an integral part of the artistic conception of the opera; both hearing and non-hearing audiences will experience a complete reaction to the two totally integrated art forms.

BLOC has also created a study tape for the visually impaired to introduce the historical background, plot, and music of Maria Stuarda. Although this tape is designed for the visually impaired, BLOC is offering the cassette to all ticket buyers for the cost of postage and handling only.

The Turn of the Screw and Maria Stuarda will be performed at Northeastern University's Alumni Auditorium, 360 Huntington Ave., Boston. Single ticket prices range from $5 to $17.50. Regular subscriptions are available from $17 to $30.

For the second season, the Company will its Opera In Process (free to subscribers), bringing together composer Roger Ames and librettist Laura Harrington for the creation of The Life of Martin Guerre. The informal performance will feature sections of the work-in-progress at the Gardner Museum on Feb. 18 at 8 p.m. For further information contact Boston Lyric Opera Company, 102 The Fenway, Boston, MA 02115; 267-1512.

The Kodo Drummers

Boston Concert Opera

The Boston Concert Opera season opens on Nov. 7 at 8 p.m. with Beethoven's Fidelio, under the baton of guest conductor Paul Nadler. Boston Concert Opera will be joined by Chorus pro Musica for this Symphony Hall performance. Last performed in Boston in 1976, the Boston Symphony Orchestra gave the only previous Symphony Hall performance in 1967 under Eric Leinsdorf.

David Stockton returns from his European residency at the National Opera of Belgium in December to conduct the Victorian Christmas concert on Dec. 20 at 3 p.m. at the Lafayette Hotel. A Boston tradition, the Victorian Christmas concert includes the famous Carol Sing with chorus and brass choir. Tickets for the Victorian Christmas are priced at $10.

Stockton remains in Boston to conduct performances of Franz Lehar's The Merry Widow at John Hancock Hall from Jan. 28 at 8 p.m. through Feb. 7.

Last staged in Boston in November 1964 by Richard Rogers at the Shubert Theatre, the fully costumed production will be directed by Tad Motyka.

The Merry Widow will be performed on Jan. 28 at 7 p.m.; Jan. 30 at 8 p.m.; Feb. 3 at 2 p.m.; Feb. 5 at 8 p.m.; and Feb. 7 at 3 p.m. Tickets for all performances are priced at $35, $25 and $12.

Verdi's Nabucco will close the season on April 10 at 8 p.m. at Symphony Hall.

Nabucco tells the story of the struggle between the Hebrews and the Babylonians and includes kings, slaves, lovers, treacherous siblings, shattered idols and miracles.

Tickets for the April 10 performance are priced at $35, $25 and $12.

Founded in 1975 by David Stockton, Boston Concert Opera concentrates on the music and the drama of opera while eliminating the need for scenery and special effects.

For further information about Boston's Concert Opera's season, including subscriptions, contact Boston Concert Opera at Box 459, Astor Station, Boston, MA 02123, 536-1166.

Opera Company of Boston

The Opera Company of Boston season includes Cherubini's Medee, which will be presented Jan. 22, 24, 27 and 31.

Noted Greek jeweler, Ilias Lalaounis has been commissioned to design Medee's jewels and the American sculptor Jon Gardella will create a Greek temple for the set, as well as a French opera drape or scenic drop.

The season also includes Dead Souls, a music drama by Rodion Shchedrin based on the satiric comedy by Gogol. The plot, according to Caldwell, concerns the ultimate tax shelter. Dead souls runs on March 16, 20, 25 and April 3.

Part of a Boston-wide Russian

Festival planned for March, Dead Souls will have a joint Boston-Moscow cast with 13 singers from the OCB performing with a like number from the Bolshoi Opera.

Sets and costumes by Val Leventhal will be constructed in Moscow.

For Dead Souls, the Bolshoi Opera will send a music coach to the Hub to work with the OCB singers. Shchedrin and his wife, prima ballerina Maya Plisetskaya, are also expected to come to Boston for the festival.

Soprano Sarah Reese will have the title role in this season's La Traviata, singing her first Violetta. La Traviata will be performed April 22, 24, 27 and May 1.

For further information, write to the Opera Company of Boston, P.O. Box 50, Boston, MA 02112.

Dance at the Wang

Twyla Tharp Dance opens the season at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts on Nov. 20-22, followed by the Virsky Ukrainian State Dance Company of the U.S.S.R., Feb. 5-7, a special appearance by Rudolf Nureyev and Friends, April 15-17, and the annual Boston springtime engagement of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theatre, May 3-8.

Since 1965, Twyla Tharp Dance has captivated audiences from around the world with its daring and innovative style.

The tentative Boston program will include Philip Glass' In the Upper Room, Simon Medley (music by Paul Simon), and Ballare, set to music by Mozart, and favorites from the Twyla Tharp Repertory.

The Virsky Ukrainian State Dance Company of the U.S.S.R., founded in 1937 by famed choreographers Pavel Virsky and Nikolai Bolotov, and last seen in Boston in 1967, is rich in humor and vitality. The dancer's impeccable skill, striking expressiveness and bright costumes have made this company popular far beyond the borders of the Soviet Union.

Since his defection from the Soviet Union, Rudolf Nureyev has thrilled audiences world-wide with his performances.

Joining Nureyev in this engagement will be leading soloists from renowned European ballet companies. The program includes Nureyev performing in Balanchine's Apollo, Maurice Bejart's provocative Songs of the Wayfarer, with music by Mahler, and Two Brothers by the young choreographer David Parsons, set to music by Stravinsky.

Highlighting the repertoire of the Alvin Ailey engagement is The Magic of Katherine Dunham, a revival of selected works by the seminal pioneer of black dance in America, including the legendary L'Aya and other Afro-Caribbean and Americana dances.

Dunham directed and performed with the first black professional dance company in America. She brought the dance, music and folklore of the West Indies, Brazil and Africa to the United States and 57 other countries from 1938-1963.

Subscription brochures for the 1987-88 Dance Series at The Wang Center for the Performing Arts are available by calling 482-2595 or by writing: Dance Subscription Series, The Wang Center, 270 Tremont St., Boston, MA 02116.

Dance Umbrella

The Dance Umbrella begins on Oct. 9 & 10 with Sankai Juku, the Japanese Buto dancers who have caused sensation and sold out performances around the world.

The company is renowned as the leading exponents of Buto, an avant-garde art form which expresses the emotions and impulses of life and death. They're back this year with the Boston premiere of Joman Sho — Homage to Prehistory.

Steve Kriekhaus makes his Boston debut on Oct. 23 & 24 with a show blending elements of mime, clowning, contact improvisation, street dance and modern dance.

By special arrangement with the Wang Celebrity Series, Dance Umbrella offers discount tickets to the Nov. 20 & 21 performances of Twyla Tharp Dance.

On Dec. 4, 5, & 6, Boston based company Jo Ha Kyu, performs Different House: Same Address. Co-directors Arawana Hayashi, choreographer and dancer, and Ed Howe, visual artist and architect will create a world of evolving sets, moods and movements as they explore both the real and the mythological worlds of Japan and Central Asia.

On Dec. 8 & 9, the National Dance Company of Senegal presents an elaborate show of

Mahaiwe Theatre hosts Hamlish

Marvin plays dramatic benefit

Hamlish plays for Berkshire Theatre

Marvin Hamlish, composer and pianist, will do a benefit concert for the Berkshire Theatre Festival on Oct. 11.

Hamlish is probably best known for composing A Chorus Line, the longest running musical on Broadway.

The concert will be Oct. 11, at 8:30 p.m. at the Mahaiwe Theatre in Great Barrington.

Ticket prices are $150 for a dinner party and orchestra seating; $50 for just orchestra seating; $35 for mezzanine seating; and $20 for gallery seating.

For ticket reservations call the BTF box office at (413) 298-5536. MasterCard, Visa and American Express are accepted.

The Price at the Lyric

Arthur Miller's play, The Price, is currently on the boards of the Lyric Stage, 54 Charles St., Boston, through Oct. 25.

The play revolves around two brothers who, in the midst of selling a houseful of furniture belonging to their late parents, confront the price each paid for choices made during the 1930's depression.

Performances are Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., and Sundays at 3 p.m. Ticket prices range from $10 to $13, depending on the day of the performance. For reservations call 742-8703. Tickets can also be purchased at Bostix and all Ticketron outlets.

Cartwright in Gloucester

Jim Cartwright lives in the north of England in Farnworth, Lancashire, where he was born. A few years ago, Cartwright's town very nearly achieved one hundred percent unemployment. No job, his wife pregnant, with nothing better to do, Cartwright wrote his first play, Road.

The play was workshopped at the Royal Court Theatre's tiny upstairs space. The rest is history. For Road, Cartwright won the coveted George Devine Award; the Plays and Players Award; the Drama Magazine Award; the Samuel Beckett Award; and the Thames TV Award.

Road ran a full season on the Royal Court's main-stage before touring England and playing for SRO runs at such illustrious venues as the Royal Shakespeare Company's theatre in Stratford-upon-Avon, the Bristol Old Vic, and others. Subsequent productions include an adaptation for television which was recently filmed by the BBC; an Irish production in Dublin; and its two American productions currently playing at The Remains Theatre, Chicago, and here at the Gloucester Stage Company.

The GSC mounting is the first American-language adaptation of Road, which was created by Cartwright with an assist from Israel Horowitz. Cartwright's latest work, a screenplay called Vroom, was recently made into a feature film that will be released in Great Britain in early winter. Jim Cartwright will be in residence in Gloucester during the entire run of Road.

Performances are Wednesday through Sunday, through Oct. 18. Curtain is 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Saturday, and 5 p.m. on Sunday. Ticket prices are $11 on Wednesday, Thursday and Sunday, and $14.50 on Friday and Saturday.

All performances are held at 267 East Main St., immediately before the entrance to Rocky Neck, Gloucester, MA 01930. For information and reservations call 281-4099.

What's On The Boards?

LE CIRQUE IMAGINAIRE, a two-act diversion created and performed by Victoria Chaplin and Jean Baptiste Thierree; presented by the American Repertory Theatre at the Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle St., Cambridge. Closed.

It's a pity that Le Cirque Imaginaire was in our midst for so short a stay! The opener of the American Repertory Theatre's Fall Festival proved the most refreshing and innovative diversion to be offered in many a moon...a soufflé...light and delectable! Each season the A.R.T. manages to uncover a unique attraction, an evening of glorious enchantment, and until something better comes along, Le Cirque Imaginaire (The Imaginary Circus) has to be it!

Le Cirque Imaginaire has achieved enormous success around the world since its debut at the Avignon Festival in 1971. Basically, it is a series of blackouts, some lengthy, some fleeting, but all guaranteed to keep a smile on your face. It is whimsical, infectious, endearing, and thoroughly entertaining!

This visit marked the New England premiere of the celebrated two-person circus created and performed by the husband and wife team of Jean Baptiste Thierree and Victoria Chaplin. It is a reverie of the one-ring circus, two hours of fun, frolic, and ingenious imagination for all who are young-at-heart.

Miss Chaplin is captivating, petite, waifish, sprite-like, innocent, with long, flowing black hair and large soulful eyes not unlike the familiar subjects found in Kean paintings...and very much her father Charlie's daughter! She assumes more the physical roles and, through the use of assorted masks, props and costumes, becomes all sorts of animals.

Thierree is a jovial comedian with the type of pleasant face you'd like as a friend. It's a warm, animated face with a perpetual glint of mischief and a goofy smile that's plastered on permanently...something like Red Skelton.

He's most winning whether he portrays a clown or a magician, juggler or puppeteer, pantomimist or cyclist. He appears in a parade of the most horrible wigs imaginable! But what makes him all the more engaging is his fumbling and bumbling: he attempts to conjure up a dog but only produces doggy doo. As the world's most delightful and worst magician, he manages to set back the profession a few hundred years!

Miss Chaplin executes the virtuosos cameos...on the tight rope she does full splits, a highland fling, and ballet. Soaring out over the audience, she is the ultimate trapeze artist. To spell her husband, she becomes an acrobat, a walking suitcase, a walking musical band, and a beautiful lady that plays a musical saw.

She is the huge spider on stilts and, in an ingenious segment, with the use of brightly colored fans of every size and hue, she transforms CATS, a musical in two acts based on Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats by T.S. Eliot; music by Andrew Lloyd Webber; directed by Trevor Nunn, with Gillian Lynne serving as associate director and choreographer; sets and costumes by John Napier; lighting design by David Hersey. With Joe Locarro, Calvin E. Remsburg, Roger Kachel, Douglas Graham, Frank Mastrone, Fred Anderson and Janene Lovullo. At the Shubert Theatre through Nov. 7.

If you want to find the meaning of what true happiness is, go see Cats!

What can be said about this blockbuster, winner of seven Tony Back alley cats wail a sweet serenade

Awards including Best Musical, that hasn't been said before? Even in this scenically pared-down version and with some of the principals not measuring up to the standards set by their counterparts during the show's first Hub visit, Cats remains fascinating, ingenious and one-of-a-kind!

Cats is the sort of musical that wears on you. If you've seen it before, you'll enjoy it even more the next time around. If you're planning to catch it for the very first time, familiarize yourself with T.S. Eliot's Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats, or, at the very least, read the poems (lyrics) printed inside the show album jacket. It will greatly enhance your appreciation of the show.

This production is no longer quite so spectacular the visual feast it once was (or still is on Broadway). Gone are the semi-thrust, the gutted procenium, the rubble and rub bish tumbling down the side aisles, and the overhead lights glittering like a million stars.

On stage, however, all is the same. The mounting oft times resembles a light and sound show (but only an inkling of the promise that was to blossom in all its glory in Starlight Express), what with a space ship (a huge old tire) lifting off with total thrust amidst a plethora of colored lights.

John Napier's set transports you to a corner of the feline world never seen by humans, a world of back alleys littered with discarded trash and junk, scaled to size as seen through the eyes of these small creatures.

It is a world of abandoned autos and old car batteries, discarded washing machines and refrigerators, dumped cartons and plastic containers, yogurt cups and coke cans, forsaken pots and pans, an isolated fork or knife, a lost sock, rags, and drying clothes hanging on a back porch clothesline.

Andrew Lloyd Webber has provided a great score that runs the gamut from rock to swing to ballad to liturgical music. Direction by Trevor Nunn remains tight and adroit. There is little spoken dialogue, one musical number segueing into another in a great flow of continuous, uninterrupted action and one fabulous dance routine after another.

The dance ensemble, under the helm of Gillian Lynne, is super, and Napier's costumes and make-up are vibrantly colorful and inventive. Actors meander up and down the aisles and members of the audience are invited onstage during intermission.

A hazy moon shines in the background as we are ushered into the world of Jellicle cats, a very special breed of cat, for Jellicle cats are black and white, rather small, and merry and bright.

They're cats who see in the dark and when they fall on their heads, they land on their feet. Jellicle cats have three names: a sensible family name; a second, fancier name, more particular and dignified; and a third, never heard by humans and known only to the cat world.

Jellicle cats meet once a year to attend the Jellicle Ball and it is here, in the first act, that we meet most of the characters. There's the old Gumbie cat; an orange cat named Jennyanydots, described by Munkustrap (Joe Locarro) in swing tempo with three back-up singers (a la Andrew Sisters); Rum Tum Tugger (Douglas Graham), the rock cat who does a Tom Jones takeoff; old Grizabella (Janene Lovullo), once the glamour cat, but now a faded beauty shunned by all with a stained coat that's tattered and torn.

There's fat, impeccably dressed Bustopher Jones (Frank Mastrone); Mungojerrie and Rumpleteazer, clowns and comedians and mischievous cats; ancient Deuteronomy (Calvin E. Remsburg), famous in proverb and famous in rhyme, the leader of the pack. We're introduced to the Rum-pus Cat (Fred Anderson) with flashing red eyes who frightens off a pack of savage dogs.

Then there's Asparagus (nicknamed Gus), the theatre cat (Mastrone), now a thin and shabby tabby, but, in his youth, the smartest of cats and the most ARIES (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — A romantic, secret tete-a-tete could add zing to your life. Accent your independence, trust your judgement — you'll be in the right place at the right time. You have chances to increase your income and lost articles are found.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — You could get some very good news about business or career. Private meetings and behind-the-scenes activities will benefit you now — go beyond apparent limitations. Gather information, be creative and follow your hunches.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Don't give something away for nothing and avoid self-deception. Your hopes, wishes and relationships with important people are favored — dreams could come true. Trust your first impressions and discard fears or doubts.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Travel and communications are accented — it's a good time to plan a prospective journey. Complete a project, let go of a burden and your career activities bring more prestige. Your popularity soars and social life sparkles.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — You can find the answers you seek and your financial picture brightens. Concentrate on reading, writing, studying and communicating information. Your position in career or business matters is probably stronger than you had thought.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — A new project could involve mate or partner and the public in general. Don't force issues with a loved one — curb extravagance and play the role of counselor and advisor. Romance could bloom and good news arrives from a distance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Utilize your own ideas and take a new approach to health, diet and duties at your workplace. Guard against super-independence with mate or partner — be flexible and compromise. Make concessions about budget matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Don't make rash or abrupt decisions about romance — play for time. Maintain a steady pace at work and don't let unexpected changes upset you. Be realistic about a loved one, see situations as they really are and keep a low profile.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Test out a new project before full-scale launching — review and revise where needed. Romance is highlighted and a love message could usher in new developments. Use your good business sense and you can make a lucrative deal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Use your bright wit, verbal and writing skills to succeed in all you do. Greater harmony on the home front is indicated if you guard against misunderstanding or self-deception. A deepening romance could lead to talk of marriage.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Take note of good ideas about money schemes, earning, buying and selling. Attend local affairs to meet those who can benefit your career future and catch up on correspondence or paper work. Spruce up and redecorate your home.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Your charm and good taste are evident to all now — put your personal plans into action! Finances could show a marked improvement as your enterprises succeed. Think big, express yourself creatively and make new beginnings.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

A solitary figure is often the subject of Ron Rizzi's paintings and drawings on exhibit at Bromfield Gallery. Rizzi's work is among the most somber of the great variety of art on view in Newbury Street galleries.

Newbury Street treats

Let's face it: Newbury Street is a heck of a lot of fun. Grumbling about its yuppie-elitist shops and beauty salons, expensive shoe stores, and "let's-look-and-be-looked-at" outdoor cafes doesn't alter the fact that every block is visually saturated with something for everyone.

Though the high rent and trendy address account for an emphasis on art's marketability, still, galleries are open to all. And admission is free to boot (as is the case with few museums these days).

The extended celebration of Art Newbury Street and (sometimes) splendid fall weather make now a fine time to "do" as many of the 34 galleries along the way as strike one's fancy. A full palette awaits.

In the tall picture-bay windows of Nielson Gallery are the big watercolor and charcoal works on paper by the late Porfirio DiDonna. Don't stop there. Go in and see the gallery filled with paintings and drawings of elegance and intensity that are in formal, personal and spiritual terms as completely realized as is possible. To experience these works is revelatory and enlightening.

Like Constantin Brancusi, DiDonna pared organic form down to its essence, bringing it to the point of becoming architectonic icon. The vertical orientation of form enhances its uplifting and spiritual qualities. Color and tone are light-filled. Marks that are deliberate and precise have a playful air, softening the confident curved line and creating spatial interplay with all the tension and movement of a game of Ping-Pong.

Beautiful, fragile, lyrical and powerful, DiDonna's works make for an experience that, alone, is worth the trip to Newbury Street. There's lots more, too.

Works on paper are also featured at Alpha Gallery. This one is a group exhibition and the real treat of the show is a Milton Avery watercolor and tempera, Hidden Bay. With a perfect sense of visual rhythm, Avery struck the balance between restraint and letting go. The work is marked by great energy, but a distinct lack of hysteria. Watery greens of the ocean and softly sunk-in browns of the earth swirl round each other in a quiet, gentle dance of nature.

At Pucker Saffrai Gallery Teri Malo's nature, in her monoprints and small oils, is still and silent. Tangerine skies dissolve into the horizon's hills and flood a crisply, delicately detailed landscape with the dreamy light of memory.

In the adjoining gallery, Joseph Ablow shows new still life paintings in which a doll adds a potent symbolic presence. Ablow's great feeling for the canvas's shape and corresponding color-shape organization within its boundaries is handsomely in evidence in the big horizontal Tables with Still Life and vertical Round Table. The artist also has a fine sensitivity to the range and evocative power of grays. He knows instinctively when to pull color out of its muted ground, then let it sink back in.

At once solemn and expressionistic, Ron Rizzi's works at Bromfield Gallery are charged with the drama of chiaroscuro, especially effective in the large charcoal drawings where broad black lines sear the surface and crackle hard against the paper's white at one point, then dissolve powdery into it at another.

The subject of most of Rizzi's paintings and drawings is public humiliation. Having received a fellowship to execute a series of works thematically linked to the Holocaust, Rizzi has explored and expanded on one or two particular acts of inhumanity. An unclothed woman sits above eye level on a large platform-like construction. She could be awaiting execution; her hands cover her face in a gesture that suggests fear, humility, prayer. The actual event represented is the public shaving of her head for violating a "moral code."

The power of Rizzi's imagery is diluted only when anatomical distortions, such as oversized feet, bring attention to themselves to no formal or expressionistic end.

Along with the seriousness of Rizzi's subject are richness and, often, dark beauty in his work. Look closely at the watercolors.

And look at the other galleries, too. Newbury Street viewing is a full and varied experience, with contrasts of every kind in abundance.

Nielson Gallery is located at 179 Newbury St. and exhibits DiDonna's work through Oct. 10. Call 266-4835. Alpha Gallery, 121 Newbury St., features Works on Paper through Oct. 7. Call 536-4465. Ablow and Malo exhibit at Pucker-Saffrai, 171-173 Newbury St., through Oct. 12. Call 267-9416. The work of Ron Rizzi is on view through Oct. 3 at Bromfield Gallery, 36 Newbury St. Call 262-7782.

gram of three Boston Ballet Premieres choreographed by three Scandinavian artists; a Russian version of the 19th century masterpiece Giselle; a tribute to George Balanchine; Bruce Wells' magical A Midsummer Night's Dream; and the full-length holiday favorite, The Nutcracker. All performances will be held at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts in Boston.

The full-length classic Giselle is the most celebrated ballet of the Romantic Era and Boston Ballet presents the version still performed and taught at the Kirov Ballet from Oct. 1-11.

In keeping with the popular holiday tradition, Boston Ballet will stage The Nutcracker from Dec. 3 to Jan. 3, including three school matinees and three additional performances presented by the Worcester County Music Association.

Featuring the familiar Tchaikovsky score and fairytale sets and costumes by Helen Senn and Herbert Pond, The Nutcracker is yuletide entertainment for the whole family.

From Feb. 10-14, Boston Ballet features an entire evening of world premieres. The Boston International Choreography Competition showcases bold, new dances created for the Company by innovative and promising artists from all over the world. The competition is designed with the purpose of encouraging and discovering young choreographers. Following the opening night performance, winners will be awarded gold, silver and bronze medals as well as cash prizes.

The Scandinavians, featuring three Boston Ballet premieres — Cullberg's masterful Miss Julie, Bournonville's ebullient Napoli Act III, and Lander's virtuoso Etudes will be presented from March 9 through March 13.

From April 6-10, Boston Ballet presents a Balanchine Festival. Three works are currently under consideration for an evening of tribute to this 20th century master of the dance: La Sonnambula, Concerto Barocco, and Bourree Fantasque.

Concluding the season is A Midsummer Night's Dream, running from May 12 to May 22. Based on Shakespeare's classic tale and set to Mendelssohn's incidental music, this story ballet in two acts is graced with an elegant combination of magic, romance and comedy. Thirty Boston Ballet School children perform as elves, fairies and wood sprites will join the full Company.

Subscription prices are $130.50, $106.50, $90.50, $74.50 and $180.50 (dress circle prices include a $50 tax-deductible contribution to the Boston Ballet) for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings and Sunday matinee; $114.50, $93.50, $79.50, $65.60 and $164.50 (including contribution) for Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee. All prices include a $2.50 Wang Center Restoration Fee.

Single ticket prices are $32.50, $26.50, $22.50, $18.50 and $42.50 (dress circle prices include a $10 tax-deductible contribution to the Boston Ballet) for all performances.

All prices include a fifty cent Wang Center Restoration Fee. Curtain times are 7 p.m. for Thursday opening nights. All other evening performances are at 8 p.m. Matinees are at 2 p.m.

Chorus pro Musica

The Chorus pro Musica's season opens on Nov. 7 at 8 p.m. when the Chorus joins conductor Paul Nadler and Boston Concert Opera for a Symphony Hall performance of Beethoven's Fidelio.

Chorus pro Musica celebrates the holiday season with its annual Christmas concert at First Church in Cambridge in Harvard Square on Dec. 17 at 8 p.m. and Old South Church in Copley Square on Dec. 18 at 8 p.m. Conducted by Musical Director Donald Palumbo, the Christmas concert features antiphonal works for brass and chorus, traditional and less-familiar carols, and an audience sing-along.

Emanuel Music's Craig Smith will lead Chorus pro Musica in a Peter Sellars production of Handel's Theodora on March 5 at 8 p.m.

The season closes with a Jordan Hall performance of Ralph Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 1, A Sea Symphony, on May 1 at 8 p.m., under the baton of Donald Palumbo.

Subscriptions for Chorus pro Musica's season are currently available and are priced at $56.50 and $40.75. For a detailed brochure, and to order subscriptions, write to Chorus pro Musica, 645 Boylston St., Boston, MA 02116, or call 267-7442.

Handel and Hayden Society

The Handel & Hayden Society will begin their season on Oct. 27 with a performance of Mozart's dramatic Requiem, and will include works ranging from Handel's famous Water Music and Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 to Prokofiev's Classical Symphony. Among the many guest soloists are pianist Keith Jarrett and sopranos Emma Kirby and Sylvia McNair.

Beginning his second year as artistic director, Christopher Hogwood conducts four of the six concerts, with Jeffrey Rink, assistant conductor, leading the annual performance of Messiah and Thomas Dunn, principal guest conductor, taking the baton for a concert of works by Beethoven and Handel.

On Oct. 27 and 30, Hogwood conducts Mozart Requiem (K.626) and his Serenade in B-flat for Winds (Gran Partita, K.361). The Requiem, which was left unfinished at Mozart's death, has been reconstructed and completed by Richard Maunder, in the first authentic twentieth century reappraisal of this masterpiece.

Joining the H & H Chorus and period instrument orchestra for the Requiem is Sylvia McNair, soprano, Catherine Robbin, mezzo soprano, Jon Garrison, tenor and David Evitts, baritone.

On Dec. 4 and 6, assistant conductor Jeffrey Rink leads the Society in a performance of Handel's seasonal favorite, Messiah, featuring Lorraine Hunt, soprano, Karen Lykes, alto, and Jon Humphrey, tenor. Completely sold out last season, this annual performance is Boston's most cherished tradition.

On Jan. 14 and 17, famed jazz pianist Keith Jarrett demonstrates his versatility in both the jazz and classical idioms, performing Mozart's Piano Concerto in C (K. 467, Elvira Madigan) and a solo jazz improvisation. Also on the program will be a Haydn symphony and Prokofiev's Classical Symphony, a twentieth century compliment to Haydn.

On Feb. 12 and 14, principal guest conductor Thomas Dunn returns to the podium to lead the orchestra in a performance of the three suites that constitute Handel's complete Water Music and Beethoven's Symphony No. 1.

On March 25 and 27, Hogwood continues the H & H Society tradition of performing a different Handel oratorio each season with La Resurrezione, written in Italy when the composer was 23; La Resurrezione was Handel's first oratorio on a sacred subject.

Emma Kirby, the renowned baroque soprano, appears as the Angel together with Catherine Robbin, mezzo soprano, Jeffrey Thomas, tenor, and David Thomas, bass, as Lucifer.

On April 28 and 30, Hogwood concludes the season with an all Vivaldi program.

Subscriptions are available for the series at Symphony Hall, Mass. and Huntington Avenues in Boston.

Further subscription information may be obtained by calling or writing the Handel & Hayden Society office, 158 Newbury St., Boston, MA 02116, or by calling 266-3605.

The Boston Symphony

For the first program of the current subscription series of the Boston Symphony Orchestra Seiji Ozawa joined by Tanglewood festival chorus conductor John Oliver, who conducts the final BSO centennial commission, Donald Martino's The White Island, with the Tanglewood festival chorus and the orchestra.

Ozawa concludes the program with Mahler's Symphony No. 1.

With this season Ozawa continues his four-year survey of the complete symphonies and song cycles of Mahler. In addition to Mahler's Symphony No. 1, Ozawa conducts Mahler's Fourth Symphony with soprano Kathleen Battle and the Songs from Des Knaben Wunderhorn with, in their BSO debuts, mezzo-soprano Brigitte Fassbaender and baritone Thomas Allen.

Ozawa continues his survey of Haydn's London Symphonies as well as a partial cycle of Bruckner's symphonies. Ozawa also includes a concert performance of Richard Strauss's Elektra with Hildegard Behrens in the title role and Christa Ludwig as Klytemnestra; tenor James King as Aegisth and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus will also participate in these performances, with other soloists to be announced.

Ozawa's programs also feature pianist Murray Perahia performing Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 5, the Emperor, the Brahms Symphony No. 3 on a program with two Stravinsky works, the Symphony of Psalms with the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, and the Capriccio for piano and orchestra with Peter Serkin; Anne-Sophie Mutter performing Beethoven's Violin Concerto on a program also featuring the Boston premiere of Toru Takemitsu's Dream/Windows; Yo-Yo Ma as soloist in Shostakovich's Cello Concerto No. 1; and the first BSO performances of Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 2, Lobgesang, also with the Chorus.

Kathleen Battle joins Ozawa and the orchestra for performances of Poulenc's Stabat Mater and Gloria.

In addition, Ozawa leads the Boston premiere of the Symphony No. 7 by Hans Werner Henze.

During the season Ozawa shares the podium with returning guest conductors Kurt Masur, Gennady Rozhdestvensky, and Charles Dutoit, among others.

Yuri Temirkanov makes his BSO conducting debut leading the orchestra in Weber's Overture to Euryanthe, Tchaikovsky's Suite No. 4, Mozartiana, and Dvorak's Symphony No. 8.

In his BSO debut, Kurt Sanderling leads the orchestra in two programs of works by Haydn, Bruckner, Mozart, and Shostakovich.

Mitsuko Uchida, performing Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 22 in E-flat, K. 482, joins Sanderling and the orchestra for his second program. BSO Assistant Conductor Carl St. Clair leads the orchestra in Dvorak's Carnival Overture, Karel Husa's Music for Prague in its symphony orchestra version, and two Ravel works, the Piano Concerto in G with soloist Cecile Licad and the Rapsodie espagnole.

Charles Dutoit returns to the Symphony Hall podium with Mussorgsky's Prelude to Khovanshchina Gubaidulina's Offertorium with violinist Gidon Kremer, and the Mussorgsky/Ravel Pictures at an Exhibition.

Edo de Waart leads a program of music by Stravinsky, Haydn, and Strauss.

Kurt Masur returns as a guest conductor to conduct the Brahms German Requiem with soprano Sylvia McNair, baritone Jorma Hynninen, and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, John Oliver, conductor.

Masur's second programs includes Pfitzner's Overture to Das

Kathchen von Heilbronn, Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto with Shlomo Mintz in his first Symphony Hall appearances with the orchestra, and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony.

Soviet conductor Gennady Rozhdestvensky, in his first Symphony Hall appearances with the BSO since 1978, conducts a program pairing Haydn's Symphony No. 45, Farewell, with the U.S. premiere of Aldred Schnittke's Symphony No. 1.

Rozhdestvensky also conducts an all-Russian program of works by Rimsky-Korsakov, Prokofiev, and Stravinsky. Viktoria Postnikova is featured on the second program in Prokofiev's Piano Concerto No. 2.

Esa-Pekka Salonen makes his Symphony Hall conducting debut with two programs of music by Dukas, Haydn, and Sibelius, and the Boston premiere of Witold Lutoslawski's Symphony No. 3. Violinist Cho-Liang Lin joins Salonen and the orchestra for the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto.

Ozawa and the Boston Symphony Orchestra also present their traditional three-concert New York series in Carnegie Hall. In addition to these Carnegie Hall concerts, the BSO and Ozawa perform in Avery Fisher Hall, New York City, and in Hartford, Connecticut.

The 1987-88 subscription season offers subscribers 21 different series choices, including a wide selection of short series options. The various series range from four concerts to the entire season of 23 performances. In addition, an eight concert Open Rehearsal series takes place on Wednesday evenings.

Oct. 4 at Hingham High School, at 5 p.m.; Oct. 16 at the N.E. Cultural Arts Center, Haverhill, at 12:30 p.m.; Oct. 17 at St. Anselm's College, Manchester, N.H. at 8 p.m.; Oct. 18 at Randolph High School in Randolph, at 2 p.m.; Oct. 19-20 at Zeiterion Theater, New Bedford, at 9:30 a.m.; Oct. 23 at McCarthy Middle School, Chelmsford, at 7 p.m.; Oct. 25 at Hopkinton High School, Hopkinton, at 2 p.m.; Oct. 27 at North Walpole School, Charlestown, N.H. at 7 p.m.; and Nov. 1 at Lincoln-Sudbury High School, Sudbury, at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Snow White is choreographed to the magical music of Jules Massenet. Costume design is by Sheridan Heyns, Boston Ballet wardrobe supervisor, and scenic design by Lewis Folden, creator of the sets and costumes for Bruce Wells' A Midsummer Night's Dream.

Originated by the Brothers Grimm and made famous by its Disney adaptation, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs is the story of a young princess whose life is threatened by her evil stepmother who cannot bear the fact that Snow White is more beautiful than she. Snow White escapes to the forest where the Seven Dwarfs live, but a magical mirror reveals Snow

White's hiding place to her stepmother, the Queen.

Disguised as a beggar woman, the Queen entices Snow White to take a bite from a poisoned apple. Appearing to be dead, Snow White falls into a deep sleep, and only a kiss from her true love can awaken her.

Snow White is truly brought to life by the sets and costumes that perfectly complement the talented dancers of Boston Ballet II.

Boston Ballet II will also be performing a varied program of three to five ballets from their repertory at three other locations: Oct. 3 at Springfield High School, Springfield, VT, at 8 p.m.; Oct. 28 at Stoneham Middle School, Stoneham, at 10 a.m.; and Oct. 30 at Caribou Fine Arts Center, Caribou, Maine, at 7 p.m.

Featuring the works of all New England based choreographers, the program will include Karl Condon's Re:Play; Gerri Houlihan's Little Night Dances; Clara Ramona and Ramon de los Reyes' Capriccio Espagnol; Bruce Wells' Glazounov Variations; E. Virginia William's Sea Alliance; and Boston Ballet II Director Laura Young's Champ Dances.

For more information, call 542-1406.

What's On the Boards?

Geese, doves and rabbits litter the stage herself into a crab, a peacock, and a pre-historic monster. The sequence is totally hypnotic and what Miss Chaplin accomplishes with these minimal props is amazing!

Thierree is forever tickling the funny bone. He toys with the audience, presenting age-old tricks and then, beaming with pride, reveals their secrets. His awful pranks draw good-natured groans. He appears in matched suit, overcoat, suitcase, even the banana he devours on stage.

He gives a basic lesson about all sorts of fish...in French, which is riotous without even understanding the language! He plays tunes as a bell-ringer, then manipulates a coffee pot puppet that actually pours!

The alternate bits between husband and wife become a contest of one-upmanship.

As Miss Chaplin plays the calliope, Thierree secrets a rabbit in a top hat; when he attempts to retrieve it, it has become mammoth in size. Then he places Miss Chaplin in a coffin-like box and proceeds to cut her in thirds, but he forgets how to replace the center segment of the box! By the time the first act ends, what with its botched up prestidigitation, the floor is littered with sliced vegetables, six howling geese, two chirping doves, a pair of wandering rabbits (and a partridge in a pear tree)!

The finale of the show is a stunning and magnificent turn in which the pair, using many silken parasols of all sizes and colors, transform themselves into the flora and fauna of the deep sea, depicting the life cycle of mating and survival, devouring and death.

Backed by a great sound track, Le Cirque Imaginaire is crammed with hilarious hi-jinks. The effort invested had to be awesome! Technically, this, the biggest little show on earth, is perfect!

Continuing in repertory in the Fall Festival through Oct. 10 are the revivals of Robert Brustein's landmark adaptation of Luigi Pirandello's Six Characters in Search of an Author and Andrei Serban's mounting of Bertolt Brecht's The Good Woman of Setzuan.

A look at the colorful country of Kenya at the Museum of Science in Boston features artifacts including personal and traditional items from Kenya's tribes. Special weekend activities include a Kenyan marketplace, the DeAma Battle African dance troupe, Kenyan cooking, arts and crafts and music demonstrations. Call 589-0250.

celebrated of actors (his forte is character parts) when he was known as the Terror of the Thames. In what becomes a delightful comic opera on a pirate ship, a show within a show, Gus recreates his most triumphant role in Grolwtiger's Last Stand.

We're intrigued by Macavity (Anderson), a criminal cat not unlike Mac the Knife, a fiend in feline shape...a monster of depravity...who meets an electrifying end! Then, there's Skimbleshanks, the railway cat, and the greatest magician of them all, Mr. Mistoffelees (Roger Kachel).

The second act features a number of star turns, is lighter in concept, and more in keeping with American musical comedy. Regrettably, Lovullo's singing leaves one unmoved. While she does possess volume and range, her voice is totally void of sensitivity and timbre when she renders the show's sole commercial hit Memory. No longer is the song haunting and plaintive. Nor is Mastrone nearly as effective in the role of Gus as some of his predecessors.

But all in all, Cats is the cats pajamas...or should I say the cat's meow!

What To Cook

Singing is a part of cooking in Malawi

Story by Karen Kenyon
Copley News Service

"The ingredients in our African food are not that different from ingredients available here in the United States, except that we did sometimes eat giant flying red ants."

The speaker is Alice Princess Msumba Siwundhla, Ph.D., granddaughter of a tribal chief in Malawi, Africa.

In fact, it has been a long time since Siwundhla sampled a red ant (inswa in Chichewa, the language of Malawi). Now living in the United States, the woman is a nationally recognized author ("Alice Princess" and "My Two Worlds") and lecturer (to over 800 groups in 50 states).

The truth is that food of Siwundhla's native Malawi is in some ways like an exotic Southern Sunday dinner. A typical meal might include chicken or fish; an almost dumpling sort of staple called nsima, cooked vegetables (cabbage, spinach, greens); rice or hominy and condiments such as curry or red pepper piripiri to spice the meal. Even the emphasis on hospitality is similar to that of the Old South.

According to the dynamic woman, who proudly speaks of her background, there is no better way to share a culture than through food.

"In Malawi," she says, "cooking is an all-day affair — and we eat what is seasonal. We always woke up in the mornings and started gathering food for our meals, preparing the pit with coal, collecting wood, bringing the water from the river, grinding the ufa (flour). Our lives evolved around food — and food was a labor of love."

The cooking, she said, was done in the dirt with coals — "A long way from our microwave cooking. What took us eight hours to cook then can now be prepared in eight minutes!"

"Cooking was a social event for the women of my tribe," says Siwundhla, "and all the news and gossip of the day were conveyed as the women cooked and prepared food together. The women were the newspapers," she said, "the day's entertainment. In the late '70s I visited my family and it was still the same (as in Siwundhla's childhood)."

"And singing is a part of cooking and of all the tasks of the day," she said. "Women sing as they grind maize, as they carry water pots (on their heads) and as they nurse their babies."

Women have always been the cooks, and yet when the Europeans hired cooks, it was the men who were hired. "The Europeans thought they were getting the best cooks," she said, "but the truth is, the men didn't want their women cooking away from the villages."

According to Siwundhla it is easy to duplicate the native dishes of her country. Nearly all the ingredients used in traditional African cooking are easily found in U.S. stores and markets.

"Growing up, I didn't even know the word recipe," she says. "In our language there is no word for recipe. People call recipes 'ujeni,' which means 'something that has no name.' When the missionaries would invite me to dinner, I would reciprocate. They liked my food, and so asked for a recipe."

So she learned to annotate the methods for cooking foods that had been passed on to her orally from her grandmother and friends.

"We spoke in terms of a fistful of ufa (flour)." Even today her recipes often say "a teacup" (rather than a cup) simply because the teacup was used as the measuring container.

Some terms are slightly different. Monkeynuts, an ingredient called for in many recipes, are actually peanuts.

The staple of Malawi, nsima, is traditionally made from flour based in cassava, rice or maize (corn). Though cassava flour is not easily found, rice or corn flour can be used.

The traditional meal in Malawi, served usually once a day (at the most twice), always includes nsima, which looks like small white golf balls, is a hard, saltless porridge, and is served in a covered beaded basket (nsengwa).

"If you mention nsima to Africans, they applaud," she said laughing. "Nsima is a staple in Malawi, as poi is in Hawaii, as pasta is in Italy. It is rare to find nsima in America though. To not have nsima," says Siwundhla, "is what my GoGo (grandmother) would call starvation!" Nsima is always accompanied by ndiwa, which is either a vegetable, beans, fish, chicken or beef. "Most often the accompaniment is a vegetable dish or fish, such as trout, perch or herring, since we lived near Lake Nyasa (now called Lake Malawi)."

Siwundhla feels the day for African food has come. "It has always bothered me that African cuisine does not seem to get the same attention as food from other parts of the world. Now it is popular to wear African style clothing, read books about Africa, and go to movies about Africa. Why not eat African food? Because I am 'out of Africa' I'd love to contribute this."

Following are a few of the recipes from Alice Princess Siwundhla's collection:

This is a celebration dish with an unusual combination of texture, flavor and color. Traditionally served to special guests, this stew can be accompanied by rice, hominy or nsima.

NDIWO ZA NKHUKU YOKAZINGA YO SAKANIZA NDI NYAMA YA NGOMBE YOKAZINGA (Stewed Chicken Mixed With Stewed Beef)

¾ to 1 pound boneless beef shoulder or rump or round steak, trimmed of fat and cut into 1½ inch cubes

1 green bell pepper, cut into 1-inch squares

½ teaspoon salt

Freshly ground black pepper (about 1/8 teaspoon or to taste)

1 or 2 Japanese eggplants OR 1 medium eggplant

2 medium onions (or 1 bunch wild onions), chopped

1 bouquet of herbs: parsley, rosemary and bay leaf

4 large or 8 medium ripe tomatoes

2 spoons of boiling water

2 spoons peanut oil

1 chicken, cut into pieces (skinned if desired) for finger food.

Trim and cut meat and green pepper. Mix salt with pulverized black pepper, and roll meat cubes into mixture. In a preheated heavy pot, sear meat. Remove meat, then brown chicken and cook until done.

Peel eggplants, slice in ½-inch rounds. Cover with cold salted water and soak at least ½ hour.

While eggplant is soaking, brown onions in cooking oil, then add small amount of boiling water and herb bouquet made of 3 sprigs of parsley, a sprig of rosemary and bay leaf. Now peel and add tomatoes, cut into wedges, cooking mixture down to chutneylike consistency. Add browned meat and chicken.

Remove eggplant slices from water, pat dry with paper towels and then brown slices in hot oil. Scatter eggplant rounds and green peppers on top of meat/chicken mixture. Simmer, covered, over very low heat for half an hour or so. Continue to simmer until chicken is tender, but not dry. This should take another 25 to 35 minutes. Mix gently. Correct seasoning. Simmer 5 more minutes.

Yields 6 servings.

Note: This dish will improve if allowed to stand overnight. It is an excellent one for plan-ahead dinners. Just reheat slowly without a cover and serve hot.

NDIWO ZA MPIRU WOTENDURA (Mustard Greens With Groundnut Meal)

2 bunches fresh mustard greens

Water

¼ teaspoon salt

1 bunch green onions, chopped

8 ounces cherry tomatoes

½ teaspoon crushed pepper

4 ounces peanut butter or raw groundnut meal

2 ounces water

Trim any tough stems from mustard greens and carefully wash greens. Hold 3 or 4 leaves together and tear into small even pieces. Bring some water to boil. Add salt and greens at once. Cook until greens are tender. Turn them upside down and add chopped onions, whole cherry tomatoes and pepper. Continue to cook until top ingredients are somewhat limp. Form a creamy paste with peanut butter. Pour smooth paste over entire surface. Cook slowly 10 minutes. Stir to blend mixture and continue to cook until right consistency is derived. Serve with nsima or rice.

Baked plantains are served as an accompaniment to main courses.

NTHOCHI ZOKAZINGA (Baked Bananas)

4 ripe bananas or ripe plantains
2 spoons lemon juice
¼ cup dark brown sugar
Grated rind of 1 lemon
5 tablespoons butter, melted
½ teaspoon cinnamon (optional)

Pour lemon juice over brown sugar; mix in grated rind. Pour in melted butter. Stir. Peel bananas. Slice in half lengthwise, or leave whole if so desired. Slowly roll bananas in butter-sugar mixture to coat completely. Arrange neatly in a baking pan. Bake in 350 F oven 15 minutes or until tender. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Serve piping hot.

NDIWO ZA MANDANDA (Egg Stew)

1 cup peanut oil
6 medium ripe tomatoes, cubed
4 medium onions, chopped
6 boiled eggs, shelled and pierced all over with a toothpick

¼ teaspoon ground red pepper
1 tablespoon mild Indian curry powder

1 teaspoon salt
½ cup boiling water

Heat oil in deep frying pan. Add cubed tomatoes and chopped onions. Mix well. Add ground red pepper, curry powder and salt. Sauté the mixture well. Immerse pierced whole or halved hard-cooked eggs in mixture. By piercing the eggs, the tomato sauce and seasonings are absorbed. Add boiling water, cover and cook slowly 12 minutes. Serve on a bed of fluffy rice.

Rascals at Goodspeed

The Little Rascals, a new musical based on the ever-popular Our Gang characters, will premiere at the Goodspeed Opera House in East Haddam, Connecticut, this fall, with performances beginning Oct. 7.

The Little Rascals has music and lyrics by composer Joe Raposo. The book for Rascals, featuring the high-spirited Our Gang ragamuffins of the twenties and thirties, is by Michael Loman.

Rascals is directed by Robert Nigro, with musical direction by Lynn Crigler, choreography by Marcia Milgrom Dodge, scenery designed by James Leonard Joy, costumes by Franne Lee and lighting by Craig Miller.

Franne Lee is the producer for this premiere at the Goodspeed Opera House, Michael P. Price, executive director.

Curtain times for The Little Rascals are Wednesday through Friday at 8 p.m.; Saturday at 5 and 9 p.m.; and Sunday at 2 and 6 p.m.; with a Wednesday matinee at 2:30 p.m. For tickets call the Goodspeed Box Office, (203)873-8668.

Volcano Saga at ICA

The Institute of Contemporary Art will present Volcano Saga, a multi-media performance art by Joan Jonas, on Oct. 2 and 3, at the ICA Theatre, 955 Boylston St., Boston.

The performance is a contemporary adaptation of the Laxdaela Sage, a 17th century Icelandic story of tragedy, romance and history.

Through the artist's expressive use of projected video, 35 mm slides and props, Jonas explores the heroic nature of women's roles in culture. The main character, Gudrun, generally regarded as the first female protagonist in Western literature, is interpreted by Jonas as a free-spirit who asserts her independence despite her lack of opportunities.

Parallel aspects of life in the 20th century are suggested by drawing live on the stage, projected large-scale video images of the landscape, slides, text recitation and music composed by Alvin Lucier. Jonas retains the historic quality of the original folk tale, family saga and heroine's love story, in her adaptation.

Jonas' work engages themes of self-exploration through the recognition of formal and art-historical issues — forma which reflect traditions established in the 1970s. Investigating autodocumentary, Jonas characteristically flattens, dislocates and alters the perception of space in her performances.

A recipient of the Polaroid

Video Art Award, Jonas was formally trained as a sculptor. Since the late 1960s, she has been working in multi-media performance, theater, dance and video. Her work is central to the emergence and subsequent history of performance art throughout the 1970s, and its extension into the video medium.

Tickets to Volcano Saga are $8 for general admission, $6 for ICA members.

Ledbetter is guest lecturer

Steven Ledbetter will return as guest lecturer for The Boston Lyric Opera's lecture on Britten's The Turn of the Screw on Oct. 4 at 6:30 p.m. (preceded by hors d'oeuvres from 5:30 p.m.) at The French Library, 53 Marlborough St., Boston.

Well-known to concert audiences for the breadth of his musical experience and knowledge, Ledbetter is now in his seventh year as resident musicologist and program annotator with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Since receiving his Ph.D. in Musicology from New York University, he has taught at both Dartmouth College and NYU and has held visiting professorships at Harvard University and at Brooklyn College's Institute for Studies in American Music.

Ledbetter's interests range from the masters of Italian madrigal style through all aspects of musical theater. He is particularly noted for his research on turn-of-the-century Boston composers as well as his expertise in the field of Gilbert and Sullivan operas.

Tickets are $6, seniors and students, $5, and subscribers, $4. For tickets and information contact the Boston Lyric Opera Company, 102 The Fenway, Boston, MA 02115 or call 267-1512.

Remembrance plays at Huntington

Kim Hunter, heralded for originating the role of Stella in Tennessee Williams' A Streetcar Named Desire, will play the part of Theresa Donaghy in Graham Reid's Remembrance, which opens the Huntington Theatre Company's season.

Under the direction of Munson Hicks, Remembrance plays through Oct. 18 at the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Avenue, Boston.

Set against the background of violence-torn Belfast, Remembrance tells the contemporary story of Theresa and Bert, a widow and widower in their sixties, who begin an unlikely romance which crosses the line between their Catholic and Protestant backgrounds. Blending compassion with humor, Graham Reid has created a sensitive story full of hope.

Remembrance will have an ensemble cast of six: Kim Hunter as Theresa Donaghy, Emery Battis as Bert Andrews, Ross Bickell as Bert's son, Victor Andrews, Monica Merriam as Victor's wife, Jenny Andrews, Robin Moseley and Susan Pellegrino as Theresa's daughters, Deirdre and Joan.

Arlington man to appear opposite Kim Hunter

Emery Battis, a native of Arlington, and a veteran of more than five decades as a professional actor, will appear at the Huntington Theatre for the first time opposite Kim Hunter.

Battis' career began at the Cambridge Summer Theatre where he appeared in Othello with Paul Robeson and Jose Ferrer.

At the Great Lakes Shakespeare Festival, Battis played such roles as King Lear and King Henry in Henry IV. Among 54 roles at the Long Wharf Theatre in New Haven, he performed in Juno and the Paycock, You Can't Take It With You, Macbeth and The Seagull, to name a few.

Battis also toured in The Magnificent Yankee with James Whitmore and Misalliance with Lynn Redgrave and Irene Worth.

Remembrance marks the Huntington directorial debut of Munson Hicks, who maintains dual careers as actor and director and has been a featured performer in four previous Huntington productions.

Remembrance was commissioned by the Lyric Theatre in Belfast, where it had its premiere in 1984. Its first American presentation was this year in Chicago.

Graham Reid has written six stage plays, five of which had their first productions in Dublin, Ireland.

The designs of Remembrance will feature the collaborative efforts of set designer John Falabella, costume designer Susan Tsu, and lighting designer Jackie Manassee, all returning to the Huntington.

Preview times are Saturday, Sept. 26 at 8 p.m., Sunday, Sept. 27 at 7 p.m., and Tuesday, Sept. 29 at 8 p.m. Curtain for opening night, Wednesday, Sept. 30, is 7 p.m., and time for the final performance on Sunday, Oct. 18, is 2 p.m.

Ticket prices range from $12 to $27. Tickets are available at the box office, 264 Huntington Ave., Boston, or charge by phone by calling (617) 266-3913. VISA, MasterCard and American Express accepted. For information regarding group sales call 266-0800.

CAR CARE CORNER

By Dan Hogan,
Service Manager

Every time you buy gas, check the oil. The oil level should always be between the full and add lines when the engine is warm. When you drive into a gas station for fuel, let the car sit for a few minutes before the attendant checks the oil. This permits the oil in the system to drain back into the oil pan for an accurate reading. Never overfill the system with oil, or you may lose power in the engine. You can let almost anything happen to your car, but never, never let it run out of oil.

The technicians at PETER FULLER OLDS are ASE certified. We keep a computerized history of all cars serviced here to notify you of preventative maintenance. Open 8-5. Tel. 924-8100. M.C., Visa & A/E accepted. We are located within walking distance to public transportation. Come to PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq., "Olds National Service Award Winner."

RE/MAX franchises come to New England

RE/MAX, an international franchise extending across the continent from Hawaii to Newfoundland, Alaska to the Dominican Republic, has finally arrived in the New England states offering record numbers of home buyers and sellers "Above The Crowd" service. Rose Previte DiBella, owner of RE/MAX All United Realty in Winchester and the soon to be opened RE/MAX All United Realty in Arlington, is excited about the RE/MAX concept and its ramifications to the seller, buyer and real estate sales agent and the industry as a whole.

RE/MAX has been written up in Forbes, Wall Street Journal, INC., Newsday and Entrepreneur magazine. Entrepreneur magazine's most recent Franchise 500 named RE/MAX "The fastest-growing real estate franchise in the United States and the fifth fastest-growing of all franchise networks." In markets as large as Chicago and as small as Bigfork, Montana, RE/MAX sales associates average three times as many real estate transactions per year as other full-time agents. Entrepreneur further states, "In 1986 RE/MAX agents totaled $24.4 billion in residential sales garnered from over 287,000 individual residential transactions. Growing at 40% per year since 1977 (in effect doubling every 2.5 years). That is good news for the public.

Dave Liniger founded RE/MAX in Denver, Colorado back in 1973 in the midst of bad market conditions. His idea took flight to "Soar Above the Crowd". The operation began as a one-office real estate firm built around a compensation system that promised its sales agents "Real Estate Maximums". The concept would attract the best the industry breeds into RE/MAX — and hold them there. There would be no part-timers and no beginners. By 1977 RE/MAX had grown, both in the number of top-producing agents and in market share. The RE/MAX Concept — which says, "agents who earn their keep should keep what they earn" — was now a proven entity.

Today, over 17,000 RE/MAX agents are, as Liniger says, "In business for themselves but not by themselves." RE/MAX is currently gaining about one franchise and 17 sales agents every business day. The RE/MAX International Network is recognized as an established real estate leader throughout the United States and Canada. The reason behind this rapid growth is the public's ever-increasing demand for higher quality in the real estate profession — the kind of quality that is synonymous with RE/MAX, says Mrs. DiBella.

According to RE/MAX Vice President Bob Fisher, "The RE/MAX broker-owner's job is to make sure his agents stay with him and he does that by making them as happy as possible, supplying them with private corporate quarters, the latest state-of-the-art equipment and the tools for their trade. By contrast, a conventional broker/owner's job is to be a motivator and a teacher. People come to them with no knowledge, no investment. Relying on beginners or part-timers to fill their ranks. They are trained with the hopes of becoming good agents with his help. They surrender up to 50% of every commission they earn to the broker/owner. The August, 1987 issue of INC. magazine states "The Washington, D.C. Trade Association published an extensive survey-generated datum with regard to the average gross income for real estate agents. That number last year was $14,475". The other half of the commission went to the Broker/Owner of the company.

Some sales associates, however, earn a great deal more than the average. However, even if they are on a higher commission split, i.e. 60-40, or 70-30 or what have you, out of every commission they earn they have to "pay" their owner/broker $4 or $3 out of every $10 they earn, a sizeable sum, even after the sales agent covered the office expenses the agency had incurred on his/her behalf. If a sales agent is bringing in four, five or more times the average commission income necessary to pay for office expenses, other agents must be contributing far less to the office, and some not at all. Therefore, the "hot-shots" not only carry their own share of expenses and profit burden, but they must subsidize the less-than-average agent and the training of the newcomer as well. Furthermore, surveys indicate that 8 out of 10 sales agent recruits do not stay beyond a year or two. Therefore, much of the teaching and overhead lavished on them are liabilities, the trainees do not pay their own way. When a leader is created, they no longer need motivation and instructions and having to pay 50%, 40% or 30% of their commission income to their owner/broker is a heavy price to pay. This is where RE/MAX comes in.

The good agent is now ready and willing to pay his share of overhead expenses knowing he is enjoying all the "fruits of his labor" in the form of greater commission income, well-managed office services, a pleasant working environment, and exposure to equally professional colleagues.

Let's digress further into this. In a RE/MAX office, the agent who handles the sale of the property keeps the commission — all of it. He doesn't split his hard earned commission 50-50 or even 80-20 with the owner of the real estate agency. He keeps it all and pays the modest expenses incurred for doing business. Even if the expenses are twice — even five times — the average, the agent takes home more. The high performance sales associate clearly comes out ahead when he/she can bank all of their commission income and make investments for their future. The concept is basic and used by other professionals such as doctors, lawyers, etc. They are operating together, working independently but sharing the common expenses of an office. This creates a synergy which makes each individual stronger and creates better service to both buyer and seller. Since the sales agent has a personal investment in the listing he is working that much harder to get it sold. "Makes sense," says Mrs. DiBella.

The Naisbitt Group, an independent international research company in its research found RE/MAX ranking first in number of transactions per associate, first in income per associate, first in dollar volume sales per associate. Ranking RE/MAX as the second largest real estate company in the United States, INC. magazine states that last year, with an average of 12,000 agents, RE/MAX generated commissions of $816 million. With regard to its relocation network, RE/MAX closes 27% more real estate transactions than any other real estate agent. The reason being referrals are sent from one high-producing, full-time agent to another high-producing full-time agent. Again this is where the home seller profits.

The question arises, what if the market collapses and residential sales fall off by, say, a third? The conventional real estate agent would be hit hard, but not the RE/MAX agent. Because the average agent takes home a commission of $14,475 two thirds of that is just $9,650. On the other hand the RE/MAX commission is so much higher and a one third drop in income would not cause him to be in any financial straits even after paying his office overhead. He is benefiting from "Real Estate Maxiums", Liniger states. "In the 1980's when mortgage rates topped 15% and residential sales declined, the RE/MAX agents market share per associate actually increased! Since RE/MAX agents are more experienced and better producers than the typical agent, they ought to outperform in a downturn market, and they did."

Just as the RE/MAX concept offers top-producers fair compensation for their efforts, RE/MAX associates offer the public unequalled excellence in real estate services. They are highly trained, highly motivated agents with a sincere dedication to giving the public the highest and best service in the buying or selling of a home. "It's their career which they take quite seriously and to prove that they have made a personal financial commitment," says Mrs. DiBella.

The little company with big ideas is now an international corporation but the RE/MAX motto hasn't changed. "It still means 'Real Estate Maxiums' and RE/MAX agents remain dedicated to delivering 'Above The Crowd' service," says Mrs. DiBella. "RE/MAX affiliates are able to provide their fellow citizens with an insider's understanding of the local real estate market, because that's where they live."

Mrs. DiBella, has been in the real estate business for 15 years servicing Winchester, Arlington and the surrounding communities. She attributes much of her business acumen to her father, an international businessman.

Swanson: Get professional advice

When Wesley Swanson, president of Swanson Associates, a full-service real estate brokerage in Winchester, began his real estate business 25 years ago a nice home could be bought for under $20,000. "Today," says Wes, "$20,000 won't even make a downpayment on most homes."

Not only have real estate prices increased dramatically over the past 25 years, but the buying, selling and financing of real estate has become a very complicated process.

Says Swanson, whose son, Bradford, recently joined the firm: "There are so many new laws and regulations governing the sale of property it is more and more difficult for people to sell their property without professional assistance. Continuing education beyond the strict requirements for obtaining a real estate license is a necessity for any real estate agent. For example there are consumer protection laws, regulations covering UFFI [urea formaldehyde foam insulation], lead paint, and we expect that Radon testing will be required in the near future. Most commercial and industrial properties cannot be sold without a hazardous waste inspection. As for financing there used to be three types of mortgages, FHA, VA and conventional. Now there are dozens."

Swanson, who has earned professional designations in brokerage, appraisal and assessing, has been active in the Mass. Association of Realtors, and the Greater Boston and Eastern Middlesex Boards of Realtors. He points out that, with the volatility of the real estate market in the last few years, the role of the qualified appraiser has become more important. "Our company has completed appraisals of all types of real estate throughout eastern Massachusetts for many banks and mortgage companies, and, as a result," says Swanson, "we have been able to track market values on a daily basis. This type of information is vitally important to anyone planning to buy or sell property."

Brad Swanson, who is completing studies toward a degree in real estate, says real estate is the most basic of all investment vehicles with which to accumulate wealth. "Buying a home is investing in real estate and, like any major investment, the purchase and the sale should be made with the help of professionals in the field."

Real estate brokerage has become highly competitive as well as complicated. "People who are ready to sell their property, whether it is their home, commercial, or strictly investment property, should contact several brokers before signing a listing agreement," says Swanson. "Understand what type listing agreement you are signing, check references and credentials and, equally important, make sure you will be comfortable with your choice of broker. There is a lot at stake. We always invite and encourage comparison. We believe that one of the best investments in real estate is the fee you pay for professional counsel."

Wes and his son, Brad, join in saying that Swanson Assoc. Real Estate, Inc., Realtors, with offices at the corner of Main and Mt. Vernon Streets, Winchester, looks forward to their next 25 years of providing professional real estate services to the community. "And," adds Wes, "Many thanks to our clients, customers, and our community who have made our first 25 years successful."

Composting fallen leaves saves town money on trash disposal

By CAROLE LANDERS
Special to the Star

Autumn leaves mark summer's end and winter's coming. Although breathtaking to behold, fall foliage is less than inspirational when no longer on the trees.

Raking leaves and dragging them to the dump is seen by many as one of autumn's definite drawbacks. There is, however, an alternative that is more efficient, less costly, and environmentally beneficial, according to Department of Public Works Director Dominic Serratore. This is composting.

Composting, as defined by the executive office of Environmental Affairs, "involves the natural decomposition of organic waste by bacteria in the presence of oxygen, water and nutrients." The result of this process yields "a humus-like material which can be used for soil conditioning, horticulture, landscaping and landfill cover."

Many communities throughout the state have initiated projects to recycle their leaves. Winchester has a central compost heap in the town. Located at the transfer station, it is open on Mondays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Tuesdays from noon to 8 p.m., and 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. the rest of the week, including Saturdays.

Serratore encourages Winchester homeowners to bring all their leaves to the compost heap, rather than dumping them on the conveyor belt. Every ton of leaves saves the town $67 in hauling and tipping costs, according to Serratore. (Leaves that are not composted are hauled to North Andover).

After five to seven years, the compost heap material is made into a very fine loam for use on town projects, such as grass plot reparation and field restoration. Because of the compost heap, Winchester has not had to purchase loam for several years, the DPW chief said.

Along with leaves, Serratore asked Winchester residents to bring all recyclable materials, such as grass clippings, metal, and newspaper to the transfer station. Last year the town saved $67,000 in the recycling of over 1100 tons of newspaper and metal alone, he said.

The Waste Study Committee, which has been meeting for nearly a year, is studying ways to improve recycling efficiency. Members of the committee recently attended a workshop held by the League of Women Voters in Wellesley, where composting options were discussed. A representative from the Division of Solid Waste attended the Winchester committee meeting on Oct. 6 to help the town with this problem.

The compost heap is a viable solution to the leaf problem. "We want every leaf possible composted," Serratore said.

Chamber gets license to host haunted house

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

The Board of Selectmen approved licenses Monday night for this year's Haunted House, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce from October 23 to 31 at the Wedge Pond Beach House.

Ralph Johnson, co-chairman of the project with Craig Phayer, was on hand at the meeting to answer questions from the selectmen. With him was the mysteriously costumed Fang the Werewolf, who helped to lend the spirit of Halloween to the meeting.

The only question was on town liability for the project, which has been run for 17 years by the Chamber. Chamber Executive Director Cathy Alexander confirmed Tuesday that the event is completely insured by the Chamber of Commerce.

Alexander said the Haunted House has been held for the last three years at the beach house, "but there are always new treats in store." She said there will be different scary scenes in parts of the house, and lots of good food at the chuck wagon outside.

The house will be open from 6:30 to 9 p.m. on October 23, 24 and 25 and on October 28, 29, 30 and 31, according to Alexander. She said parents should accompany younger children, but no children under age 4 or 5 should go into the house. Admission is $1.50 and proceeds go toward community events such as Town Day, Alexander said.

Lombardi, Sopper no-shows this week

Deering thinks it's a boycott

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

The winds of political feud on the town Board of Selectmen blew harder with the blast of cold weather this week. Two of the selectmen, Mark Lombardi and Francis P. Sopper, often the voting minority of the board, missed Monday's meeting.

While Sopper notified the town manager's office Monday afternoon that he would not be at the meeting, Lombardi did not tell anyone he would be absent, according to board Chairman Judith Muggia.

The other board members said they did not know why the selectmen failed to appear and could only speculate reasons.

Referring indirectly to the confrontation caused when she missed a meeting last month, Muggia said, "I was away for the week. I was out of state and I just got back this afternoon. Perhaps there was some upset about that," Muggia said she couldn't be reached for the week and "didn't make public" the fact that she was going away.

She said she hasn't publicized her departures since her home was burglarized. "I won't change my policy," Muggia said.

Selectman Thomas Schmitt declined comment on the absences, but Selectman Robert Deering had another idea. "I could never substantiate it, but my gut feeling is that they were boycotting the meeting," he told the Star Tuesday.

Deering connected the alleged boycott to the board's opening of the town meeting warrant to add two articles at its Monday meeting. The articles, which call for zoning changes that would affect the development of the controversial Woburn Loop property, were the subject of some conflict at last week's meeting.

When contacted by the Star Tuesday, Lombardi said he didn't attend the meeting because "I wasn't feeling too well and it seemed like it would be a short meeting anyway."

Referring to the proposed articles for town meeting consideration, Lombardi lamented his minority status on the board, saying, "I knew (they) were going to go through and I'd just be wasting my time (at the meeting).... I knew there would be no surprises, and that the exact same thing would happen if I was there or I wasn't."

Lombardi resigned as a member of the Woburn Loop Sub-committee in the spring, citing a possible conflict of interest as his reason. He is a Winchester realtor. Deering replaced Lombardi on the committee.

When asked if he was boycotting the meeting, however, Lombardi said, "No, I'd never do that." He said (Please see ABSENT, page 20)

Selectmen open warrant to add two Loop articles

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

The Fall Town Meeting warrant will go to the printer with the addition of two zoning change proposals suggested by the Woburn Loop Sub-Committee.

With advice in from the Planning Board, the three majority members of the Board of Selectmen voted unanimously Monday to place the articles on the warrant.

The proposals, suggested by the Woburn Loop Sub-committee, have been controversial because the changes would aid two developers of the Woburn Loop land. Board Chairman Judith Muggia noted that this was the final addition to the warrant, which goes to the printer now.

With the first proposal, the required width of a parking space would be reduced from nine feet to eight-and-a-half feet. This would allow for additional parking spaces and help Russell Hill, whose office condominium development would otherwise be three to five parking spaces less than he originally planned.

The second zoning change reduces the minimum frontage for a cul-de-sac from 200 feet to 50 feet. This would allow Charles Ferrari to avoid requesting a variance on the issue, as his plan for a condominium development at the site currently lacks the required frontage.

At last week's meeting the selectmen decided to wait for the Planning Board's advice on the matter before adding the articles to the warrant.

Selectman Robert Deering told the other selectmen Monday that the Planning Board had met last Thursday and supported both articles.

Planning Board Chairman Maryann McCall-Taylor clarified this week that the Planning Board supported the proposals and advised their inclusion on the warrant. She noted that the parking space dimension change was presented at last year's town meeting. At that time, it received a majority but not the two-thirds vote required to change the zoning by-laws.

McCall-Taylor said most of the parking lots in town have eight-and-a-half-foot spaces, and she pointed out that the zoning by-laws pertaining to parking space size are currently in- (Please see LOOP, page 20)

Three town business women join Winchester Rotary Club

By SUE SHOR
Star Assistant Editor

Although it took a United States Supreme Court decision before it happened, no one seems disturbed by the newest members of the Winchester Rotary Club, Elizabeth DiLoreto, Elizabeth Kehoe and Susan LaViolette.

They are the first women to join the traditionally all-male club.

The three, along with Louis Gentile Jr. received their Rotary pins one week ago today.

The first Rotary Club was formed 82 years ago. The Winchester chapter is 60 years old.

Rotary Club President Robert Costello said he was waiting for word from the Rotary International before inviting the women to join, but he said he was happy to allow women to join the service club.

Elizabeth DiLoreto of Thornberry Road has been practicing law in Winchester for 10 years. She specializes in personal injury and workers' compensation.

Her father, Emidio, is a longtime Rotarian. Elizabeth said she has been to at least one meeting a year since she became a lawyer.

"I see it as an opportunity to do community service," she said. DiLoreto said she thinks she has not been involved enough in the community.

DiLoreto had asked her father if she could join the club, but was told membership was restricted. As soon as the Supreme Court handed down its decision, she filled out a membership application, with sponsorship from her father.

"I can't think of a better sponsor," she said. "He always felt women should have equal access."

DiLoreto said she believes the addition of women to the club will bring new ideas, not because of the gender of the new members, but just because the pool of qualified applicants to the club has greatly expanded.

DiLoreto said she feels at home despite the fact that she is outnumbered 20 to 1. "The gentlemen were very pleasant," she said. "I was warmly welcomed from the very beginning."

"They already gave me tickets to sell," DiLoreto said.

The one possible problem she sees does not reflect on the Winchester chapter at all. DiLoreto is wondering whether she will be accepted in other countries if she is abroad and wants to make up a meeting. (The Rotary Club has an attendance requirement). She may just be the first woman to get the answer to that question.

Elizabeth Kehoe of Horn Pond Brook Road works in the mortgage department of Winchester Cooperative Bank. She, too, said she was warmly welcomed into the club, but unlike DiLoreto, she said she had never thought of becoming a member until her boss proposed the idea to her.

Man is thrown from car in crash

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

A Brookside Avenue man was seriously injured and two other town residents sustained minor injuries in a two-car accident at the corner of Church and Wildwood Streets Saturday morning, police reported this week.

Anthony R. Grassia, 61, of Brookside Avenue was traveling south on Wildwood Street at 9:20 a.m. Oct. 3 when his 1978 Ford was involved in a collision with a 1985 Chevrolet going west on Church Street. Grassia was thrown out of his car, according to police, and cut his head.

The operator and owner of the other car, Richard Bush, 43, of Buckman Drive and his son William, 11, a passenger, both had minor cuts and bruises.

All three were taken to Winchester Hospital where the Bushes were treated and released, a hospital spokesman said Monday. Grassia, however, was admitted and remained in fair condition Monday.

Grassia's Ford was damaged on the left front and driver's side while Bush's car took a beating to the entire front end and passenger's side, police said. Both cars were towed from the scene of the accident.

Also damaged in the incident were a Central Street signpost and a No Parking sign nearby. Neither driver was cited for wrongdoing in the collision, according to police.

POLICE LOG

Monday, September 28

Police stopped a 1978 Chevrolet Camaro traveling west on Washington Street near the Lincoln School for a missing left rear light at 7:25 p.m. When the operator, an Everett man, couldn't produce a driver's license, police checked his record and found that his license was revoked, according to police reports. Police arrested the driver and charged him with operating a motor vehicle after revocation of his license and operating the vehicle with faulty equipment, police said.

Police reported that the owner of the car, a Medford man, was driving ahead of the defendant in a 1977 Oldsmobile wagon with a handmade paper license plate with the same number as the Camaro.

When a license check indicated that the registration number belonged to the Camaro, The owner was cited for operating an unregistered and uninsured motor vehicle and for illegal attaching of plates, according to police.

Both cars were towed. The arrested man was bailed and released later that evening, police said.

An officer operating a radar unit on High Street near the Ambrose School saw a gray 1984 Volkswagen sedan approach him at a high speed at 11:50 a.m., according to police reports.

After clocking the car's speed at 43 miles per hour in a 30 mile per hour zone, the officer stopped the driver in the school parking lot. A license check revealed that the driver, a High Street resident, had had his license suspended twice in April, police said.

Police also confirmed that he had two outstanding default warrants in Cambridge, both for motor vehicle violations. The man was arrested and charged with operating after suspension of his license and speeding. He was arraigned later that day at Woburn District Court, according to police.

Tuesday, September 29

The owner of a Calumet Road home showed police the site of an intrusion sometime after midnight.

An unknown person had entered the rear of the house through an unlocked cellar door, police believe. Most of the family was home at the time, according to police reports.

Missing were a man's 12-speed bicycle valued at $350, a video cassette recorder valued at $200 and two souvenir Japanese samurai swords. The items were discovered missing that morning; the family said they did not hear any noise during the night, according to police reports.

Saturday, October 3

A Canterbury Road resident reported that her daughter's dirt bike, valued at $300, was stolen from their front porch sometime in the last three days, according to police reports.

David Peretti

Peretti voted pres. of realtors association

David M. Peretti of Manchester Road was elected 1988 president of the 21,000-member Massachusetts Association of Realtors at the organization's annual board of directors meeting Sept. 30. He will assume the post on January 1.

A senior vice president of Huneman and Company, Boston, Peretti was the association's first vice president in 1987. He served as treasurer from 1984 to 1986 and was association secretary in 1983.

In 1980 Peretti was president of the North Worcester Board of Realtors. Currently, he is a member of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board. Peretti holds both a bachelor's and a Master's of Business Administration degree from the University of Massachusetts.

Peretti has served on Winchester's finance, capital and scholarship foundation committees. He is married with two children.

Cunningham to work in British Parliament

John Cunningham of Winchester will spend the fall 1987 semester as an intern for a member of the British Parliament on a program sponsored by the University of Rochester's political science department.

Cunningham, a junior majoring in political science at the university, is one of 20 students chosen from a nationwide pool of applicants with diverse academic backgrounds. Interns work as research and administrative assistants for Members of Parliament. They participate in every phase of the M.P.'s work, such as constituent correspondence, preparing briefs and press releases, doing research, and writing speeches. Since most M.P.'s have no other staff support, student interns become intensely involved with the workings of the British political system.

Program participants also take a specifically designed course in British politics and one other course. The University of Rochester awards a full semester's credit for the program, which it offers every fall and spring semester, in cooperation with the British-based Educational Programmes Abroad.

Purdy named to Bridgewater football squad

Steve Purdy of Winchester was named to the Bridgewater State College football team.

Purdy, a freshman, will be a defensive back, wearing number 91.

Gray wins match for R.I. College women's tennis

Kathy Gray of Winchester was the Rhode Island College tennis team's number one player for its first match. The Anchormen played Stonehill College in North Easton.

Gray, a freshman, beat her opponent, 6-4, 6-4, to lead her squad to an 8-1 victory.

Vozella begins technical training

Anthony C. Vozella of 22 Baldwin St. has been accepted by Associated Technical Institute of Woburn in its electronic/computer technician course.

Associated Technical Institute provides skill training mornings, afternoons and evenings, and offers career placement assistance to its graduates.

MORTGAGE WEATHER REPORT.

They say that in New England if you don't like the weather, wait a minute. New England mortgage rates can be tough to predict, too. One way to gain the upper hand is with a Convertible Rate Mortgage from CambridgePort. That way you can start off at a low rate, and lock in an even lower rate when you see the chance. We have two sensible plans, both with one of the lowest lifetime caps around. And we don't charge you a fee to convert, which is the whole idea in the first place. If you're not sure which way the wind is blowing, now you can take the pressure.

Convertible Plan A. Pay half a point, float at a competitive adjustable rate with the opportunity to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 10.38%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.44%

Convertible Plan B. Pay two points, and we will give you an even better adjustable rate for the first year, then let it float until you decide to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 8.63%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.42%

Other Facts. No fee and minimal paperwork when you convert to a fixed rate. Convert anytime between months 13 and 60. Annual cap: 2%. Lifetime cap: 5%. Margin: 2.50%. For homes throughout Massachusetts call Rebecca Taber at 661-4900 to find out more.

SAVINGS BANK

Rates, terms and fees may change daily. Interest rate is adjusted annually and is based on U.S. Treasury Securities adjusted to a constant maturity of one year plus the applicable margin. Fixed interest rate is determined in accordance with the terms of the rider to the note which will be signed at closing. Program available for one- to four-family owner-occupied residences with a maximum loan-to-value ratio of 90%. Maximum loan amount varies depending on type of residence.

DPW opens reservoirs to visitors

The Department of Public Works, Water and Sewer Division invites residents to visit the Town's reservoirs on Saturday, Oct. 10, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Please enter by foot or automobile at the gate opposite 58 Hillcrest Parkway and continue one-way through the area. Exiting will be on South Border Road. If walking, residents are requested to stay on or along the designated road. The reservoirs are open annually to give the residents of Winchester an opportunity to see the source of a portion of their water supply and to view the fall foliage.

No horses, motorcycles, or picnicking will be permitted.

Ladies Sodality to meet

The Immaculate Conception Ladies Sodality will hold its next monthly meeting on Tuesday evening, Oct. 13. Mass will be celebrated at 7:30 p.m. followed by a "Games Night" in the Parish Hall on Sheridan Circle.

Chair Anna Gallelo and her committee have promised an enjoyable evening of fun and entertainment. Refreshments will be served and the public is invited to attend.

For further information please contact Anna Gallelo at 729-0003.

Nursery offers first aid course

The Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School will be offering an Office for Children-approved "First Aid and Safety for Children" course on Oct. 13 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The course will be held at the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School at the First Congregational Church across from the Common in Winchester. The course is open to the public and is geared to parents of young children, teachers and day care providers. For more information call the school at 729-8081.

David Maloney and Ginny Reilly
First Church hosts Reilly and Maloney

This Saturday evening, Oct. 10, at 8 p.m. First Congregational Church in Winchester will host musicians Reilly and Maloney.

Ginny Reilly and David Maloney use their acoustic guitars and voices to offer their insight into experiences and relationships of life. They perform in styles ranging from country to rock to Broadway to folk and everything in between.
David Maloney, a native of central

New York state, has relatives in the Boston area and on the Cape. Ginny Reilly grew up in Lake Forest, Illinois. The pair met while singing in San Francisco as solo acts in a show in 1970, and have been singing together ever since. Ginny and David have five albums to their credit, in addition to solo albums by each of them.
They have recorded original songs about babies, about the thoughts of a circus elephant, and about the sadness in the destruction of an old dance hall. And then there's "Did Beethoven Do the Dishes?" a song which asks whether any of the famous composers could have written anything if they had a household to run.
These original songs are complemented by their performance of songs by other composers, songs such as "Bewitched, Bothered, and Bewildered" by Rogers and Hart, and Tom Paxton's "Bad Old Days."
Reilly and Maloney have appeared in Cambridge at Passim on their East Coast tours. This Saturday is an opportunity to hear them without the hassle of parking in Cambridge.

Tickets are available at Henderson Stationers on Main Street in Winchester, or by calling K.V. Lauterwasser at 729-9087.
Epiphany offers flower arranging workshop
A workshop for arranging altar flowers will be held at the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St., on Tuesday, Oct. 20, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Three flower consultants: Ila Cox of Andover, Barbara Duffy of Lincoln and Barbara Powers of Cohasset, will arrange flowers in different containers and demonstrate elements and principles of design as they apply to altar arrangements.
After lunch workshop participants will make their own arrangements with guidance from the consultants. The participants will take their arrangements home to enjoy.

Ten dollars covers the cost of lunch and flowers. Any person interested in participating, call the Epiphany church office, 729-1922, for reservations by Oct. 16.
McKenna to speak at country club
Lesley College President Margaret McKenna will join alumni, parents, and friends of the College at the Winchester Country Club, Arlington, on Oct. 14, from 7 to 8:30 p.m.
The reception will include an update by McKenna on Lesley College programs. Interested members of the community, including prospective students and their parents are invited to attend. Contact Jane Ryer, 729-9263 or the Lesley College Alumni Office at 868-9600 ext. 121.

Music society to sponsor sight sing
At 3 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 25, The Winchester Music Society will sponsor an open sight reading of Bach's Motet "Jesu, Meine Freude" and, time and resources permitting, a piece for double chorus by Gabrieli. The sight sing will take place in the Old Parish Hall of the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church St.
The choruses by Bach and Gabrieli will be directed by John Duffy and accompanied by Carole Davidson. This will be the sixth of such musical readings which have been supported by funds from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery as administered by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council.

THE PRIME CD
A fully insured investment that keeps pace with the prime rate

In a rising rate environment, even a short-term investment has its drawbacks. You're locked into a rate that could end up well below the market at maturity. And there's usually a substantial penalty to withdraw your funds early.
Now there's a way to invest for the short term and keep up with current financial conditions. THE PRIME CD from Winchester Savings Bank is a one-year floating rate certificate that's keyed to the prime. The interest rate you earn is 1.25 percentage points below the prime rate and is adjusted monthly based on the prime rate as published in The Wall Street Journal on the last business day of the preceding month. Interest is computed daily and compounded monthly. The minimum investment is $2,500.
THE PRIME CD
7.50%
Annual Percentage Rate
(Prime rate is currently 8.75%)
To take advantage of this exciting new investment opportunity, visit any office of Winchester Savings Bank or call our Investment Desk at 729-2130. THE PRIME CD rate will change when the prime rate changes.
For current rates on all the investment opportunities at Winchester Savings Bank, call THE RATELINE at 721-0180.

Nursery hosts
Dinosaur Rock
children's show

Stella Stegosaurus and Beulah, the flying pteranodon, will be two of the 16-foot dinosaurs that dance and sing their way on stage November 2 when the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School presents "Dinosaur Rock".

The supersized puppets, similar in style to Big Bird of "Sesame Street," are creations of puppeteer, Ingrid Creapeau. The dinosaurs come to life on stage as Creapeau and guitarist Michele Valeri invite children to sing along, clap or even make dinosaur sounds.

The tunes, like "The Sarapoud

Swing" or the "Hadrassaur from Hackensack," are aimed at teaching children the fun facts of the life and eventual extinction of dinosaurs. The Emmy award-winning duo returns to the Boston area after packed performances at the White House, Smithsonian Institution and Boston's Museum of Science last fall.

This event is the second annual fundraiser where the school has brought creative children's entertainment to Winchester. Last fall the children's folk singing team "Rosen-shontz" played before a packed audience.

"Dinosaur Rock" will be held at McCall Junior High School from 7 to 8 p.m. on Nov. 2. For ticket information, contact the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School at 729-8081 or 729-7319.

SENIOR NEWS

Response to VABC drive warms WSA leaders' hearts

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

Three thousand three hundred ninety Voluntary Annual Budget Contribution (VABC) letters were mailed to seniors in the town announcing the annual drive for operational funds for the Jenks Senior Center. To save the cost of mailing "thank you" letters to donors, an expression of grateful appreciation is extended to all who respond to the request for contributions.

Because the Winchester Seniors Association is a non-profit organization, no dues can be charged per restrictions established by the Internal Revenue Service. For this reason, it was necessary five years ago to institute a building operational fund, VABC, to help to pay the costs of running and maintaining the Jenks Senior Center.

All people in Winchester who are 60 years of age or older automatically become members of the Winchester Seniors Association and no membership dues are ever collected. They are invited annually to contribute as much as they feel they can afford to keep the Senior Center running.

Based on increasing needs, an annual average of $30 per member is suggested to handle the $75,000-a-year budget. Some members may find it necessary to make a smaller contribution while others who are in a financial position to do so will give more.

So that all members will have a sense of belonging and supporting the great efforts of volunteers, it is hoped that each member will desire to participate in this important annual drive. The Jenks Senior Center offers a wide range of recreational, educational, social, and health opportunities for all seniors and the VABC is one means of expressing gratitude for the privileges regularly extended. Thus, know that the WSA Executive Board and the Finance Committee are grateful to each contributor to the VABC. The lack of an individual "thank you" letter is in the interest of economy in putting all the dollars to work for the center.

The prompt response to the general mailing is heart-warming to every worker who places the interest of seniors in a top priority position.

Volunteer drivers urgently needed

One of the very important services provided by the Winchester Council on Aging is transportation for those who need to get to appointments with physicians and hospitals, or do business at banks, or attend to errands at markets or drug stores, or visit beauty salons. Volunteers on the Transportation Committee use their own cars to enable those who do not drive to attend to business within the community and in contiguous towns.

Kim Archibald and Mary Peterson, co-chairpersons of the Transportation Committee, are issuing an urgent appeal for more volunteer drivers, especially as the probability of inclement weather is fast approaching. Call the Jenks Senior Center (721-7136) to volunteer as a driver for this very vital service.

Congregate meals

Plans for the "Eating Together" meals program are progressing steadily. The Minute Man Home Care Nutrition Department and the Jenks Committee are interviewing applicants for the manager's position. When a candidate is hired, it is possible that two weekly noontime meals will begin at the end of October, following the orientation of the site manager and the settling of the multitude of details that will be necessary in preparation for the operation of the program. Watch the Star for further news.

The Minuteman Home Care, Inc., in Lexington is providing financial support for this service program sponsored by the Winchester Council on Aging.

Glee club

Due to the illness and hospitalization of Bob Mulford, director of The Jenks Senior Center Glee Club, there will be a substitute pianist until he returns. Helen Tilton, organist and choir director in New York for 35 years, will handle the responsibilities for Bob while he is indisposed.

Because the Jenks Senior Center will be a beehive of industry in preparation for the fair, the first gathering of the Glee Club members will be on Oct. 20. Watch the Star for details concerning the time of the rehearsal. Two requests have come from nursing centers for Glee Club choral presentations.

Rug hooking class

Doris Reid of Reading will be the instructor for the rug hooking class at the Jenks Senior Center, beginning Oct. 20 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., and meeting thereafter bi-weekly.

Here is an opportunity to learn an old-fashioned craft in a present up-to-date world. Creating an article of beauty for the home will be well worth the investment of time in learning the art.

Material has been given to the center to be used by this class. Sign up at the Jenks Senior Center Reception Desk for membership in this group.

Church Women United Senior Luncheon

The next Church Women United senior luncheon will be on Nov. 3, hosted by the women of the First Baptist Church, but held at the Jenks Senior Center because of the construction in progress at the church. Watch the Star for details about making reservations.

Senior speak out

The Minuteman Home Care's Senior Speak Out will be held on Thursday, Oct. 29, from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at Heritage Hall in Lexington.

The topic this year deals with the housing situation, its present state and future outlook. The Speak Out is designed to educate and encourage people to advocate their rights.

Speakers will address the issue from federal and state perspectives and attendance will provide the opportunity to voice individual concerns. All interested seniors are urged to attend the meeting, which will be one of importance. The speakers include: William Benson, Select Committee on Aging, Subcommittees on Housing and Consumer Interests,

Washington, D.C.; Barbara Ruther, senior research and policy analyst, Massachusetts Housing Agency; and Katie Sloan, senior programs specialist, American Association for Retired Persons (AARP), Washington, D.C.

A box lunch may be reserved by calling Minute Man Home Care by Oct. 26 at 862-6200 or 263-8720.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

The town should protect itself from undue risks

Certain signs of backing and filling on the part of a developer in town are not very encouraging.

Angelo Marotta, who stands to make a hefty sum of money from the sale of the Winchester Woods condominium development, does not want to pay for a town observer to monitor the site during its cleanup.

The Cross Street property sits atop a pile of refuse that contains, among other things, cyanide, heavy metals and odor-causing chemicals, according to the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE).

On June 11 this year Town Meeting approved a zoning change that allow condominiums to be built on the old industrial site. At the time, many members expressed deep concern that people would be living on top of hazardous chemicals.

Marotta brought an impressive array of experts and his lawyer, Winchester resident Lawrence Murray, to testify as to why the site would be better used for homes than factories.

The discussion was at times heated and bitter.

But in the end the pro-development forces won out and the necessary two-thirds majority was assembled to put the zoning change through.

One of the arguments put forth by Marotta's minions was that the site could be cleaned up to an acceptable level. A cleanup plan had been specified by the DEQE, and Murray assured the town that it would be followed. He also indicated that the various town boards would have their say as the successive permits were negotiated. At each step, Murray said, the town would be able to cancel the project if it saw something out of line.

To a revenue-hungry town like Winchester, new developments sometimes seem like manna from heaven. They are not easily turned down. Town Meeting considered the case on its merits and came to the conclusion that enough control would remain with the town to let the questionable project go forward.

Now there is an impasse. The town wants to put a monitor on the site at the developer's expense to observe the cleanup and ensure that the DEQE procedures are followed. Marotta doesn't want to pay for it.

The DEQE has not made matters any easier. It has from the beginning of the project been less than forthcoming with specifics about the cleanup procedure, which forced the town to make the original zoning decision without a full set of information.

Murray has called the monitor unnecessary and spoken of "supervising the supervisors." But given the high stakes of the project and the behavior of the DEQE, the town has no particular reason to believe that the procedures, which have been imperfectly spelled out anyway, will be adhered to.

Murray is in effect asking the town to let the fox guard the hen house. The town wants to put a dog on the case as well, and with good reason.

Town Counsel Douglas Randall said he was pleased with the strength of the agreement the town has with Marotta, but that won't keep irate condominium owners from naming the town in a suit if it is discovered 20 years down the road that all the occupants are coming down with leukemia.

The town has got to protect itself against possible collusion on the part of the developer and the state. Even if the chance of that is very small, the consequence of the town's being dragged into something not of its doing are very high.

Marotta is going to make a lot of money on the deal. He pledged to work with the boards. The cost of an observer is small compared to the comfort the town will derive from having a first-hand look at what is going on during the cleanup.

If the state won't pay for the entire cost of the observer, a solution being examined by the Board of Health, then Marotta should make up the difference.

So you really think the DEQE will be watching the Winchester woods cleanup every second?

Resident criticizes tax coverage

TO THE EDITOR:

I have for some time felt your news coverage has been lacking, but this was never so disappointingly evident than in your brief mention this week of the fiscal year 1988 property tax rate.

Certainly taxes—a matter which affects every Winchester resident—deserve more than a brief "News Note" on page 19 of a 20-page issue—especially since what's involved is a five percent increase in the rate, although your item gives no hint as to how the rate compares to the present one, not even mentioning it.

What the article does say is so unclear that it raises more questions than it answers. For example, you state: "Certified by the Department of Revenue, the $13.90 rate is the figure recommended by (Board of Assessors Chairman Francis) Mahoney to the Board of Selectmen at a public hearing regarding classification."

Does this mean the rate is only a proposal to be decided at a future selectmen's hearing? If so, surely you should inform your readers when this hearing will be, so residents can express their feelings. Or is this item indeed an announcement of the "official" rate, now set. If this is the case, the amount of the increase, in dollar terms, for the average homeowner should be given.

The item reads like merely a news release from town hall. You owe your readers better.

EnKa Society thanks Star for forum

TO THE EDITOR:

Our thanks to you for providing a forum last week for representatives of various volunteer organizations who regularly submit articles to you for publication.

It was a good opportunity for an exchange of ideas so that those who have the responsibility for publicity within each organization know better how to work with you and you with us.

Our community is a special one because of its commitment to volunteerism, and through your paper others can be aware of the variety of services available as well as the variety of opportunities to serve.

Nursing assistants appreciated recognition

TO THE EDITOR:

I want to thank you for having our "certified nursing assistants" photo printed in last week's (Sept. 17) Winchester Star.

The women who graduated from this course were very proud to see their picture in the paper. Our staff and residents need to feel they are part of the community and not forgotten because they are in a nursing home.

Thank you for helping us feel we are not forgotten.

ABC president thanks donators and helpers

TO THE EDITOR:

Winchester A.B.C.'s fall bottle drive last Saturday, October 3, was a great success. Volunteers, working alongside the ABC students, collected and sorted the thousands of bottles and cans donated by people in town who have been saving them all summer for A.B.C. A big thank you to all who helped on Saturday, and to all who support ABC by saving their returnables for our drives.

Once again we extend a special thanks to the Sons of Italy who allow us to use their parking lot and lend their support to ABC in this way.

Gun law conjures mixed feelings

TERRY MAROTTA

A law that went into effect in Florida last week allows any adult to carry a concealed weapon, provided he is free of a past stained by crime and substance abuse.

Feeling is strong in Florida both for and against this law; according to a study referred to in Time recently, some 60% of the households there contain firearms.

The operant American philosophy here is laissez-faire. Though some maintain that by keeping a gun in your house you risk hurting yourself more than you risk hurting others, it is not within our tradition to make laws that protect us from ourselves.

In an essay on liberty, John Stuart Mill said "the only purpose for which power can be exercised over any member of a civilized community against his will is to prevent harm to others. His own good, either physical or moral is not sufficient warrant."

In other words, if people wish to endanger themselves by keeping firearms, then let them do it. But that same Time article makes a good point when it says that crowds secretly bristling with weapons "at shopping malls, sporting events and even Disney World" conjures up in many a certain sense of queasiness, if not outright alarm.

Individuals have gone about armed for thousands of years, of course: the custom of extending the hand toward the stranger, they say, originated with the wish to show him a palm empty of weapons. But weapons are different today, and deadlier than they were in the time of the slingshot and the crossbow. A gun especially is different, sleek, sexy product of technology that it is. You can stand yards and yards from your victim - never learn the color of his eyes, or see the expression on his face - exert a gentle pressure on a slim fingernail of steel, and see him fall a split-second later. It's almost like watching it on TV.

I met a woman of 26 a year or so ago. Let's call her Sandy. She was at loose ends as an 18-year-old, the way she describes it - restless, uncertain of a path for herself, high much of the time, hanging out. Driving around with a pal one night, she said, "I feel like hitting that store."

"You wouldn't dare," he responded.

"Watch me," she told him. She did it, with a knife. Some little time later she did it again, at a gas station, with a gun. She's been in prison ever since, where she pines for a productive life, with love and work in it.

"Would you have used those weapons, if the individuals had refused to turn over their money?" I asked her, in the third hour of our talk together.

"Oh no," she said quickly. I could never harm another human being."

Many of us feel we could never harm another human being. Why do we seek then to keep in our very homes instruments designed not just to harm other human beings but to drive all life from their living tissue forever?

To protect ourselves from the monstrous benign amorality of people like Sandy, perhaps?

It's a puzzle. I'm a homeowner myself. Over the years, our car has been stolen three or four times. Our house was robbed once and we lost all our wedding silver and every last baby ring and bracelet, everything the thieves could stuff into pillowcases and climb out a window with.

Would I keep a weapon to ward off further such invasions? I would not. A State Representative quoted in the Time piece implied that the new Florida law was bad "because the message we're sending out is 'we can't protect you anymore.' If this is true, he suggests, then the society is saying in effect that the day is not far off when we should all get guns and do what we can to protect ourselves.

If he is right, and this day does dawn, then the violence within, violence done both to our spirits and to our hopes for the race, will have far outweighed in destructiveness any violence that could menace from without.

Wyeth's Helga exhibit brings art home

ELMA CHICKERING

Until now, the vagaries of the art world have been pretty far removed from my ken. Oh, I went to the Renoir and other touted exhibits, dutifully trotted around galleries and museums in other cities when visiting there and tried to keep up with the local specials - mostly at the behest of my artist son, who tried, usually in vain, to explain the niceties of media used, invisible brushwork and subtle symbolism before me. I refrained, with some effort, from mouthing the old cliché, "I don't know anything about art, but I know what I like."

But seeing Helga on the cover of Time magazine last year and reading the story of her 15 secret years as a model for artist Andrew Wyeth has changed my indifference to piqued interest. She is now right up there on the Time cover list with Madonna, Prince, Rambo and assorted political greats - and for doing what - being painted by and inspiring a famous artist. Now those pictures, the Helga show, are in Boston for all to see.

When I see Helga sitting on a stool beside an uncurtained, open window, reclining in front of another window or looking out at a snowscape through still another window, I wonder if the artist isn't as interested in window detail as in the figure in the foreground - or am I being naive? If there is a Fenestration School of Art, this is it. In these photographically accurate studies of light and shade, the windows receive as much attention as the model - nude or not.

Did Wyeth's art teacher, if he had one besides his famous father, ever admonish him, "Every time you pick up your paint brush, say to yourself, 'I am not a camera?'" or is that an outmoded concept of the artist's role - and did he heed this advice? My guess is negative.

Having had my portrait painted by my artist son some years ago, I can vouch for the fact that models do have time to think. There's nothing else to do. In fact, I found the whole posing action, or inaction, an exercise in frustration mostly because I had to remove my glasses. Seeing he world in a blur is a drag. Maybe Helga didn't have that problem; maybe she just liked having a quiet time to plan tomorrow's menu, consider the children's problems or mentally juggle the budget.

In view of the price Helga's portraits have brought, Wyeth can afford to pay her well, at least well enough so she could give up her job as a cook-housekeeper for Carolyn Wyeth. As a kind of sub-plot, it's interesting to read that Mrs. Betsy Wyeth never visits her sister-in-law, Carolyn, nor has she ever seen Helga, though both families have homes in Maine and Pennsylvania as neighbors.

There is enough material here for a juicy novel!

I applaud Helga, the unlikelyst of models, for the beauty she and the artist have brought out into the open after years of productive secrecy - despite many unanswered questions.

Art lovers are a flexible bunch. They can swoon over this new batch of Wyeths or rave over a far-out Picasso - and laud the in-between stuff, too. Artists' fame and money can be achieved via many routes. Now if we only knew which ones were a sure thing...

I wonder how Helga likes being a cover girl? When I muse about it, I think I'd like to be one, too, but not if it would take 15 years to do it and wreck my privacy into the bargain. What price fame?

APPRECIATION ON YOUR HOME

If you rent a home, you probably pay your landlord less in rent each month than you would pay on a mortgage for property that is similar to your rental. Why, then, do people pay more each month to own a home of their own?

Over the years, a home grows in value. The rate of appreciation will depend on many factors, especially the home's location, interest rates, and the general economic climate in the community. If, for example, you purchase property for $100,000 and it grows in value at the rate of 5 percent each year, after five years its value would have grown to approximately $121,000, and at 10 percent each year it goes up to $146,000. While a homeowner's property value is rising, the rent will be increasing for those who lease. An owner, on the other hand, can establish mortgage payments that will remain constant over the next 15 or 30 years. At the same time, the owner is building up equity as the mortgage is repaid and the home's value increases.

A STUDENT PERSPECTIVE

Students learn from Spanish exchange

By LAURA COLELLA
Special to the Star

On September 13, 1987, 17 Spanish teenagers stepped out of their plane onto American soil. They were stopping to tour New York City for two days before flying up to Winchester for their three-week visit. These students from Granada, Spain, were prepared to learn more about the United States, to perfect their English accents and of course, see New England. They were not, however, prepared to teach Winchester High School students anything. Yet, the simple fact that these students are from another culture gave Winchester High School students the opportunity to learn about the differences and similarities between their lives and the Spanish teens' lives.

In just a short conversation, all the questions that nag an American 17-year-old's mind about teenagers around the world can be answered. Do you have the same pressures about college acceptances? Do you wear the same clothes styles? What is it like to be able to drink legally as a teenager? What are the most popular sports? What do you do for fun? These are just a few questions that were exchanged between the Spaniards and their newfound American friends in the past three weeks.

The Spanish students were housed by Winchester High School students who participated in the exchange to Granada last spring. The Foreign Language Department planned a hectic, but fun-filled schedule for the Spaniards. Aside from their excursion to New York where students visited the Statue of Liberty, the Empire State Building and Broadway, the students also went on many day trips to Boston tourist spots. They shopped at the Burlington Mall and Quincy Market. They saw sea life at the aquarium and witnessed scientific experiments at the Museum of Science. They were given the opportunity to roam the streets of Boston and to see an American city from their own perspective.

Lourdes Alvarez, from the Winchester High School Foreign Language Department, said, "The fact that the students had the opportunity to learn more about American cities is very rewarding to me. The Spaniards had the idea that all American cities were dirty and violent. This concept was put in their head by T.V. shows, such as 'Miami Vice,' that are shown on Spanish television. Boston proved to the kids that everything is not as it seems on T.V."

Alvarez chaperoned the trip to Granada last spring and she planned many of the activities the exchange students and their hosts participated in in Massachusetts. According to Alvarez, one of the more popular trips was a weekend at Cape Cod.

Jennifer Norberg, who hosted one of the exchange students, brought some of the teenagers to her family summer house in Brewster. There the students went to the beach and played baseball for the first time.

Blanca Mendiguchia, a 17-year-old exchangee who stayed with Kristen Nau, expressed her enthusiasm for the Cape by kissing her fingers and commenting, "I loved it! The water was beautiful!"

When the Spaniards were not galavanting around New England, they were attending Winchester High School classes. They were allowed to visit any of the classes that interested them. Most of the students visited art and cooking classes where they could discuss the differences between Spanish art and food versus American art and food. The students also visited the foreign language classes where most of the cultural information exchange went on. As the Spaniards learned more about the United States and the American teenagers' lifestyle, group discussions began to sprout more quickly than last spring's wildflowers.

One morning during the third week of the exchange, three Spanish students and one Winchester High School student sat in a corner of the cafeteria and talked about their different cultures for one hour straight.

Here are some excerpts from their conversations which were, fortunately, in English.

Pilar Torrecillas, a Spanish exchangee who stayed with Shivanthy Srikantha, said, "I think that American teenagers are very obsessed with drinking, mainly because there's a drinking restriction. From what I've seen and heard, when you drink, you all get drunk..."

"Yes," Blanca added, "In Spain we can drink whenever we want, since we were kids, so we do not feel the need to go crazy when we drink..."

"We also do not have parties at our houses like you do," Belen Hurtado, who stayed with Laurie Jean Minitti, said, "We usually meet our friends each night at the discoteque and party there..."

"That's another thing, we have more freedom during the week. We go out almost every night," Pilar said.

"But what about homework?" the Winchester High School student cried.

"We have less homework than you. Our school is a little easier than yours," Belen informed the confused Winchesterite.

The conversation switched rapidly from high school to college.

"...We do not have as many options in colleges as you do. Our universities do not offer liberal arts programs. They specialize in one thing only. For example, if you want to be a lawyer, like me, you go to school and study the law only, nothing else," Pilar said.

"You have to take entrance exams to get into universities," Belen mentioned, scowling. "If you do not pass (Please see EXCHANGE, page 11) them, you have to wait 'til next year to retake the tests. If you fail the exams, you're in a bad situation because Granada has a big unemployment problem."

Blanca spoke up, changing the subject, "Your school's facilities are much more modern than ours. We can only have three sports — soccer, basketball and volleyball."

"And skiing," Pilar added. "Although the school doesn't offer it, the tallest mountain in Spain is in Granada, so we ski a lot."

The tete a tete again took a rapid turn, this time to a lighter subject.

"I think our styles in clothing are about the same," Blanca remarked.

"Except that clothes are much cheaper in America. I've spent almost all my money here on clothes. I can get more for my money," Pilar commented.

Belen mentioned, "The way we wear our hair is no different than the way you wear your hair. That's because there is no popular style right now. Kids follow fads in Spain."

"Fads are in here, too," the Winchester High School student agreed.

The conversation continued. As the students talked about more differences between their countries, they began to feel a unity between them. By discussing their differences, they realized that as teenagers, as people, they were much more similar than they had originally thought. It is only their sense of camaraderie that makes a foreign exchange truly successful.

The Spanish students left for home on Oct. 4. High school student Shivanthy Srikantha sadly concluded:

"When we left Spain last spring saying goodbye wasn't as bad, because we knew we'd see everyone again in six months. Now we don't know, so saying goodbye is heart-wrenching. The exchange was incredible. I learned so much without realizing I was being educated. It was an unforgettable experience I would recommend to anyone."

Those students who met and talked with the Spanish students can understand the special relationship one can create with a "foreign" individual who isn't as different as he looks or sounds.

On Oct. 15, the exchange students from England will arrive. Though there is no language barrier, England still has its own unique culture and history. This fact indicates that the English teenagers will both learn from and teach the Winchester students in the spirit of all foreign exchanges.

CLUB NEWS

New members join Home and Garden Club

The Winchester Home and Garden Club recently welcomed new members. Mrs. John Collieran, Membership Chairman, was hostess for the coffee. President Mrs. William Fincke gave a brief discussion of the club activities.

The new members present were: Mrs. Anthony Barba, Mrs. Darryle Behrmann, Mrs. John Bird, Mrs. George Browning, Mrs. Ernest Covine, Miss Ann Dolan, Mrs. Robert Eddy, and Mrs. George Hinton. Other new members, who will be introduced at the regular meeting on Oct. 21, are Mrs. Charles Adelsburger, Mrs. David Dettinger, Mrs. Richmond

Gardner, Mrs. Joseph McDonough, Mrs. Robert Semonian, Mrs. Osmon Tilton, and Mrs. Julie Volpe.

The Ways and Means Committee Chairman, Mrs. Vincent Berger, encouraged participation of the new members in the many workshops which are currently in session. Marjorie Zani of Worthen Road is hostess on Mondays and Thursdays for the workshops. The dates of these are Oct. 15, 19, 22, 26 and 29. In November the dates are 2, 5, 9, and 12. Margie Lamar of Dartmouth Street will have the Tuesday workshops at 9:30 a.m. on Oct. 13 and 27. In November the dates will be 3, 10 and 17.

Wreaths and dried flower arrangements are being made at the workshops. Also Christmas wreaths and many home decorations are being prepared for the annual Greens Sale scheduled for December.

SCHOOL NEWS

Kim Shubrooks, left, Courtney McMillan, and Jason Upper watch the stress management video tape they helped put together.

School video series completed

Bank Five recently hosted a preview pizza party at Towanda Club in Woburn for students from Winchester and surrounding towns. The students had participated in the six-part video project, "Challenges & Choices," which was underwritten by Bank Five.

This recently-completed video series was written and produced by students, teachers and experts from the six communities and Gemini Production of Winchester. The final product includes six video tapes and accompanying curriculum addressing the topics: Decision Making, Fitness for Life, AIDS, Responsible Friendship, Stress Management, Eating Disorders. Bank Five is providing the entire package to libraries and schools in the six participating communities.

British students to visit Winchester

During the months of June and July 10 Winchester High School seniors participated in an international exchange with Plymouth, England. On Oct. 15, the British teens will arrive at Logan Airport to begin their two-week stay in America.

The British students will be attending classes at Winchester High as well as participating in various cultural excursions with their American hosts. Visits to historical sites such as the State House, Lexington and Concord, and Plymouth Plantation have been planned.

They will also visit tourist attractions such as the Museum of Science, Faneuil Hall, and the sea coast town of Rockport. To insure that their American experience is complete, they will attend a high school football game followed by an afternoon of apple picking.

Youth Center holds interviewing skills sessions

Allan Clemow, Tufts University's associate director of admissions, will be at the Youth Center Oct. 13 to lead a workshop session on college interviewing skills.

The evening program is part of a two-session "College Interviewing Workshop" for students in grades nine through 12. The entire program is designed to familiarize college-bound students with the structure and content of on and off-campus interviews.

During session one Clemow will work directly with students to clarify their expectations about this stage of the application process and strengthen their interviewing skills. A question and answer period will follow the teaching workshop.

Session two will be held the following Tuesday evening, Oct. 20. It will be a hands-on experience for students, including mock-telephone and personal interviews with the Youth Center staff. The interviews will be videotaped so that participants can help critique each other's skills.

Students will prepare for session two as if they were attending a real interview, including wearing proper attire. Refreshments and written materials will be provided on both nights of the workshop.

Space is limited, so those interested should register at the Youth Center or Recreation Department as soon as possible.

For information call Darcy Fitzgerald, adolescent youth coordinator, at 721-7129 (5).

O'Donnell named Merit finalist

Christopher M. O'Donnell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Donnell of Everett Avenue and a senior at Phillips Exeter Academy, has been named a semifinalist in the National Merit Scholarship Program.

As a semifinalist in this year's program, he is one of some 15,000 academically-talented high school seniors who will now compete for one of about 6,000 scholarships to be awarded in the spring of 1988.

O'Donnell has been recognized as an outstanding student at Phillips Exeter, where he has achieved honors for his academic work, been a member of the debating team, and participated in the school's sports program as a member of the varsity crew team.

He is a second-year student at the educational secondary school in Exeter, N.H.

Carroll enters Bryn Mawr

Katharine Shannon Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Carroll, Jr. of Winchester entered the freshman class at Bryn Mawr College this fall. Carroll is a graduate of Winchester High School.

Eight residents begin classes at Saint Anselm

Eight Winchester residents have enrolled in the class of 1991 at Saint Anselm College in Manchester, N.H. Lynn M. Braga, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jose J. Braga of Lake Street; Michael F. Doherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Doherty of Oxford Street; Allison Fennell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Fennell of Sargent Road; and Kristin J. McKay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. McKay of Ridge Street, have not yet chosen a major.

Lisa M. Pacione, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand S. Pacione of Clematis Street, will major in nursing.

Stephen E. Preston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen E. Preston of Westland Avenue, will study business.

Peter E. Senna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Senna of Foxcroft Road, will study psychology.

Kristen Veitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Veitch of Alden Lane, will study psychology.

Course on Soviet culture offered

A Course on Soviet culture and U.S./Soviet relations will be offered at Winchester High School beginning Nov. 16 and extending over 10 Mondays to March 14.

The course will be offered at two times 3:15 to 5:15 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. and will be open to sophomores, juniors, and seniors and interested community people.

"The Soviet Experience in the 20th Century and the Failure of Soviet-American Diplomacy" will explore the nature of the Soviet experience in the 20th century and the consequent difficulties in communication between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. from World War I to Chernobyl and SDI.

Lorin Maloney, a social studies teacher at the high school, will teach the class. Maloney has traveled in the U.S.S.R. and has been awarded several National Endowment for the Humanities study grants in Soviet Studies.

The course is being offered in Winchester Public Schools Adult Education Program. Those interested may enroll in the class by calling Karen Smith, Monday to Thursday mornings at 721-7038.

Parents sponsor party for Lyons

The Parents Association at the Vinson-Owen School will sponsor a party for Marie Lyons, the school's former secretary. Lyons retired this summer.

The party will be Oct. 15 at 1 p.m. in the school gym. All parents, students and friends are invited.

"Powerball" Parental Warning "Powerballs" Packed in General Mills' Cheerios®

Please be advised that if you have purchased packages of Cheerios containing a free rubber "powerball," this toy should be kept away from children approximately three years of age or under, or should be discarded.

The ball, which is similar to other balls sold in retail outlets, is non-toxic and comes sealed in heavy plastic that cannot easily be opened by children. The ball meets all federal safety standards and exceeds the minimum size standard for toys for children under three.

However, General Mills has learned that the ball, if placed in the mouth, represents a choking hazard for infants and toddlers.

General Mills has voluntarily halted shipments and has taken steps to remove Cheerios packages containing the "powerball" from grocery store shelves. Cheerios cereal continues to be available in packages not containing the "powerball."

Consumers with questions on this parental warning may contact General Mills at 1-800-328-1144 from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Central Daylight Time.

HEALTH

Asthma group to meet at hospital

On Thursday, Oct. 15, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., the Winchester Hospital Social Services Department's Parents of Asthmatic Children (PAC) group will meet in the hospital's Board Room.

Dr. Gary L. Goldfarb will discuss medications for asthmatic children. As a pediatrician and a member of the medical staff at Winchester Hospital, he regularly discusses this subject with parents and medical professionals and will be available to answer questions following his talk.

PAC is a support and education group which meets several times during the year. The free program is open to the public. For information call 729-9000, ext. 3106.

Hospital becomes smoke-free

Smoking has been named "Public Health Enemy Number One" by the U.S. Surgeon General in light of its role as the leading cause of premature death and disability in our country. Recent medical studies show that non-smokers with chronic heart or lung disease can experience severe distress when exposed to sufficient concentrations of second-hand smoke. Furthermore, research indicates that long-term exposure to involuntary smoking may increase non-smokers' risks of developing severe lung disease.

Winchester Hospital has established a smoke-free, clean air policy. On October 1, Winchester Hospital will become smoke-free in all areas. Only two specifically designated smoking areas in the hospital will be available for people who feel they must smoke.

To assist the community and staff in meeting this goal, Winchester Hospital's Department of Education sponsors a stop-smoking clinic three times a year.

The program enjoys a high long-term success rate. A "Helpline" is available to participants and graduates to provide ongoing support for their new smoke-free lives.

For additional information about the clinic, contact Sue Powers at the Winchester Hospital Education Department, 729-9000, ext. 3004.

Health Dept. schedules flu-shot clinic

For the town residents who were unable to attend the Flu Clinics the Health Department has scheduled a make-up clinic for those seniors and members of the high risk group to obtain their flu inoculation.

The make-up clinic will be held on Oct. 19 at the Housing Authority at 13 Westley St. between 9:30 and 11:30 a.m. No pre-registration is necessary. Anyone wishing to receive a pneumonia inoculation will be charged a fee of $5.

The high risk category includes people of any age with certain chronic conditions such as diabetes, diseases of the heart, lungs or kidneys, severe anemia or lowered resistance to infection due to illness or medication.

The Flu Clinic for the flu inoculation is free of charge!

Hospital to hold AIDS awareness programs

Winchester Hospital will participate in October's National AIDS Awareness Month activities by presenting educational programs during the week of Oct. 12 through 17.

Dr. Sofya Itkis, the hospital's infection surveillance officer, and Sue Powers, community health educator, have planned a series of meetings to support the Massachusetts Hospital Association program, "Fighting Fear with Facts."

A series of coffees for healthcare professionals on Tuesday, Oct. 13, at 7, 9:30 and 10 a.m. and at 2 and 3:30 p.m. will feature Itkis. She will present updated information about the disease, a film will be shown and brochures will be available.

Wednesday, Oct. 14, from 7 to 8:30 p.m., families and individuals are invited to the Kingsbury Seminar Room, where a panel, including Drs. Jonathan L. Adler, Itkis, and Michael W. Marcus, and Elizabeth Kenney, director of Social Services, will introduce an informational film and respond to questions from the audience.

Individuals and groups in the community are encouraged to attend these events. For further information and locations, call 729-9000, ext. 3010.

LEGAL NOTICES

PLANNING BOARD
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENTS

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will conduct a Public Hearing on Monday, October 26, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. at the Senior Center, 107 Skillings Road, upon the proposal by the Winchester Planning Board and a petition to amend the Zoning By-law as follows:

ARTICLE
To see if the Town will vote to amend the Zoning By-law by changing Section 4.4 Table of Use Regulations, Permitted Use 23, by inserting before the word "beverages" the word "non-alcoholic" and to now read as follows:

23. Lunchroom, restaurant, cafeteria or similar place for serving food and/or non-alcoholic beverages, except diner or lunch cart, to persons inside the building.

and to add a new Permitted Use 23A and to read as follows:

23A. Restaurant (with approved alcoholic beverage license) and package store (with approved license for sale of alcoholic beverages) and to insert "N" under all District Headings except under CBD insert "Y".

(By Petition)

Purpose of this amendment is to only allow restaurants that serve alcoholic beverages and package store that sell alcoholic beverages to be permitted in the Center Business District (CBD-20), whereas the present Zoning By-law allows this use in the General Business District (GBD-10), Local Business District (BL-5.50) and Limited Light Industrial District (LL-1.0).

ARTICLE
Amend Section 6.0 Dimensional Requirements by inserting in Section 6.1 Table of Dimensional Requirements opposite District Headings RDA, RDB and RDC Footnote (q) and to read as follows:

(q) In order to limit the degree to which a lot may have an irregular shape, the following build factor formula shall be used:

Lot Perimeter Squared Actual Lot Area

Actual Lot Area Required Lot Area

Lots recorded or endorsed after October 8, 1987 shall be subject to a maximum build factor of 20 in the Single Residence Districts (RDB-10) and (RDB-15), and a maximum build factor of 25 in Single Residence District A (RDA-20).

Lots recorded or endorsed prior to October 8, 1987 may not be modified such that the build factor of the modified lot exceeds 20 in the RDB-10 and RDB-15 districts and not exceed 25 in the RDA-20 district.

Amend Section 9 Definitions by inserting in the appropriate alphabetical order the following definition:

Build factor: A ratio of lot perimeter to lot area which limits the degree to which a lot may have an irregular shape according to the following formula:

Lot Perimeter Squared Actual Lot Area

Actual Lot Area Required Lot Area

Purpose of this amendment is to include language in the Zoning By-law which would limit the degree to which a parcel of land may be subdivided that would result in its having an irregular shape that would be a detriment and cause an adverse effect to the surrounding property.

Prior to the hearing information may be obtained at the Planning Board/Engineering Office temporary quarters, Town Hall Auditorium, 71 Mt. Vernon Street, Winchester, MA.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this 21st day of September 1987.

LAND COURT DEPARTMENT OF THE TRIAL COURT

Middlesex, ss. Civil Action
No. 124076
One Arlington Institute, Inc. and Edward W. Callan Plaintiff(s) vs.
Town of Winchester Defendant(s)

To: All persons interested in the zoning of a parcel of land consisting of approximately 4.72 acres, known and numbered as One Arlington Place, located directly North of the Intersection of Cambridge Street and Arlington Street, in Winchester, Middlesex County, and said Commonwealth.

You are hereby notified that a complaint has been filed by the above-named plaintiff(s) in which you are named as an interested party. The complaint concerns:

A petition brought pursuant to Mass. G.L. Ch. 185, Sec. 1 (1/2) and G.L. Ch. 240, Sec. 14A, seeking a judicial determination that the zoning by-law of the Town of Winchester creating a Conservancy Institutional ("SCI") District is invalid and void as applied to the plaintiff's land or that the plaintiff's proposed use of land is permitted as of right under the by-law or is otherwise exempt therefrom pursuant to Mass. G.L. Ch. 40A, Sec. 3.

This complaint may be examined at the Land Court, Boston, Massachusetts, or a copy obtained from plaintiff's attorney.

If you intend to make any defense, you are hereby required to serve upon plaintiff(s) a written answer, signed by you or your attorney, to the complaint, together with a copy thereof, on or before the sixteenth day of November, the return day hereof, and a copy thereof must be filed in this Court on or before said day.

If you fail to do so, judgement by default will be taken against you for the relief demanded in the complaint. Unless otherwise provided by Rule 13(a), your answer must state as a counterclaim any claim which you may have against the plaintiff(s) which arises out of the transaction or occurrence that is the subject matter of the plaintiff's claim or you will thereafter be barred from making such claim in any other action.

It is ORDERED that notice be given by publishing a copy of this order one time in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in the County of Middlesex, one month at least before the sixteenth day of November.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Winchester Board of Appeal will hold a Public Hearing on Tuesday, October 20, 1987 at 7:00 P.M. in the Winchester Chamber of Commerce Office, 25 Waterfield Road, (train station), Winchester, Ma., on the following matters:

(1) Petition No. 2789 — That of Conant Road Nominee Realty Trust concerning the property at 228 Cross Street and 7 Conant Road. The petitioner is seeking a Site Plan Review in accordance with Section 8.7 and 8.52 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Laws so as to be permitted to construct four buildings containing 70 units. The property is located in the RDA-120 (Multiple Family) zoning district and contains 320,350 square feet.

(2) Petition No. 2799 — That of John W. & Katherine L. Zarker concerning the property at 22 Grove Place, Unit 11. The petitioners are seeking to amend a prior Board of Appeal Decision No. 2576 so as to be permitted to enclose an existing deck. The property is located in the P.R.D. (Planned Residential) zoning district and contains 10,934 sq. acres.

(3) Petition No. 2800 — That of Milton & Evelyn Trageser concerning the property at 9 North Gateway. The petitioners are seeking a Dimensional Variance from Section 6.1 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law in accordance with Chapter 40A, Section 10 of the Massachusetts General Laws so as to be permitted to construct an addition too close to the front property line. The property is located in the R.D.B. (Residential B) zoning district and contains 10,000 square feet.

(4) Petition No. 2801 — That of Roger L. & Anne B. Herman concerning the property at 102 Pond Street. The petitioners are seeking a Dimensional Variance from Section 6.1, and a Special Permit from Sections 3.45 and 8.5 of the Town of Winchester Zoning By-Law in accordance with Chapter 40A, Sections 9 & 10 of the Massachusetts General Laws so as to be permitted to construct an addition too close to the side property lines. The property is located in the R.D.B. (Residential B) zoning district and contains 9,883 square feet.

Sachemettes show improvement

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' soccer team culminated a week of improvement with an all out effort against Belmont. But the Sachemettes let Belmont escape with a 0-0 tie and now both teams share second place behind Wakefield.

The battle with Belmont was as exciting a game as the Sachemettes have had yet this season, giving the girls a chance to salvage a disappointing first half of the season. A win would have given them a share of first place with a showdown coming up Monday against Wakefield.

The Sachemettes came out a little flat at the start as the fine dribbling skills of the Maraudettes made them look bad. But once Winchester got control of the ball, they took command of the play as they continually threatened to score.

On the defensive side, the Sachemettes benefitted from the fine play of Kelly Meehan, Sandra Bennett, Deborah Skahan and Cara McDonough. McDonough was recently switched from offense to centerfullback by coach Chris Scanlon and the move has seemingly paid off as her speed and intensity have helped solidify a defense that was good but prone to an occasional lapse.

The second half of the game belonged purely to the Sachemettes as they continually peppered the Belmont goaltender with a variety of shots from various angles. Debbie Nowell was the leader of the onslaught. She controlled the center of the field and set up her teammates and herself time and time again. Amy Binding nearly scored on a header in front but the ball just went over the crossbar. Binding, who also played well against Foxboro, suffered a painful ankle injury soon after her scoring bid and had to leave the game.

The Sachemettes kept the attack going however, and the further the game went on, the more intense the action was in front of the Belmont goal. Julie Sexeny, Ingrid Spanjaard, Kim Small, Denise Chabot, Emily Doherty, Margaret Cunningham and Nowell all had at least one strong chance to score. Sexeny, Spanjaard, and Chabot had several as Nowell's corner kicks created general chaos in the Belmont goalmouth.

Although not nearly as busy as her Belmont counterpart, goalie Allyson Price played a good game and even sacrificed her body at one point to get to a loose ball before a Belmont forward did.

Fullback Sandra Bennett executes a throw-in against Foxboro.

Saturday morning's game versus Foxboro produced a similar battle to the one waged with Belmont. The difference was Foxboro managed to sneak one past Price at the end of the first half for the 1-0 final score. Price dove to her right but the ball took a tricky hop and got past her. Winchester dominated for the most part but were unable to put one past the Foxboro goalie.

The Sachemettes did find the scoring touch last week against Lexington, however, and romped to a 6-2 win. Spanjaard and Chabot each scored twice while McDonough and Doherty had one goal apiece.

The Sachemettes will be seeking to avenge their only Middlesex League loss ever when they travel to Wakefield this Monday.

Harriers extend streak

By MARGARET ELLIS
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' cross country team extended its winning streak as they defeated Watertown and Burlington by wide margins in recent meets.

When the Sachems hosted Watertown last week, co-captain Dave McClintock took first place with a time of 16:24. Co-captain Mike Aldrich was second, at 17:34, and Jesse DeGeorge, a promising sophomore, came in fourth with 18:07. Fifth and sixth places went to senior Jon Sudbury (18:50) and Day Davis (19:07), a junior. Other Winchester finishers were, in order of completion: Tucker Brandt, Doug Holt, Paul O'Neill, Jason Finch, Dave Banks, Finn Pullen, Chris Leydon, Chris Wheeler, Enrique Vilella and Mark Merullo.

The next meet, three days later, was against Burlington on their home course where the Sachems won once again. Aldrich and McClintock took first and second respectively with identical times of 16:24 and DeGeorge (16:48) and Sudbury (16:55) completed a four-place sweep. Davis, a junior, placed seventh with a time of 17:48. Holt, O'Neill, Pullen, Leydon, Wheeler, Merullo and Jarueba Taylor also ran well. The Sachems are working with a very strong field of runners that also includes Marc Schwitters and Jason Kuberski, who are on injured reserve. But they will be facing some stiff competition in Reading and Lexington.

The girls' team does not have as strong a group of runners as the boys, yet they are working to become a more competitive team during the last half of the fall season. The Sachemettes consist mostly of new faces (and legs) with Margaret Ellis, captain Laura Tozza, and Jennifer Lee returning. Newcomers include: Sarah Fitzpatrick, Shelley Olivadoti, Britta Weist, Siobhan Doherty, Sonya Lizotte, Petra Rydlova and Kelly Petri.

Swim team loses first

By WENDY BOERNER
Special to the Star

The Winchester High School girls swim team suffered their first loss of the season on Saturday to their rivals, Melrose, 28-48. This meet was predicted to be a close competition since last year the teams tied. However, the Sachemettes were met with defeat.

Melrose led from the beginning with A. Donohue, D. Letch, M. Rowe, and M. Dupont winning the medley relay with a time of 2:06:70. Melrose also received second. Winchester's Liz McCann, Wendy Boerner, Shellah McCarthy, and Valerie Fleck received third.

Winchester's Juliet Estridge placed second in the 200-free style closely followed by teammate Mary Murray. Melrose's M. Rowe captured first in the 200IM with McCann of Winchester receiving a close second with a time of 2:35:13.

Kathy McGillicuddy of Winchester won the 50-free style with a 26:34 with teammate Erica Fleck placing third. M. Dupont of Melrose swam a 1:07:36 100-butterfly to capture first place. Teammate M. Hughes received second and Sachemette McCarthy third.

McGillicuddy also won the 100-free style with an impressive time of 59:64. However, in the 500-free style the Sachemettes did not have the same luck. E. Fleck placed third with a 6:19:45.

The 100-back stroke was another Melrose victory with McCann of Winchester achieving second. Boerner placed second in the 100-breast stroke for the Sachemettes with a time of 1:22:99.

Estridge, Fleck, Fleck, and McGillicuddy ended the meet with a win for Winchester in the 400-free style relay.

Despite the motivation provided by the red and black streamers and balloons decorating the Sachemettes' side of the pool, the girls suffered a hard loss. Many of the swimmers, Kim McCarthy, Amy Doe, Suzanne Foley, Heather Germain, Meghan Herlihy, Kara McGillicuddy, Jen McCart, Diana Coughlin, Beth Crawford, Sarah Gaumer, Liza Stevens, and Julie Adelberger, had personal bests in their individual events so in this respect the Sachemettes had a victory. The girls hope that their hard practicing and team spirit will pay off when they go against Lexington on Friday.

Field hockey team win streak stalled

By CYNTHIA PREE
Special to the Star

The Winchester High varsity field hockey team's momentum temporarily stalled as a result of Monday's game with Belmont.

The girls seemed very confident as they took the field and set up for a passback. The Sachemettes were in for a difficult game, however, with Belmont scoring four goals to Winchester's zero.

Assistant coach Ellen Verra thinks the team may have been looking ahead too much.

"Varsity didn't play up to their full potential today," said Verra. "Belmont should have been beatable but the team is looking forward to future games, especially a win against Wakefield to stay in fourth place."

The game was not without exceptional performances, as Leslie Pedulla kept the defense together and Terese Krajewski played various positions with style. Despite the four-goal deficit, the Sachemettes never let up before the final whistle.

Last week, the team had success against Stoneham as they forged a 0-0 tie against the unbeaten Lady Spartans. This game was played extremely well by the varsity team, both offensively and defensively. The forward line worked together smoothly while goaltender Ritika Bowry came up with the big save on a penalty stroke. Among the many girls who played well were Catherine Colson, who had numerous defensive saves and Colleen O'Connor, who took part in frequent fast breaks.

Winchester's near future challenges include Woburn, Wakefield, Melrose and Watertown.

The Sachems lose second

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High football team, for the second week in a row, lost a close game on the road as they were nipped by Melrose, 21-20.

As was the case two weeks ago against Wakefield, the Sachems came from behind with the tying touchdown in the fourth quarter only to fail on the two-point conversion that would have won the game for them. The team returns to the friendly confines of Knowlton Stadium this Saturday when they will attempt to take out their frustrations on Watertown.

Winchester began the game with two quick touchdowns and appeared to be on their way to a rout. The scores were set up by a pair of weak punts that gave the Sachems the ball on the Melrose 30 yard line. On the first touchdown, a fine run by Scott Garvey (22-100) put the ball on the 13 before quarterback Micky Feeley lofted a perfect pass over a Melrose defender into the arms of Matt Langley in the back of the end zone. The second score followed another Garvey rush which gave the Sachems first and goal on the 1-yard line. Andy Sexeny strolled in untouched from there and, with Clayton Wright's two extra point conversions, they led 14-0.

Melrose speed merchant Chris Pierce stripped the Sachems of their momentum on the ensuing kickoff as he raced 43 yards for a touchdown.

Turnovers plagued both sides in this game and Frank Curtis had two fumble recoveries and Garvey had two interceptions in the first half alone. The Sachems mounted one more drive before the half but Feeley came up a yard short on fourth down at the Melrose 35.

The third quarter belonged to Melrose. They tied the score with a touchdown and successful two-point conversion. Then they took the lead in the fourth quarter as Pierce again burned the Sachems with his speed. He caught a pass over the middle at the Sachem 35 and then cut the secondary in his dust as he sped into the end zone with the go-ahead score.

Winchester was on a roll when, on fourth and one from deep in Melrose (Please see FOOTBALL pg. 16)

Boys' team continues to win Sachems lose

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' soccer team continues to show the form they will need to capture a second consecutive state championship as they disposed of rival Lexington, 2-0, after thrashing Stoneham, 6-0, earlier in the week.

Vandy French was the star of the week as he scored both goals against Lexington and a hat trick against Stoneham. Overall, the team looks unbeatable right now but coach Gene Bouley is not one to get too excited. "Yes, we're playing really well right now," said Bouley. "But we still have to play Belmont and then Wakefield, which will be tough for us."

A strong, swirling wind gave the Sachems trouble early on against Lexington but they adjusted and by mid-half they began to mount serious scoring threats. French, Paul Erbafina and Rob Kean each had chances before French came through on a feed from the ever present Paul Capodano.

French struck again early in the second half as he headed Erbafina's penalty shot into the far corner. From there the defense took over and did not allow any good scoring bids for the minutemen the rest of the way. The defensive charge was led by David Ducharme, Steve Reeve and Mike Schoenegge.

In the Stoneham romp, French netted the first three goals as the Sachems were in control of the tempo from the outset. As usual, Capodano was the setup man as he assisted on the first two goals. In the second half, Jason MacConkey continued the rampage with a goal and David Romboli assisted before he put himself in the scoring column on a pass from Ken Fowler. Matt Rotondi rounded out the scoring with a late goal from MacConkey.

The Sachems need only to get by Belmont and Woburn for a perfect first half of the season. The second half begins Monday with a showdown with Wakefield at Skillings Field beginning at 10:30 a.m.

territory, Feeley hit Jon Furey with a pass good enough for the first down. But Furey was not finished as he bulldozed his way into the endzone. Coach Manny Marshall decided to go for the win but the Melrose defense showed excellent outside pursuit and caught Garvey behind the line of scrimmage as the Sachems hopes were dashed.

This week, the Sachems will be looking to rebound from two tough road losses in a row. The offense has shown it can put points on the board. And the defense is smarting after letting up two touchdowns in one game for the first time this year. The Sachems will face a Watertown team that could be ready for a letdown after an emotional victory over Wakefield. Saturday's home game will begin at 1:30 p.m.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL
Volume 13-Report No. 40
Massachusetts House and Senate
September 28-October 2, 1987

The House and Senate, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on three roll calls from the week of September 28-October 2. There were no important roll calls in the Senate.

Jails (H 6060)—House 120-32, gave near final approval and sent to the Senate the bill providing for a comprehensive state takeover of the maintenance and operation of county correctional facilities.

Supporters said the bill is long overdue and will streamline and improve the operation of the correctional system.

Opponents said the bill is flawed and claimed the state cannot afford to assume these costs.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

Reorg (H 6048)—House 150-0, approved a lengthy plan reorganizing the Executive Office of Economic Affairs and the Department of Commerce and Development.

Supporters said the restructuring will redirect and refocus the existing bureaucracy and will be an effective tool in helping Massachusetts' businesses create a promising economic future.

A Yea vote is for the bill.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

Development Grants (H 38)—House 131-18, refused to recommit to the House Ways and Means Committee a bill increasing funding for the community development action program from $20 million to $50 million.

Bill supporters said the additional money is necessary to continue to grant money to cities and towns for site preparation work to help communities build affordable housing.

Opponents of the bill said it should be sent back to committee to address a number of problems. Some said the units are not very affordable and claimed private developers are using the system to their own advantage.

A Yea vote is for recommitting the bill to Ways and Means. A Nay vote is against recommitment.

Saltmarsh voted no.

The Window Place

For more than twelve years Neil Haggerty has been improving the appearance of area homes and businesses as owner/president of Prime Contracting Inc. In the course of remodelling hundreds of homes and building an impeccable reputation for quality workmanship, Neil discovered a need for a separate division specializing in windows; complementing his already successful contracting business. In September 1986 The Window Place was formed. This division of Prime Contracting has a permanent showroom located in 601 Main St., Winchester where you are sure to find the window, blinds or shades which best suit your home or office.

With his extensive experience in the field owner Haggerty will help you choose the window that's right for your home or office needs. To help you select the blinds or shades which best with the decor of that home or office, decorating expert Theresa DeConto is available for consultation. Theresa who studies interior decorating at Framingham State College, is a lifelong Winchester resident with more than four years of experience in interior decorating, with a primary focus on window decorations.

After experiencing what he describes as an "overwhelming demand for specialization in "just windows," Haggerty formed The Window Place which he says has received a "phenomenal response."

If fact Haggerty explains that "Since the Window Place opened his company has experienced an unprecedented growth."

The Window Place offers a variety of windows including bay, bow, garden, and double hung models. All are custom-fitted and designed for the energy conscious consumer, and all are very competitively priced.

With a contracting background specializing in thermal insulation, Haggerty is more than qualified to assist you in selecting a window that will result in a substantial heat savings. As he explains, "When you want to make the right choice call The Window Place."

The Window Place is open Monday-Friday 10-6, Saturday 10-2, and Haggerty and DeConto are available by appointment at your convenience, for in-home consultation.

With a wide selection of windows, roller and pleated shades and mini, micro and vertical blinds, and a variety of name brands like Levolor, Kirsch and Delmar, you are sure to satisfy your window needs at The Window Place.

OBITUARIES

Sally Thompson

Sally R. Thompson, a native of Winchester, died in Suncoast Manor, St. Petersburg, Fla., where she has lived for the past 20 years.

A graduate of Wellesley College, Miss Thompson was a French teacher for 45 years. She was head of the French department at Hathaway-Brown, a private girls school in Cleveland, Ohio, for 30 years.

Miss Thompson was born in Winchester. She was the daughter of Bertha and Benjamin Thompson.

She is survived by a brother, Stephen Thompson II of Fairfield, Conn., and one nephew.

Burial will be private at Wildwood Cemetery.

Mrs. Davis was a member of the Self-Realization Fellowship in Phoenix.

She was the daughter of the late William D. Cronin.

Mrs. Davis is survived by her husband, R.C. Samuel Davis of Phoenix; a son, R. John Davis of Phoenix; her mother, Jane M. (Clarkson) Cronin of Winchester; and four brothers, William J. Cronin of Brooklyn, N.Y., Gregory M. Cronin of Marston Mills, Jeffrey D. Cronin of Jamaica Plain, and Gilbert D. Cronin of Winchester.

The funeral Mass was conducted by the Rev. Paul G. Kelley at the Church of St. Mary Sept. 15.

Arrangements were by the Costello Funeral Home.

Memorial donations may be made to the Hospice of the Valley, 240 W. Osborn, Suite 200, Phoenix, Ariz., 85013.

Juliet Davis

Juliet (Cronin) Davis of Phoenix, Ariz., died Sept. 9. She was 33.

Mrs. Davis was born in Winchester and lived here for 26 years. She attended Winchester High School, Virginia Intermont College and Vermont College.

chester since 1937.

Mrs. Chipman was born in Peoria, Ill. She was a graduate of Illinois Wesleyan and received her doctorate in botany from the University of Michigan in 1923.

She was the wife of the late John Chipman, former head of the Department of Metallurgy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She was an active member of the Winchester Home and Garden Club and contributed to designing and overseeing the landscaping for a number of public buildings in Winchester. She will be remembered by many for her beautiful garden with its outstanding collection of wildflowers.

She is survived by a son, David R. Chipman of South Dartmouth; a daughter, Ruth C. Busch, of LaFayette, Ala.; five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

A memorial service was held at the Parish of the Epiphany, on Oct. 6.

Memorial donations may be made to the New England Wildflower Society, Garden in the Woods, Hemenway Road, Framingham, 01701.

Margaret Coulson

Margaret M. Coulson, formerly of Lewis Road, died at the Newfield House in Plymouth Oct. 6. She was 92.

Mrs. Coulson was born in Medford and lived in Winchester for 50 years. She moved to Plymouth 10 years ago.

She is a graduate of the Winsor School in Boston and the Bouve Graduate Physical Education School in Boston.

Mrs. Coulson was a member of the Friends of the Winchester Hospital, and the Winchester Country Club, where she played golf and was a member of the curling team. She was a member of the Shakespeare Club of Medford and a life member of the Royal House in Medford. Mrs. Coulson was also an active member of the Unitarian Church in Winchester.

She was the wife of the late John Coulson.

Mrs. Coulson is survived by three daughters, Mrs. J.W. Smith of Marion; Jane Aldrich of Duxbury, and Mrs. Peter Phillips of San Francisco; four grandchildren, Brooks C. Smith, John Aldrich, Pamela Phillips and Deborah Phillips; and two great-grandsons, Joshua Smith and Andrew G. Smith.

Graveside services will be held in Wildwood Cemetery Friday, Oct. 9, at 2:30 p.m.

Arrangements are by the Lane Funeral Home.

Stop smoking

Research now provides evidence that to give up smoking even at a late age can produce health benefits. Unfortunately, many older smokers may believe it is too late to quit.

Research shows that coronary heart disease, chronic bronchitis and emphysema often exhibit a rapid decline with the cessation of smoking.

problems that have pitted the selectmen against each other.

The dissention began when Deering was elected vice chairman of the board, a position Lombardi claims should be his. It is customary for the two selectmen whose terms will expire the soonest to fill the chair and vice chair seats, Lombardi said at the time. He left a meeting Sept. 14 when he found out that Deering would be chairing it. Muggia was on vacation.

Sopper told the board that night that he was upset that Muggia "did not have the courtesy to let all the members of the board know she would not be at the meeting."

Selectmen board of three meets

this was the first board meeting he has missed this year.

Lombardi said he did not know Sopper was also absent from the meeting, and he added that he does not communicate with the other selectmen from week to week. "I believe some of them do (communicate with each other). I'm not one of the ones that's in on that, though," Lombardi remarked, and said he would "rather not say who does it."

Sopper could not be reached for comment before the Star press deadline.

This is just the latest in a series of

Two Loop articles added to warrant consistent. She said the by-laws list two different square footage sizes.

"My feeling is that (the change) will not necessarily allow any more spaces in so (a developer) can get a few more spaces, but will allow for more green space in a parking lot. There can be more buffering, more trees. You'd have to have a fairly large lot to get more spaces but from the esthetic viewpoint it's important," McCall-Taylor said.

As for the frontage change,

McCall-Taylor commented that the multifamily residential district up for the zoning change is the only district currently with a frontage requirement of more than 50 feet. She said all the other zoning districts' frontage laws were reduced to 50 feet last year.

"I don't know why" this one wasn't changed, McCall-Taylor said, adding, "Maybe it was an oversight at the time." She said she believes the change would "make the rules more consistent within all the districts in town."

McCall-Taylor also noted that by-laws governing lot widths and setbacks will limit the number of cars exiting onto a cul-de-sac, thereby protecting cul-de-sacs from too much traffic or dense development. "The Planning Board is careful. The amendments are good for the whole town, not for the benefit of one developer," she said.

Disagreeing with her was Selectman Mark Lombardi, who did not attend this week's meeting but aired his opinions at last week's. "I haven't changed my views since last week," he told the Star Tuesday. "I don't think the town should change the zoning laws for one developer. He should go before the Zoning Board of Appeals; that's the vehicle there for him," Lombardi said.

He said he thinks the town is unfairly making the process easier for the developers involved, and he feels the changes would not be beneficial to the town. "I still feel some other developer can slide in under that change," Lombardi asserted.

Town Manager Chadwick Maurer has noted that the developers still have to go to the appeals board for approval on other facets of their proposals.

Women join Rotary

"I think it's a great opportunity for women to break into the male business world," Kehoe said. Women, she added, don't have as many business opportunities as men.

Women will bring new ideas and new life into the Rotary Club, Kehoe said.

Kehoe is involved in the club's current fundraising effort, a performance of Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band at the McCall Junior High School Auditorium the first two weekends in November.

Susan LaViolette of Glengarry Street is a self-employed orthopedic physical therapy specialist. She said she is "very excited" that women are now free to become Rotarians.

"I know there are a lot of men not used to having females around," LaViolette said.

"I think Thursday they gave roses to their first Rotarian," LaViolette said laughing.

But she joined the Rotary not to be one of the first women, but because she feels strongly about what it does. "I like the philosophy of the club and I want to stay with it," she said.

LaViolette said she wants to make sure the club assists charities that work with battered women and broken families, two areas that many people consider "women's issues."

The lone man joining the club last week, Gentile did not mind at all. "Being among three women felt good. We went out to lunch together," he said.

On a more serious note, Gentile, who lives in Woburn, added, "I think it's going to be very good. It will give us a better idea of how women in the business community feel."

"It will give us good input and we will have another outlet," Gentile said about the expanded membership.

Gentile works at BayBank on Church Street.

A world of ART

Story by Meredith Fife Day

Museum-and-gallery-goers this season, with slightly more legwork than the armchair traveler, will be able to absorb in some way worlds influenced by place, tradition and cultural characteristics.

The view at the Museum of Fine Arts is distinctly American.

Beginning Oct. 14, a major exhibition of the paintings, drawings and photographs of Charles Sheeler, a pioneer of American modernism will celebrate the artist's visual exploration of Bucks County and New England barns, industrial architecture, New York skyscrapers and Shaker-furnished interiors.

About 80 of Sheeler's photographs will be exhibited here for the first time. An equal number of his paintings and drawings borrowed from museums and private collections across the country will give us a view of early twentieth century America by one of its most gifted artists.

And there is the America of Andrew Wyeth, whose paintings of the mysterious woman, Helga, evoke an oddly sensual presence in a puritanical, crisp-edged world of stark light and quiet shadows. Decide now when you are going to see The Helga Pictures, on exhibit Oct. 28 through Jan. 3; the show is this year's block-buster and tickets are being sold at the museum and more than 700 Ticketron outlets to the thousands of viewers expected.

Contemporary Americans Ellsworth Kelly and Terry Winters are also featured in museum exhibitions. Winter's abstract paintings and drawings are marked by nervously energetic surfaces and are on display at both the museum and at MIT's List Visual Arts Center through Nov. 29.

The artist himself will be present for a conversation on his work with curator Clifford S. Ackley Oct. 25 at the MFA. Ellsworth Kelly: Works on Paper opens Dec. 2 and will include figure drawings, portraits, collages and photographs.

Kelly came into prominence in New York in the early 1960s. Committed to a minimalist form of abstraction firmly grounded in the world around him, his work is characterized by a union of formal geometric shapes and sensual colors. Again, List Visual Arts Center will join the museum in simultaneously presenting Kelly's small sculpture.

The Danforth Museum has American drawings and watercolors from its permanent collection on exhibit through Dec. 31, and just opened Interior Spaces: Contemporary New England Artists featuring 50 works by 38 area artists selected by curator Elizabeth Wylie.

One of New England's important artists, Morgan Bulkeley, is being honored with a 20-year retrospective at the DeCordova Museum. Bulkeley's visual storytelling strikes an original and surreal note with a cast of fastidiously painted, detailed characters and objects. The artist refers to both the Berkshires and to metropolitan Boston in combining American cityscape and landscape with his own rich and enigmatic fantasies.

Beginning Dec. 12 The DeCordova will show recent work of 26 established and emerging artists from New England ranging from the elegantly austere still lifes of William Bailey to the dense landscapes of Neil Welliver.

No longer emerging New England artists are Boston's Doug and Mike Starn. The Starn Twins' photographs of fragmented, tormented surfaces conclude with jolting monumentality that speaks of both endurance and change. Their hot reputation notwithstanding, the artists have something to say and say it with unique beauty and effectiveness. Their new works are featured at Stux Gallery on Newbury Street Oct. 6 through 31.

Several other galleries are tipping their berets to New England artists this season.

Newton Arts Center has on exhibit a forty year retrospective of paintings and prints by abstract expressionist Lawrence Kupferman, who was for 29 years head of the painting department at Massachusetts College of Art.

On Nov. 13 the center will open an exhibition of paintings by the students of Henry Schwartz, including Ken Beck, Gerry Bergstein and Natalie Alper. Schwartz has taught painting at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts School for three decades.

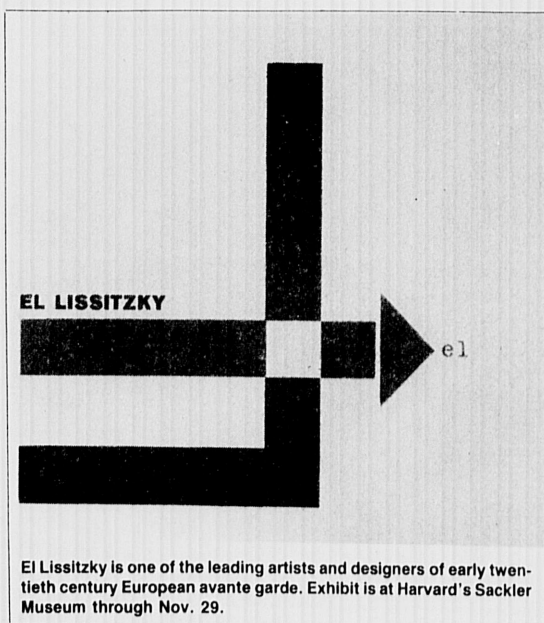

Agnes Abbot, who celebrated her 90th birthday in August, taught at Wellesley College from her graduation there until her 1963 retirement. The Concord Art Association features a retrospective of her paintings dating from 1917 to the present.

Julia Saul Gallery in Sudbury will exhibit monotypes, drawings and paintings by distinguished Boston artist Suzanne Hodes, beginning Oct. 20.

Group shows of New England artists will be featured by Boston University art gallery Oct. 30 through Dec. 13, Clark Gallery in Lincoln Dec. 1 through 24 and Francesca Anderson Gallery on Newbury Street Nov. 19 through Dec. 23.

Nielson Gallery will show new work by its Boston artists, including Jane Smaldone, Jon Imber, Dexter Lazenby and Catherine McCarthy, Oct. 17 through Nov. 28.

Nielson's current exhibit of works on paper by the late Profirio

El Lissitzky is one of the leading artists and designers of early twentieth century European avant-garde. Exhibit is at Harvard's Sackler Museum through Nov. 29.

Fall Art Preview

Bunny Harvey's Studio Light, an oil on canvas, is on exhibit at the Danforth Museum of Art, 123 Union Ave., Framingham.

DiDonna is one of the most eloquent and moving shows of the season.

The nearly 400-member Cambridge Art Association begins the season with dual exhibits of members' work at their Lowell Street gallery and at University Place in Harvard Square, which will be used as an exhibition site by the group on a rotating basis. An Albert Alcalay retrospective exhibition will be installed at both galleries Nov. 15 through Dec. 18.

For a closer, more participatory look at area artists, watch for fall and holiday open studios. The Fort Point Arts Community of South Boston, representing more than 300 visual artists, hosts its eighth annual open studios Oct. 17 and 18.

Belmont's Kendall Center for the Arts opens its studios to the public Oct. 25, and the lively and respected Rugg Road papermaking studio of Allston holds open house Nov. 7 and 8.

The Wadsworth Atheneum in Hartford, CT, presents through Nov. 15 the only Northeast showing of American Women Artists 1830-1930, the first comprehensive survey of 100 years of painting and sculpture by professional women artists. Including well-known artists such as Mary Cassatt and Georgia O'Keeffe, and introducing many little-known and newly discovered women artists, the exhibit was organized by the National Museum of Women in the Arts and includes more than 110 paintings and sculptures arranged in five major categories.

Finally, a great interpreter of the American city dweller is New York painter Lester Johnson. Brandeis University's Rose Art Museum will exhibit Johnson's big figurative work Nov. 8 through Dec. 20.

While the emphasis in area exhibitions this year is clearly on American art, viewers will also find available a good, long look at Japan. Surimono, privately commissioned Japanese prints, from the Chester Beatty Library in Dublin, are on exhibit at the Worcester Art Museum through Nov. 1. The museum is also showing Mokuhanja, Japanese woodblock prints from 1680 to 1980, drawn primarily from its collection.

Meisho-e: Famous Places in Japanese Prints by Hiroshige is on view through Jan. 24 at Rhode Island School of Design Museum of Art in Providence.

The Williams College Museum of Art in Williamstown features through Oct. 25 Mingei: Japanese Folk Art, 100 objects from Brooklyn Museum's collection including paintings, sculpture and ceramics.

Last summer Harvard University Art Museums introduced us to 19th century Italian painters known as the Macchiaioli. Then this past spring we saw at the Fogg Museum Russian paintings from 1850 to 1910. Now through Nov. 29 we are able to see the first exhibition in an American museum devoted to the work of the modern Russian artist El Lissitzky.

Organized by Peter Nisbet of the Harvard Art Museum curatorial staff, El Lissitzky's work is on view at the Arthur M. Sackler Museum. The artist was one of the leaders in European avant-garde between the two world wars. Nearly 100 of his works will be exhibited, including prints, collages, paintings, drawings, photographs and typographical designs. The exhibit affords us the opportunity not only to see fine and important art, but to more fully understand and to expand our world.

Don't let the listings be too overwhelming. While there is a lot of predictable excitement in store for area viewers, surprises are always just around the corner. And there's nothing more rewarding than discovering artists and works you didn't know about, or overcoming a bias when being quite taken by something you were prepared not to like.

Poke around museums and galleries and find that the world is varied and immense. The view is terrific.

Agnes Abbot's watercolors are currently being shown at the Concord Art Association.

Nightstage celebrates

Rosemary and Nightstage, the highly acclaimed nightclub/restaurant complex just outside Central Square in Cambridge celebrates its second anniversary with a ten-day gala of jazz stars beginning with Wynton Marsalis on Oct. 14 and 15, in his only area nightclub appearance.

Rosemary and Nightclub celebrate on Oct. 19, with a special appearance by British blues legend John Mayall and the Blues Breakers. Festivities continue with Jonathan Richman and the Modern Lovers, back by popular demand, on Oct. 20 and 21, and conclude with Dizzy Gillespie and his Quintet — celebrating Dizzy's 70th birthday — on Oct. 22 and 23.

Nightstage's success is due to a combination of the quality and diversity of the acts packing its six-nights-per-week schedule and the distinctive appeal of its two-level cabaret-style room.

The club has become a mecca for an eclectic mix of music in the Hub area, featuring blues, jazz, R&B, reggae, and bluegrass from both nationally recognized talent to the best of Boston.

Artists range from Maynard Ferguson, Robert Cray, The Fabulous Thunderbirds, Les Paul, Albert King, and Ladysmith Black Mambazo to Duke Robillard, Girl's Night Out, and Jonathan Richman from the local scene.

Rosemary and Nightstage is located at 823 Main St., Central Square, Cambridge. Nightstage is open Sunday from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m., Tuesday and Wednesday from 7:30 p.m. to 1 a.m., and Thursday through Saturday from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. All major credit cards are accepted.

Dinner show packages and valet parking are available. For information and reservations call 497-8200. Tickets are available at Nightstage; Out-Of-Town Ticket Agency, Harvard Square; Concertcharge, 497-1118; Teletron, 720-3434;

Ticketron; and Strawberries Records.

Sheboppin'

Wishin' and a hopin' Sheboppin' was one fine show

SHEBOPPIN', a new 60's musical conceived and written by Fran Charnas, Michael Oster and John B. Welch; directed by Fran Charnas; musical arrangements and original music by Ed Wells; choreography by Barry Gallo; scenic design by Edwin Steel and T. Lee Trimble; lighting design by Thom Palm; costume design by Barbara Bell; sound design by Dan Kidwell. With Theresa Capachione, Liz McCartney, Rachel Lynn Oliver and Natalie Toro. At the Wilbur Theatre, 246 Tremont St., Boston, for an open-ended run.

Sheboppin', a new 60s musical, is structured around 25 of the more popular tunes of an era fondly remembered as an age of innocence that came to an end in 1963. The songs are strung together by a wispy storyline about as thin as a strand of hair. In baseball parlance, it's good score, no book.

Sheboppin' is a small, intimate musical revue that probably would have been more at home in a smaller, more intimate house. Booking the newly renovated Wilbur Theatre smacks of pretentiousness, even though the facility has been pared down to a 499-seat cabaret-style space. The package is simply not big enough nor do the performers possess the gloss or professionalism to sustain an entire show. And wild amplification does not compensate!

The cast is comprised of four young women who truly knock themselves out trying to please. All possess fine voices and their vocal talents are formidable both as soloists and in harmony.

Rachel Lynn Oliver really rocks the audience, and bubbly, high energy Natalie Toro also acquits herself nicely. The problems surface during the non-musical segments, weak acting compounded by inane dialogue.

Musically, the revue is very strong: the four-piece combo is terrific and Fran Charnas' varied staging of each and every number is fabulous. The cast is well-rehearsed, their precision letter-perfect, as they interpret songs popularized by groups like The Chiffons, The Shirelles, The Drifters, The Diamonds, and Buddy Holly and the Crickets, and individual performers like Neil Sedaka, Bobby Darin, Brenda Lee, Elvis Presley, Aretha Franklin and Otis Redding. Eventually, however, the numbers seem to blur together.

The overly-long first act of Sheboppin', set in a sleek beauty parlor called Coiffures by Cookie, results in seat-squirming time. It could use a little clipping here and there, a bit of trimming and reshaping.

It's a sad commentary when the biggest yak-yak of the night results from a piece of scenery popping off the set and bouncing on the floor.

Now, most everyone knows (through hearsay or experience) that Saturday in a hair salon — when the action takes place — is the most hectic day of the week, what with the pressures imposed upon the poor, bedraggled operators who must put up with all those pushy customers whose patronage pays their bills. So, before, during, and after their day's toil, we learn about our four diverse beauticians of varied ethnic backgrounds, their complaints and their dreams.

The store manager, true-blue Delores (Theresa Capachione), has a boyfriend in the service. But his ardor has obviously waned, since his letters have dropped from twice a week to once a month and marriage is no longer mentioned... (A Thousand Miles Away, Dedicated to the One I Love).

Vivacious Betty (Rachel Lynn Oliver) is being used by her boyfriend (Sweet Talkin' Guy) but either fails or refuses to recognize it (When a Man Loves a Woman). Young L.T.D. (Natalie Toro), the 15-year-old manicurist (?) and general sweeper-upper, wants only to wear High Heel Shoes and to watch Jerry Lee Lewis on television (Mr. Lee and Gee Whiz).

Blonde and buxom Arlene (Liz McCartney)... "One of my hips keeps Nabisco in the black!"... recalls her first date, with Lester Hickey, "who lived up to his name!"; a second experience (Up on the Roof; and a third, when her date tried to make her at a drive-in movie where "the featured attraction was me!" (Will He Still Love Me Tomorrow?).

In the second act the older woman holds a surprise party for L.T.D. (Happy Birthday Sweet Sixteen) which eventually evolves into a maudlin affair. There's nothing so despairing as four lonely women having a birthday celebration in a beauty parlor after the shop has closed, recognizing and accepting their forlorn plight.

Miss Oliver is sensational in her renditions of 'Wishin' and Hopin' and Do Right Woman, Do Right Man. Other standout numbers include One Fine Day, Twist & Shout, Heartbreak Hotel, I Met Him on a Sunday, and the title tune, marred only by the excessive patter.

The main ingredient missing from the show is men! You long to see a male or two up on the stage just to break up this all-female montage. If only the salon had been unisex...

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — You can make valuable contacts early in the week. You may get some answers about family matters, perhaps not what you had hoped to hear. Read the fine print and check on sources when remodeling your home — you have support.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Your money picture appears brighter and you get on more solid ground. Short journeys involving relatives, excitement and variety are on your agenda. Meet deadlines and accent creativity for career gains — a romance intensifies.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Let go of the past — especially whatever is a losing proposition. Express your ideas, correct past errors, display trustworthiness and you could gain financially. Greater recognition and a family reunion are part of your scenario.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — Past restrictions could lift now but don't force issues. Trust your judgement and intuition, finish a project, be confident and you can achieve much. You could recover something you thought had been lost, missing or stolen.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Your timing and luck are great, a wish could come true and a family member helps it happen. You could learn a secret that will work to your advantage. Don't let a delay depress you — you're on target and will come out a winner.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Past efforts could pay off big now and you may begin a new career relationship. Accept invitations, be more bold or daring and your love-dreams could come true. Trust your intuition and take time out to meditate or muse.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Concentrate on long-range career plans and get prepared. When you complete an important project and demonstrate leadership, new opportunities will open up. Get involved socially and culturally with groups or organizations.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Prepare for a transformation — you're ready for new beginnings. Patiently and diplomatically put your long-range plans in motion. Someone at the top could be watching you, so perform well under pressure and show your stuff!

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — Be warm and affectionate with your mate or partner — don't force issues. Revise and sharpen a current project yourself, don't delegate authority. Later you can entertain relatives, travel and get about socially.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Some rest and relaxation now will benefit your health. Your wits are sharp and if a public appearance is on your agenda, you'll do very well. Guard against being naive about joint finances and budget matters — use care.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Your popularity and social appeal are high now and so are your romantic prospects — enjoy! Use your innovative ideas, overcome obstacles and follow through on a creative project. Rely on mate or partner for teamwork help.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Catch up on domestic chores and property concerns. Use your artistic talents, indulge in hobbies and be realistic about romance. Concentrate on the tasks at hand, pass over petty details, finish the job and move on to new conquests.

What About Art? By Meredith Fife Day

A carding machine drawn on site at the Merrimack Valley Textile Museum by Susan Schmidt is one of the big charcoal works the artist has on exhibit at Wellesley College.

Big drawings hit hard

Susan Schmidt's big charcoal drawings crackle and roar with energy. Though the physically inert pieced-together paper rectangles are tacked flat against the wall, they project a distinct sense of movement and sound both within their individual boundaries and out into the long gallery at the entrance of the Wellesley College Museum, where they are on exhibit through Oct. 18.

Schmidt examines objects that have intricate physicality, melding their particular expressive qualities with her own. Among her subjects are an overhead drill, rows of toothy-shovel excavators, dark, leaning coolant pumps, drill presses, two parked Harleys, pole-supported carousel horses and, from the Merrimack Valley Textile Museum, a power loom and carding machine. The on-site execution of the drawings gives them immediacy and involvement that hit hard.

"Working on site has a particular intensity," says the artist. "Quick judgements are often called for. The work is influenced by the search for the site, asking permission to work there and by my contact with the owners, workers and their reactions to me."

"The drawing is developed in one session, affected by weather, noise, interruptions, and my feelings about the place."

The impact of the object and place on the artist come through with an urgency borne of her curiosity and investigation. Charcoal marks are expansive. They are the broad gestures of an arm's sweep attempting to plot out the big events of a visual tangle in order to bore in to the complexities of its parts. Then, even with the parts, there is never the fussy drawing of tightly held charcoal and delicate twists of the wrist.

The massive size and physical nature of the images are at one with the process of describing them. While precise in their essence, they are not precious in their execution. Their potential for movement is implied in the movement of the marks that make them. Paced by the beat of their repeated shapes, their bold black and white forms stride across the papers' surfaces.

In the Whalom Park "scrambler" amusement ride and series of carousel horses, a facile flow of line tells of the animals' uplifted heads and frozen prances, of fat and curvy bucket seats that promise, like the smooth and lyrical Harleys, freedom edged with risk. At the same time, a visual and psychological tension is created when those sleek buckets are tethered to their dark and scratchy cone-shaped center by long, jointed appendages, and when insistent repeated poles keep the horses from galloping away.

Consistent with the lack of preciousness and immediacy of response, the drawings are presented without frames or glass. Quickly diminishing perspective, flurries of lines, and angular, top-heavy orientation of the objects contribute, along with their unframed, uncovered presentation, to the extension of their space into ours.

The various pieces of paper spliced together to make up the wholes are a practical, unpretentious way of stating and acknowledging the objects' integrity. Their importance outweighs the limitations of the original format.

The artist is, through her drawing, understanding the way the objects are put together. She makes a statement about visual relationships and their dynamic while discovering them. Her complete involvement becomes a part of the viewer's experience.

The Topsfield Fair

Old style country fun

Ed Sargent wants history to live on. His passion is old engines.

At his farm in Chester, New Hampshire, Sargent has somewhere near 103 machines in and around his house. After ten years of trying, he has finally brought some of his motors to the Topsfield Fair.

Off in a corner, next to the small field of robust cows on display, Sargent oils and cares for six engines, which sputter and put-put throughout the day. He is glad to talk with you and express the admiration and respect he has for his "one lungers."

Among other things, these one cylinder machines once churned butter, pumped water and removed from houses the dust stirred up from the old dirt roads.

Sargent learned to care for and repair engines from growing up on a farm. He says he can't let them go to the junk yard. He will either buy or restore any old motor. Call him at 603-887-4125.

The Topsfield Fair, founded in 1818 - one hundred and sixty-five years ago - has not lost its rustic charm. If you like animals, exciting rides, music, games and food, the Fair is for you.

There are hot dogs, shishkabobs, barbecue beef, fish, vegetable tempura, corn on the cob, baked potatoes, cotton candy, candy apples and more, more, more. Don't go to the fair if you are on a diet. There are more onion ring stands than one can possibly imagine.

The T&A apple pie from Salisbury is chock full of apples and served with a healthy(!) serving of vanilla ice cream. It is mouthwateringly delicious, but not low-cal.

Food, food and more food. Gourmet Fare has been selling their goodies at the Fair for more than 10 years.

The gingerbread boys keep smiling even when half a leg is removed by someone's mouth. Jellies and jams include wild beach plum, wild blueberry ginger, apricot almond, strawberry rhubarb, ginger pear.

"If you can find it in a grocery store we don't have it," boasts Bert Lambertson, owner of Gourmet Fare.

Animals play an important role at the Fair. Among some of the animal events are sheep shearing, a pygmy goat show, a rabbit show, hen flying contest and the horse pull.

Pairs of horses or oxen, each animal weighing approximately 1,500 pounds, pull concrete blocks weighing up to 10,000 pounds. The horse and oxen pull is one of the fair's most popular events and it's easy to see why. In particular, the work horses, usually of Belgian stock, are towers of strength. Their statuesque, very muscular bodies strain to drag the blocks at least six Herculean feet!

For entertainment, country music star Tammy Wynette performs at 7 p.m., Thursday night. Rock and roll takes over on Saturday and Sunday when Danny and the Juniors perform at 7 p.m.

Young child inspects cow.

Ed Sargent devotes his life to restoring old motors.

What To Do

These massive horses can pull up to 6,000 pounds of concrete blocks.

Sheep await patiently to be relieved of their coats.

Fair fare

Admission to the Fair is $5 on weekends and Columbus Day; $4 weekdays with children under 12 admitted free when accompanied by an adult.

The Fair runs through Monday, Oct. 12. Gates open at 9:30 a.m. and the last event starts at 7 p.m. Take route 1 from Boston to Topsfield exit.

Balloons are hard to resist.

Lyric Opera uses shadow technique for hearing impaired opera lovers

In a show entitled A Romantic Evening of Love Songs, these stars of films and Broadway will be accompanied by a 20-piece orchestra.

Martino is known the world over for his smooth, sure, relaxed vocal qualities which have graced countless hit records over the years.

Anna Maria Alberghetti, the flashing-eyed Italian beauty with a voice of matchless quality and acting accomplishments which won her awards on stage and screen, is back in the world she loves — the world of show business.

Tickets, at $30, $25, and $20, for this Romantic Evening of Love Songs with Al Martino and Anna Maria Alberghetti are on sale now and may be purchased at the Collins Center box office and all Ticketron locations. To charge tickets, call Teletron at 1-800/382-8080.

Previn conducts Royal Philharmonic

The prestigious Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, Andre Previn conducting, opens the Wang Celebrity Series with a concert of Brahms and Shostakovich symphonies. The performance is Sunday, Oct. 11, at 3 p.m. in Symphony Hall.

The Royal, founded in 1946 by the legendary Sir Thomas Beecham, performs under the patronage of Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother. The RPO appears regularly at the major international festivals of the world including Edinburgh, Glyndebourne, Montreux and Istanbul.

Andre Previn, who joined the Royal as principal conductor in 1985, has had a richly varied career as conductor, composer, arranger, and pianist.

After studying with Pierre Monteux, Joseph Achron, and Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, he began his professional career in post-World War II Hollywood as a composer/arranger and won four Academy Awards.

In 1960, Previn began to concentrate exclusively on his career as a symphonic conductor.

At present, the Oct. 11 performance is sold out to Wang Celebrity Series subscribers. However, if tickets should become available, they will be placed on sale at the Symphony Hall box office (266-1492) after Oct. 1.

Lyric opera presents Turn of the Screw

Boston Lyric Opera Company opens its season with Benjamin Britten's The Turn of the Screw, Oct. 16 at 8 p.m., with a second performance on Oct. 18 at 3 p.m.

This haunting 20th-century opera, based on the novel by Henry James, is known as the perfect ghost story, leaving its resolution with the audience.

Returning to the fold is Jayne West, following her highly successful The Rake's Progress last season, in the title role of Miss Jessel.

Mezzo-soprano Karen Lykes, making her debut with BLOC as Mrs. Gross, is well-known to Hubbard audiences through her solo performances with every major choral group in the area.

In the role of the Governess, Nancy Ogle also makes her debut with the Company, bringing her operatic expertise from across the United States, Canada and Europe.

Walter Dixon, as Quint, performed with BLOC in The Rake's Progress and was acclaimed for his perfectly balanced tone and free-ranging upper register.

The children, Miles and Flora, will be portrayed by William Dederer and Jennifer Stern.

Anne Ewers, recently completing a highly successful season directing for the New York City Opera, the Canadian and Edmonton Opera Companies, will direct, and John Balme, acclaimed for many of the Company's past performances, will conduct.

Boston Lyric Opera Company has been at the forefront of opera for the hearing impaired and now moves one step further with its season's opener. In order to maintain the ambiguity intended in both opera and novel, the Company will use the shadow interpreted technique, wherein each singer is paired with a singer who physically and facially portrays the role using American Sign Language.

Felice Shay, portraying Mrs. Gross, returns as signator for the second year with BLOC. In the role of the Governess, Jayne Murphy makes her stage debut with the Company.

Emily Sanderson, also making her stage debut with BLOC as Miss Jessel, is an ASL interpreter at the Boston School in Randolph. Sisters Lea and Jenna Strazzulla, portraying the children Miles and Flora respectively, have been signing since infancy, as their father is hearing impaired.

The Turn of the Screw will be performed in its original English, at Northeastern University's Alumni Auditorium, 360 Huntington Ave., Boston.

Free parking is available in Northeastern lots. Tickets range from $5 to $17.50.

Subscriptions to The Turn of the Screw and Donizetti's Maria Stuarda (performances Jan. 15 and 17) and BLOC's exciting Opera In Process are available from $17 to $30. For tickets and information call 267-1512 or write to Boston Lyric Opera Company, 102 The Fenway, Boston, MA 02115.

Country folk Dwight Yoakam at Berklee

FolkTree Concertmakers will present two concerts at the Berklee Performance Center during the month of October. On Oct. 17, for one concert only at 8 p.m., Dwight Yoakam, country music's hottest sensation, will take center stage.

The following Saturday, Oct. 24, for two performances slated for 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m., FolkTree will feature an Evening with Holly Near, with no opening acts. This will be the first "all Holly" concert in Boston in many years.

The show will be interpreted in ASL by Susan Freundlich.

Ticket prices for the Dwight Yoakam concert are $17.50 and $15.50. Prices for the Holly Near concert are $16.50 and $14.50. All tickets are $1.50 additional if purchased at the door the day of the concert.

Christopher Hogwood returns to direct the Handel & Haydn Society, Oct. 27, with a performance of Mozart's Requiem. Call 266-3605.

Good News for the Weekend Mechanic

Audi 5000S Sedan

If you do your own repair work, do the job right with genuine Audi replacement parts. First of all, they fit, so if you take your Audi apart Saturday morning, you know the parts you bought will get you back on the road without another trip. Second, every part has a 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty. At Audi, we care as much about your car as you do.

The handbrake is usually adjusted automatically when the rear brakes are taken up, but there is more to it than just that. The cables must be checked to ensure they are running smoothly over their pulleys and entering the brake drums properly. Rust, dirt and tar can spoil the operation of the handbrake, which, even when working at peak efficiency, is a mediocre thing suited mainly as a parking brake. On older cars the cable may run inside a massive sheathing and there may be a grease nipple on this outer cable. If there is, pump grease into it until it starts to ooze from each end. This will ensure smooth working and make an effective water-proofing agent.

POLICE LOG

Monday, October 5

At 10:41 a.m. a passing motorist advised police that there was an accident at the corner of Johnson Road and Ridge Street. Upon arrival, police saw that a dump truck had flipped over onto the front lawn of 164 Ridge Street.

The driver, a Watertown man, said a small vehicle had stopped short in front of his truck without using any signals to make a turn. He said he had a choice of either hitting the car or running his truck off the road.

Having suffered a minor cut on the left side of his head, the driver was taken to Symmes Hospital in Arlington by Winchester Fire Department ambulance, according to police. The truck was towed and the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering was notified that some diesel fuel had spilled.

Friday, Oct. 9

Police dispersed a group of youths from the bowling alley parking lot on White Street at 9:20 p.m. but later heard they were drinking and making noise at the corner of Hill Street and Fitzgerald Avenue. When officers stopped four young men there, one, a 17-year-old Woburn resident, had one open beer can and three unopened cans. He was placed under arrest for being a minor in possession of alcohol and was taken to the police station.

Saturday, October 10

Police clocked a gold Ford Granada at 50 miles per hour in a 35 mile-per-hour zone at 7:30 p.m. The car, traveling north on Cambridge Street near Mahoney's Rocky Ledge, was also making quick movements from side to side, police reported.

When police began following the car with their blue lights and siren, the driver either ignored or didn't hear or see the police car. Police finally stopped the driver about 200 yards past the town line on Cambridge Street, and reported he had a very strong smell of alcohol on his breath, slurred speech and bloodshot eyes.

After the driver, a 41-year-old Charlestown man, failed three of four field sobriety tests, police took him to the station and charged him with operating under the influence of alcohol and speeding.

Sunday, October 11

An elderly woman was hit by a car at the corner of Mystic Valley Parkway and Main Street at 11:06 a.m., but she was not seriously injured, according to police.

Police said they saw the woman, a 70-year-old Walnut Street resident, on the ground in front of the car upon arrival at the scene. She refused medical treatment and could walk on her own but said she had a bruise on her left hip area.

The woman said she was crossing in the crosswalk when the turning car, which she said was speeding, hit her.

The driver was identified as a 22-year-old Bellevue Avenue woman operating a white 1983 Toyota. She said she was driving north on Mystic Valley Parkway and took a left turn onto Main Street but did not see the pedestrian until it was too late.

Police told her they would be in contact with her but allowed her to leave after citing her for failure to yield to a pedestrian on a crosswalk.

Woburn Loop's abutters reach an agreement on boundaries

Major disposition obstacle is overcome

By SUSAN ROTH
Special to the Star

After more than three months of negotiations, a major obstacle to the development of the Woburn Loop is out of the way. The three main abutters and prospective developers of Loop land have agreed on a plan for the area.

Selectman Robert Deering, a member of the Woburn Loop Subcommittee, said the agreement is important because it lets the town and developers figure out the costs or variances necessary for the developments.

"It will affect how the rest of the loop is developed, too," and the future of development in the surrounding area, Deering asserted.

The Woburn Loop is an 80-foot-wide tract of former railroad land running from Skillings Road north to the Woburn line. Winchester received it from the MBTA in 1984, and since then has planned to sell some of the land north of Swanton Street to abutters.

Uses for the land are currently limited by the state, however. Only passive uses, such as parking, roadways or parks are allowed, since state authorities believe the land may be needed for a road in the future.

Three major abutters have expressed interest in the property. They are Charles Ferrari, whose land currently houses a metal salvage shop and a plumbing shop, Richard Russo, whose land is not in use and the Russell Hill group, which owns an office condominium complex bordering the loop.

Henry Quill, a Winchester lawyer representing Ferrari, told the Star last week that Ferrari plans to build 24 residential condominiums on more than 120,000 square feet of land on the southeast corner of the area in question.

The plan will effect how the rest of the loop is developed, too.

Ferrari's lot now consists of about 90,000 square feet, Quill said. The additional land will be part of the town's sale of the loop, and 13,000 square feet that Russo has agreed to transfer to Ferrari.

Quill said the loop land will be used for parking and landscaping buffers between Ferrari's property and the Russell Hill condominiums. A cul-de-sac will also be constructed so cars will exit the development onto Main Street.

Paul Amico, a town lawyer representing Russo, said Russo will also build residential condominiums on his property, which is in the northeast corner of the area. He is planning for 28 units, and Amico said the tract is "large enough to accommodate our need."

Confirming that Russo will transfer 13,000 square feet to Ferrari, Amico noted that Russo's plot is "much larger than Ferrari's." He said Russo will not need to use the loop land for parking, and that residents would be able to enter the condo development from Cross Street or Wendell Street.

Amico said the abutters are still not sure how the land transfer will work in terms of sale, value or price.

Representing the Russell Hill group is Dr. Jerome Murray, who said the agreement, announced last week, deals with "a delineation on a map" that is hard to describe. He said Russell Hill will use its loop land, in the western part of the area, for about 80 parking spaces.

On land already owned by Russell Hill, the group plans to build about 20,000 square feet of office condominium space connected to the existing office building and architecturally similar to it, Murray said.

Murray said the latest plan for Russell Hill does not differ substantially from the original one, but Quill said Ferrari's plan has been revised. Ferrari originally proposed 42 condo units but scaled down the proposal after discussions with the Planning Board, according to Quill.

"My client indicated that it's still financially feasible," Quill said. All three representatives said the developers are satisfied with the current plan and feel it is beneficial to the town in terms of both the surrounding neighborhood and taxes the land sale will generate for the town coffers.

Of the negotiations, Murray commented, "I think it was done very well. There was a comfortable give and take. It was not a matter of a push and shove match."

Deering said the negotiating process was tricky because "we were trying to satisfy all three concerns." He noted that all three developers made small sacrifices or tradeoffs to come to the agreement.

"There's still a lot of work to be done," Deering emphasized. He said the town land must be appraised and a covenant drawn up among the town and developers, in addition to several zoning changes on the warrant for the fall town meeting. And even if all the zoning changes are approved, the plans may still require some variances from the Zoning Board of Appeals, Deering said.

The abutters will then need approval from financial backers in order to begin construction, Deering added.

THE PRIME CD

A fully insured investment that keeps

pace with the prime rate

In a rising rate environment, even a short-term investment has its drawbacks. You're locked into a rate that could end up well below the market at maturity. And should you want to withdraw your money before maturity, there is usually a substantial penalty.

Now there's a way to invest for the short term and keep up with current financial conditions. THE PRIME CD from Winchester Savings Bank is a one-year floating rate certificate that's keyed to the prime. The interest rate you earn is adjusted monthly and set at 1.25 percentage points below the prime rate as published in The Wall Street Journal on the last business day of the preceding month. Interest is computed daily and compounded monthly. The minimum investment is $2,500. Early withdrawal penalties apply.

Winchester Trails holds Fells walks

The Winchester Trails is sponsoring walks in the Middlesex Fells on the new "Scout" trail. These 5½ mile walks will start at 1 p.m. from the Jenks Senior Center on Sunday, Oct. 18, and on Sunday, Nov. 8, weather permitting. Wear sturdy footwear.

There are over 30 miles of marked hiking trails on which one can enjoy interesting walks in the Middlesex Fells. Two of these trails that are partially in the Winchester area of the Fells have been recently improved.

This followed approval of the Winchester Selectmen to allow the trails to be routed for a short distance on Town of Winchester property to avoid restricted Winchester wetlands.

One of these trails is the brand new "Scout" trail. This trail has orange markers. It is a 5½ mile loop with painted markings and it goes around, but away from, the area of the three Winchester reservoirs. This trail was designed by Winchester Boy Scouts for family walks with the possibilities of ski touring in the winter.

This trail is cleared slightly wider than the other trails and it searches out milder slopes of easier going, but it takes in many fine views of nature and the surroundings. The trail was planned to avoid restricted water lands and to stay away from all patrol roads to relieve any danger of improper trespassing onto restricted areas.

in our area is the Skyline Trail which is blazed with white painted markings. This trail is an old one that is known to have been in existence for over 50 years. It has been modified many times in that period. This trail is a rugged seven-mile loop in the western portion of the Fells but it is very popular and is the most heavily travelled of all of the Fells trails.

Many good shorter or longer walks can be made by intermingling sections of one or more of these trails with park service roads or unmarked trails.

Malcolm Masters of Ginn Road will be glad to give additional information on these or other trails in the Middlesex Fells, Winchester Conservation Lands, or Winchester Town Forest. "These public lands are for our enjoyment," he said. "Let's use, respect and appreciate them," Masters added.

ABC to hold '50s dance party

Plans are in full swing for the Winchester A Better Chance (ABC) fall fundraiser, a "Back to the Beach" '50s dance, to be held Saturday, Nov. 7, from 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The event should bring back memories of teenage beach parties, so get out your coolest threads and search the closet for your surfboard, said Mita Berkhout, the group's president.

Dancing to favorite "oldies" will be the main event amid trees and greenery donated for the evening by Mahoney's Rocky Ledge nurseries. In a repeat performance, disc jockey Al Sabone will be spinning requests. An added extra this year will be a silent auction, with many donations from Winchester merchants and ABC supporters up for bid. Among the offerings will be weekend house rentals in Martha's Vineyard, Rockport, Brewster and Attitash, Le Bellecour/Rembrandt's restaurants, Domino's Pizza, Calista's, Topsy Turvy, and Town Line Video have made gift donations. Two Celtics tickets and two American Airlines tickets will also go to the highest bidder.

Winchester's ABC program is in its 17th year of operation. A Better Chance is a national, nonprofit organization whose goal is to increase the number of well-educated minority people who can assume positions of leadership and responsibility in American society. There are currently seven students participating in Winchester's program, all of whom come from out of state. They live at 2 Dix Street, with Resident Directors Patty and Tim Peterson.

For ticket information, contact Judy Manzo, 326 Main St., 729-3160, or Karin Brown, 31 Everett Ave., 729-8506.

REAL ESTATE AND YOU

By Dick Murphy
The Bixby & Porter Co. Realtors

HOW SHOULD YOU PRICE YOUR HOME?

Interest rates are moving up and sales prices are generally stabilizing right now. It is more important than ever to price your home competitively. How can you best accomplish this?

The first step in selling a home is to contact a professional Realtor for a market analysis. He or she will go over the recent sales of comparable homes in your neighborhood and will give you information about other properties now on the market. You can compare your home to the competition, and your agent can show you how to adjust your price up or down, considering the size, location and condition of your property. Even in a very active market, a price that is too high may frighten off prospective buyers, whether or not you tell your agent that you are willing to negotiate. It can take extra weeks or months to sell, and the final sales price may be lower than if you had started with a more realistic asking price. When we price our listings, it's not just guesswork. Our analyses reflect our experience and expertise in the real estate marketplace.

If you are considering a move, contact the professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Call us at 729-7000 or stop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

Exchange students help give high school international flavor

Brittita Wiest from Germany and "Mackie" Connell from Barbados are attending Winchester High School this year as AFS (American Field Experience) students. AFS offers intercultural living experiences in 59 countries, and includes summer opportunities for American students abroad as well as the year-long program that has brought Brittita and Mackie to Winchester.

Wiest's host family is John and Dick Kingsbury and their daughter, Kathy. "I came here because I want to see everything myself, not just read about it in books," said Wiest. "I want to meet new people and make friends."

Wiest likes sports, and has been skiing since the age of 4. She praises AFS for placing her with the Kingsburys, who share her active interests.

Mackie Connell is spending the year with Faye and Jim Kurnick and their two children, Matthew, age 9, and Annika, 5. Mackie has a younger brother at home just Annika's age, as well as an older brother.

"I've never seen snow," Connell said. "At home I wear shorts and short-sleeved shirts all the time, except at school. We have uniforms for school: gray pants, white shirt, and the same school tie." Connell is getting used to colder weather, though. He is playing soccer at the high school and looks forward to basketball, which is his favorite sport.

Wiest and Connell find it easy to make friends. Besides the cross country team, Wiest is in the German Club, and Connell would like to join the Computer Club if he has time. "I like everything to do with computers," he says. Mackie has a tape of Barbadian music to share with his Winchester friends, too. "It's a little bit like reggae, with a strong drum beat."

What about college and future plans? Connell is not sure now. The University of the West Indies is near his home, but some students from Barbados go away to school, too. When her education is complete, Wiest would like to work for AFS. "I would like to help other students have this opportunity," she says. "I want to see many countries and live abroad."

Both Wiest and Connell would like to meet people in Winchester, and would be willing to speak to local groups. Wiest can be reached at 729-8089, and Connolly at 729-4528.

A bird's eye view

Some people might be fazed by hanging some 50-odd feet off the ground on a set of ropes attached to an old church steeple, but not these guys. Painters Glenn Blake and Bob Levesque apparently do this all the time. The Star couldn't even get them on the ground long enough to inquire about their fear of heights (or lack of it).

They've been enjoying the autumn sunshine at this elevation for about a week now, scraping and painting the First Congregational Church from the top down. The church, about 135 years old, was last painted eight to ten years ago, a church spokeswoman said this week.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Winchester should consider Connery license suggestion

Since May 11, when the Internal Revenue Service seized the Dover Grille, the Town of Winchester has been without the use of one of its three liquor licenses.

On June 1, the Board of Selectmen officially revoked the Grille's license and has yet to redistribute it.

The space the restaurant occupied on Thompson Street stands vacant while the Restaurant Brokers of America look for a tenant.

An article on the Fall Town Meeting warrant would restrict the area in which a liquor license could be issued to downtown. This article would effectively limit the use of the license to the one space that is available and can house a restaurant with a seating capacity of 100 persons or more, a town requirement for issuing a license.

Since Winchester does not have a say in the rental of the Thompson Street location, town meeting, if it passed the article, would be leaving the town with two options: issue the license to whatever restaurant wants to move into the Grille site, or hold back the license entirely until either another restaurant owner expresses an interest in the site or a new restaurant space with seating capacity for 100 becomes available in downtown Winchester.

That would contradict the reasoning the selectmen used when they revoked the Grille's license in the spring. They said the restaurant could no longer have the license because it was not using it and had failed to let the board know it would be closing.

But the town is failing to use the license as well. Restricting where the license may be used will extend the period in which it remains in the hands of the Board of Selectmen because there is no other restaurant downtown that could use the license. The town would be at the mercy of the market and the Restaurant Brokers of America, an organization whose representative said in August that he expected to have a tenant for the site "soon." It could not issue the license at all, to anyone, until a restaurant moved into the Grille site. And then they would have only one applicant for the license to choose from.

Passage of the article would also stifle the growth of businesses not in downtown -- businesses on north Main Street.

The downtown area could use three liquor licenses, all the town holds, to keep downtown vital. But restricting the only three licenses available to downtown is discriminatory against Winchester businesses that are not in the town's center, but that also draw clientele from outside the town, the intention of the revitalized downtown district.

Tahnk's Gourmet Kitchen at 910 Main St. is an example. Ginny Tahnk had planned to apply for the license when she expanded her restaurant, but the warrant article would deny her access to it. Tahnk has operated a business in Winchester for 15 years. She began with a cooking school that grew to become the restaurant she now owns.

John Connery, a market analyst and Winchester's former Town Economic Consultant, told Chamber of Commerce members at a breakfast meeting last week that he thinks the town should have a fourth liquor license. Connery acted as a consultant to Winchester's downtown revitalization from 1981 to 1985.

That license, he said, would support the businesses on north Main Street, where there are currently no restaurants that serve liquor. Connery said in an interview in the spring that the town can support three downtown restaurants. The Grille's closing, he said, was due to poor management, not a lack of restaurant-goers.

A fourth license would provide patrons of north Main Street businesses and the business employees a place to have a lunch, and a glass of wine, without having to get into their cars and head downtown.

Once people are in their cars, they are just as likely to drive out of Winchester as they are to drive into downtown and search for a parking space; the opposite effect of the one Winchester is trying to achieve.

If the town wants to encourage businesses on north Main Street, it must make those businesses feel that they have the same opportunities as downtown businesses and are given the same considerations as those businesses.

Restricting the town's three liquor licenses to downtown would be a step in the wrong direction for that cause. The town should take Connery's suggestion to heart; if the economy of Winchester cannot support those restaurants, one businessman will lose, but that is one of the risks of opening a business.

If the town limits itself to three licenses, all downtown, all of Winchester will lose.

It looks like Massachusetts foliage is showing off again.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Woman thanks honest resident

TO THE EDITOR:

I wanted your newspaper to know what a high quality of people live in your town -- as I have found out through first-hand experience.

While visiting Newburyport last month, I lost my wallet. You can imagine how upset I was. I gave it up for lost forever.

However, a short time later, I received a phone call at my home in Connecticut. A Winchester resident named Barry had found my wallet and was calling to give me the happy news. He then mailed it (completely intact) along with a lovely note to me.

Such kindness I will never forget! Considering all the disheartening news we read each day, I thought this happy story would be welcomed.

Traveler corrects Star correction

TO THE EDITOR:

I have very recently come home from a trip to Asia that included Siberia and Russia. Of course, one of the first things I did on my return was to read my mail and the copies of the Winchester Star that had been accumulating during my absence.

I was much amazed to read in the September 17 issue of the Star that you were correcting the statement that Nikita Khrushchev was buried in the Kremlin Wall to read that he was buried in Yalta.

I thought to myself, "It was only three days ago that I visited his grave in Moscow."

He and his wife are buried there in the New Maiden Cemetery, adjacent to the New Maiden Convent. This cemetery has only been opened very recently to the foreign traveler, and there were lines of people, mostly Russians, waiting to enter.

Celia L. Puffer

Resident praises high school faculty

TO THE EDITOR:

Having just returned from parent's night at Winchester High School, I felt compelled to share my very positive impressions of the faculty and students of the school and to lend my support for this excellent institution.

As a host family for a student from the American Field Service this was my wife's and my first exposure to the faculty of the high school.

I was impressed with the competency and enthusiasm of the teachers we met, and wish to compliment the individuals for their contributions and the institution for recruiting and helping to develop these outstanding individuals.

The teaching profession is a woefully underpaid group who have the vital responsibility of serving as daily role models for our children. It is a credit to the group that despite their obvious abilities to perform competently at much more financially rewarding endeavors, that these individuals have chosen to dedicate themselves to the improvement of our young people.

As for the students of the school, I was repeatedly impressed with the support that the faculty gave to their students.

While the classes I visited were generally for the seniors and honors students, it is reassuring that the Winchester High School can provide a faculty and atmosphere conducive to excellence of both faculty and students.

Although the brief impressions gained from an evening at the school cannot identify all the strengths or weaknesses of an institution as diverse as a high school, I still feel that the school deserves our support and compliments as they are earned.

Dr. James T. Kurnick

Resident finds Selectmen amusing

TO THE EDITOR:

This is to commend you on your hilarious, ongoing coverage of out two sometimes selectmen. Reading about the simian-like antics of this dismal duo makes the wait for your next edition one of exquisite anticipation.

Early in the series, the omnipresent one alerted us ignorant carpet-baggers that only he knows what is best for true Winchesterites.

Then we read that this petulant pair boycotted meetings out of personal pique with majority rule. "Selectmen?"

Subsequently, our two sidewalk vigilantes precipitated the great shootout at the Winchester Center. Fortunately, absent six-shooters and horses -- or at least the front parts thereof -- the only wounds were the expected self-inflicted ones.

This event prompted the Board's chairman to devote Board time -- live and in vivid television sound -- to the obvious need for Select(?) men(?) to act with civility and decorum in public. And our embarrassing ensemble couldn't even carry that off.

GUEST COLUMN

Their souls are clothed in gladness

TERRY MAROTTA

Ten years ago, after a long secular decade of sleeping late Sunday mornings, two things happened to us: we had a baby, and we went back to church.

In the flutter of re-entering the church world, we evidently made some wild offers. Because somehow, only weeks into our new life, we found ourselves teaching Sunday school to a swarming horde of first- and second-graders.

I did the teaching, actually; my husband David, the enforcing. He prowled round the tiny circled chairs, containing the more physical bursts of enthusiasm, quelling the Underpants Humor of the little boys, and in many instances restoring them to the seats from which they sprang and popped and leaped like spit on a griddle.

At the end of one of those sessions, the tiniest girl in the room came up to me, tugged on my dress, and nodded toward David. "Can he talk?" she wanted to know.

This memory returned recently because, these many years later, the man David is teaching Sunday school again. Only this time he's teaching three-year-olds. And this time he's teaching alone.

Curious to see him in action, curious to learn whether or not he could talk, I made up my mind to sit in on the class, taught this Sunday with the canny assistance of our sixth-grade daughter, the very baby who'd brought us back to the fold in the first place.

Now reports from the early weeks of class had not been encouraging. Three-year-olds in our church are fresh graduates of the nursery next door. Last year they had a plushy murmuring staff of females to tend and rock and sing to them amid a padded forest of cribs and playpens. This year, as David put it, they had some guy in a suit. Many wept, that first day. Describing his coping strategy later, he said, "I gave them all hammers and let them bang on the furniture."

Last Sunday, though, when I came to class, things seemed to be going much better.

Rain pelted outside. Leaves like small sailboats scudded along licorice-tinted rivers of asphalt. Upstairs in the sanctuary, the organist opened with Clothe Thy Self, My Soul, With Gladness.

"Come in, Gary my dear," began the ex-enforcer at the door. "Who wants to volunteer for a secret mission?"

Three stepped forward, all with digits in their mouths. Together they set out on the juice-and-cookie run.

Meanwhile, the Teaching Assistant waxed nostalgic. "I remember this room," she said, wistfully, looking around. "I used to eat Play Dough, right there by the sink."

One child was asked to give cookies to the rest. He gave 8 to Greg, 23 to Natalie, then wandered away with the box tucked under his arm.

Diane spoke up, opening a mouth crowded with food. "Me teeth are coming out!" she sang gleefully. Cookie was surely coming out.

"When was Jesus's birthday?" quizzed the pedagogue, getting down to business at last.

Silence, punctuated by chewing noises.

"Do you know who Jesus was?" I asked, violating my orders to keep quiet.

"He was the nicest person ever," said the assistant. He'd give you all the cookies you wanted -- even his own!"

Just then, in a small explosion of organdy, Jennifer listed sharply in her chair and sank from sight, her tiny party shoes waving wanly in the air. She cried, hiccupped for a spell, and finally recovered.

The children colored intently: pictures of a big birthday cake.

The organ began again, sweetly, from above. The rain pattered. The cookies kept on coming.

If you'd looked in the widow just then and asked "have we got souls here clothed in gladness?", your answer would be yes; your answer would have to be yes.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL
Volume 13-Report No. 41
Massachusetts Senate
October 5-9, 1987

The Senate, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local senators' votes on 4 roll calls from the week of October 5-9.

Election Deadlines (S315)- Senate, 19-11, refused to reconsider its earlier defeat of a bill extending the filing deadline for nomination papers for state legislative and congressional candidates by one month.

Bill supporters said the additional time opens up the system and gives potential candidates more time to make a decision and gather signatures to enter a race.

Opponents said the earlier deadline gives challengers more time to campaign and makes incumbents more accountable.

A Yea vote is for reconsidering defeat of the bill. A Nay vote is against the bill.

Senator Richard Kraus, NPP.

Reorg (H 6048)- Senate 31-2, approved a plan reorganizing the Executive Office of Economic Affairs and the Department of Commerce and Development.

Supporters said the restructuring will be an effective tool in helping Massachusetts' business create a promising economic future.

Opponents have offered no arguments.

A Yea vote is for the bill. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

Solid Waste (S 2034)-Senate 37-0, gave a near final approval to its own version of a comprehensive $280 million package providing funding for a solid waste grant program designed to ease the growing shortage of solid waste disposal sites.

Supporters said the bill is only a beginning but will establish new siting guidelines and offer incentives for the construction on new landfill facilities and the cleanup and expansion of existing ones.

A Yea vote is for the bill.

Kraus voted yes.

Scrubbers (S 2034)-Senate 23-12, rejected a solid waste bill amendment which would require acid gas scrubbers, or something providing at least the same protection as the scrubbers, in existing incinerators.

Amendment supporters, noting the bill itself requires scrubbers in new facilities, said the amendment simply asks for equal treatment to help protect people in communities with existing facilities.

Opponents defended the bill's language relating to existing facilities which require "technology as is necessary to protect the public health and environment." They claimed this language is more flexible and provides better protection on a case by case basis.

A Yea vote is for the amendment. A Nay vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

The House, "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on one roll call from the week of October 5-9.

Health Care (H 6068)- House 146-1, recommitment Governor Dukakis' universal health care bill to the Ways and Means Committee.

Recommitment supporters said the controversial bill needs major work and revisions. Some expressed hope a version will surface this year while others said they hope it dies for the session.

Recommitment opponents offered no arguments.

A Yea vote is for recommitting the bill to Ways and Means. A Nay vote is against recommitment.

Representative Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

Scouts earn leadership award

Arthur Gleason of Winchester Boy Scout Troop 503 and Courtenay McMillan of Explorer Post 505 received the third annual Junior Leadership Awards from the Edward S. Reynolds Memorial Fund.

The awards are made annually to a Winchester Boy Scout or Girl Scout in recognition of ability and desire to serve the community and to provide leadership in Scouting organizations.

Gleason, an Eagle Scout and a senior patrol leader who also participates in several amateur theater groups and high school wrestling and sailing, has been recognized by his scout leaders for his demonstrated leadership and advancement potential.

He plans to use the award next summer to partially defray his expenses in attending the Outward Bound Hurricane Island Program.

McMillan, vice president of Explorer Post 505, is expected to assume the presidency of the post this year. She has been recognized by her Explorer leaders for her enthusiastic leadership and organizational abilities. Additionally, she has an interest in science and our space program, and attended the United States Space Camp for high school students in Huntsville, Ala. in 1985. She used the Reynolds Award this past summer to partially defray her expenses in attending Sail Caribbean, a two-week sailing school where high school participants experience first-hand the challenge of living in a moving, confined space while undergoing an intensive training program.

Grant winners were nominated by their scout leaders and selected by the Edward S. Reynolds Memorial Committee, a group of former scouts and leaders from Winchester scout organizations. Chairman of the Committee is Harry Boodakian. Other members of the committee include Walter J. Farrell Jr.; Alfred E. Fernald, treasurer; Frederick D. Greene; Daniel P. Holmes; Winfield G. Knopf; and John V.C. Saylor.

Arthur Gleason's award was presented by Daniel P. Holmes, a member of the fund's Memorial Committee; Holmes is also an Eagle Scout and a former member of Troop 507. The presentation ceremony was attended by Anthony Sobkowicz, Scoutmaster, Troop 503; Daniel Hovey, Troop Treasurer; and Troop Committeemen Paul Gleason, Laurence Keats, Tom Raphael, and Richard Conway, Advancement Chairman.

Dr. Edward Reynolds, a research pathologist at the Peter Brent Brigham Hospital for many years, was leader of Boy Scouts during the six years he served as scoutmaster of Troop 507. Following his death in 1970, a Memorial Fund was established to recognize his love of camping and inspiration to scouts. Scout Gleason and Explorer McMillan are the fourth and fifth young people to receive Gleason Awards.

K of C to install state officers

Grand Knight Paul F. Stevenson of Winchester Council of the Knights of Columbus recently announced, "The state officers will be installed for this fraternal year on Sunday, Oct. 18, at 2 p.m. during the annual state-wide corporate Mass and Communion at St. Joseph Church in Belmont. Principal celebrant will be State Chaplain Rev. Kenneth B. Murphy and to celebrate the Mass will be the Council Chaplains of our local councils."

Grand Knight Stevenson concluded, "We invite all our Brother Knights and their families and friends to join us at the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass."

Cub Scout Pack 506 held its first organizational meeting of the 1987-88 year recently.

Under the leadership of Cubmaster Dennis Phinney, the following volunteers helped the cub scouts achieve their level of scouting: Calvin Johnson, Webelos, Den 3; Gemma Porter, Bears, Den 2; Susan Browne, Bears and Wolves, Den 4; Joanne Nelson, Wolves, Den 6; Audrey Killiam and Consuelo O'Connell Donahue, Wolves, Den 5; Karen Hayes and Judy Doob, Wolves, Den 1; and Elaine Phinney, Tiger Cub Organizer.

Scouts involved in pack 506 are boys between the ages of 7 and 10 who attend Ambrose, Lynch or St. Mary's schools.

Estates Garden club to meet October 19

The traditional fall dinner meeting of the Winchester Estates Garden Club was held recently at the home of Marie Johnson of Thornberry Road. The evening was co-hosted by Ariel Young and Helen Williams.

Following the dinner President Phyllis Johansen conducted a brief business meeting. Members of her Executive Board for the 1987-1988 season are: Vice President, Linda Lue Leiserson; Secretary, Linda Mazzola; Treasurer, Herta Botz; Programs, Ruth Null, Marie Johnson, Sue Toomajian; Publicity & Hospitality, Helen Williams; Ways & Means, Mary Perry, Phyllis Daugherty; Maintenance & Horticulture, Florence Zirakian.

Members will meet October 19 at the home of Linda Lue Leiserson of Wincerest Drive for a demonstration by Linda Lue of her holiday selection of "Le Cordon Bleu" desserts. Linda Mazzola will co-host.

Winton Club

holds first meeting

Winton Club's first general meeting of the year was held on Oct. 5 at the First Congregational Church. Following a tea served by the Membership Committee, President Mary R. Barger presided over the meeting. Kathleen Neuner, legislative representative for Winton Club reported on the current status of health care reform legislation and the proposal for universal health insurance that is being considered by the State House of Representatives and Senate.

Club members voted to give their traditional gift of $30,000 to the Winchester Hospital for linen and patient needs this fall and another gift after their annual meeting in May. This year is also the third payment of $25,000 to the hospital as part of the $75,000 pledge Winton Club made to celebrate its 75 anniversary in 1985, to renovate the gift shop at the hospital.

Executive Board are Mary Barger, president; Betsey Spiller, vice-president; Susan Blanchard, secretary; Joan Johnson, treasurer; Deborah Wrighton, membership; Linda Vacovec, nominating; Joan Johnson, cabaret; Ruth DeSanctis, activities; Nancy McMahon, Gift Shop; Anne Ockerbloom, Gift Shop Volunteers; Dorothy Macdonald, Gift Cart Volunteers; and Judy Dodge, Coffee Shop Volunteers.

The next meeting of Winton Club will be held Nov. 2 at The Church of The Epiphany at noon.

Salvation Army operates in town

The Massachusetts division of the Salvation Army has announced that there is a Salvation Army service unit currently acting in the Town of Winchester.

The local committee members are Fire Chief Robert McElhinney, Health Director Joseph Tabbi, and Public Health Nurse Joan York.

Any interested person should contact one of the above named persons to discuss emergency assistance.

Council on Youth holds year's first meeting

The Winchester Council On Youth met for its first meeting for the year on September 21 at the Recreation Department. The council is an advocacy group comprised of representation from the Board of Selectmen, the School Committee, the Recreation Department, the Winchester High School Student Union and the citizen community. Meetings are generally held the third Thursday of each month and are open to the public.

Brad Bailey was elected as chairperson, Debbie Lizotte was elected as secretary.

The first meeting addressed goal setting for the upcoming year as well as long range objectives. Ideas discussed included four areas: drug and alcohol awareness, a Council On Youth Scholarship, funding for Youth Center personnel and the need to improve the location of the Youth Center facility.

The council will work to unify separate efforts in Winchester to bring more cohesiveness to town-wide drug and alcohol awareness. It will begin by meeting with Winchester High School Drug and Alcohol Awareness Program teachers and administrators, the Parent-to-Parent Committee and the Winchester Police Department.

It was also unanimously agreed that it is time to put serious effort into upgrading the Youth Center facility. The council felt that the Youth Center program, having grown far beyond a drop-in game room, is in need of increased community financial support.

The next meeting is scheduled for October 15.

350 committee holds its first meeting

The Board of Selectmen announced at their Sept. 28 meeting appointments to the 350th Anniversary Celebration Committee. The committee, which has been formed to organize and supervise the celebration of the 350th anniversary of the founding of the town, held their first meeting on Oct. 8 to begin organizational work on what is intended to be a year-long celebration during 1988.

Committee members include 10 appointees and five ex officio members. The appointees include: Daniel Chane, chosen by the committee to be chairman; Mary Vitka, Vice Chairman; Ann Blackham; Harry Chelaro; Arthur Dunbar; Mary Johnson; Ellen Knight; John Mercurio; Whip Saltmarsh; and Nanette Shanahan.

The five ex officio members are: Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, Judith Muggia; School Committee Chair, William Jerve; Town Day representative, Dick Malcolm; Chamber of Commerce President, Marcia Saltmarsh; and Senior Class President, Andrew Hunter.

The committee will next meet on Oct. 15, at 5:30 p.m. in the Public Safety Building.

Forced Deleading at Time of Transfer Deleading Estimates Range $2,500 to $35,000 A Public Service Message

As you are reading this message, a bill is currently moving through the Massachusetts Legislature, which in its current form could impede your ability to sell your home or buy a house in Massachusetts. Bill #5927 has been passed by the House of Representatives and is now in the Senate Ways and Means Committee. This bill contains many provisions to prevent lead poisoning, and we support many of these provisions. However, the new requirement will be for every home to be inspected for lead paint before it can be sold. The consequent result could be a costly deleading requirement at time of transfer. Conservative estimates for deleading range from $2,500, for a one bedroom residence to $35,000, for a large home. We believe this provision will interfere with the opportunity to sell your property or to become a new homeowner. Bill #5927 is a well intended attempt to solve a serious social problem, but it is not the workable program which Massachusetts needs, and will in fact increase another serious problem—availability of affordable housing. We are hopeful the Senators from this area will vote in opposition to imposing an added economic burden on the home-owners of today and for tomorrow.

COMING EVENTS

Loop Trail opens with walk in town forest

Winchester Trails members invite adults and children to join them on a walk in the Brooks-Parkhurst Town Forest on Sunday, Oct. 25. Trails guides will meet hikers at 1 p.m. in the Jenks Center parking lot. Rain date will be Sunday, Nov. 1.

This walk will open the newly established Loop Trail, which is a joint effort of the Town Forest Committee, Winchester Department of Public Works, and Winchester Trails. It provides a relatively flat, short, circular path that passes close to the main entrances to the forest. The trail will make it easier for residents to enjoy walking in one of Winchester's most beautiful woodlands, Phyllis Stearns, a Winchester Trails member said.

The Loop Trail features a grove of hemlocks, massive oaks and pines, stones from the Middlesex Canal, a seasonal brook with ferns, and lady slippers and wood anemones in spring. Guides will also point out the evergreen ground covers that contrast with the dominant trees.

The Town Forest Committee and Winchester Trails hope that families will continue to hike this trail on their own. To reach the Loop Trail, enter the Brooks-Parkhurst Town Forest at Ox Pasture or West Chardon Road where new signs have been posted. Take a short entry path with yellow blazes to the Loop Trail sign. Circle through the woods following the orange blazes until you return to the same sign. The walk takes about one hour.

Library plans Halloween events

The Children's Room of the Winchester Public Library will present many happenings for the month of October.

From Oct. 13 through Oct. 31, the library hosts a Halloween Hunt. Participants will follow clues to a prize at the end of the hunt.

On Thursday, Oct. 29, the library will show Mystery Movies for ages 6 through 11 from 1:30 to 2:15 p.m.

On Friday, Oct. 30 the children's room will present a Trio of Tricksters, three puppets who will perform from 3:45 to 4:30 p.m. for ages 4 through 12.

Duffy to direct sight sing at Epiphany

At 3 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 25, the Winchester Music Society will sponsor an open reading of J. S. Bach's motet "Jesu, Meine Freude" in the old parish hall of the Parish of the Epiphany. This program, which is partially supported by funds from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery as administered by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council, will be directed by John Duffy and accompanied by Carole Davidson. The event is open to the public.

Duffy, a Winchester resident for 11 years and a former School Committee member, teaches for Digital Equipment Corporation and has a broad background in music, including an undergraduate degree from Wesleyan University and graduate degrees in musicology from Brown and Boston University. Duffy and his family moved to Winchester when he joined Tufts University as choral director. He maintains an active musical life which, in addition to leading previous open sight reading in Winchester, the most recent being Mendelssohn's "Elijah", includes singing with the Tanglewood Festival Chorus and the John Oliver Chorale at present.

CLUB NEWS

Home and Garden club to hold meeting Oct. 21

The Winchester Home and Garden Club will meet on Wednesday, Oct. 21 at 12:15 p.m. at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church. Refreshments will be served by the Hospitality Committee members Helen Hodgdon, Carolyn Dettinger and Barbara Fickett. President Angie Fincke will conduct a business meeting to inform the members of recent club activities. Fincke requests that all of the new members attend. The speaker will be Betsy Williams from Andover. Her presentation, "Holiday Herbs" will include using herbs for Halloween, Thanksgiving and other holidays.

She will also assemble table centerpieces featuring dried materials and plants. Her articles have appeared in "Country Living" and other magazines.

On the morning of the meeting, Oct. 21, there will be a workshop at 10 a.m. Florence Gosselin, Workshop Chairman, is planning to have guest speaker, Phyllis Hawes, demonstrate using dried materials in interesting arrangements.

Recently the club sponsored landscape and general clean up work at the Westly Street apartment complex. Future plans include spring plantings and further beautification.

WEDDINGS

Susan Southwick and Dennis Lamar are wed

Susan Ann Southwick, daughter of Mrs. Charlene V. Farrell of Jenks, Oklahoma and Mr. David Southwick of Champlain, New York, and Dennis Arthur Lamar, son of Mrs. Margie Lamar of Winchester and Mr. Herbert D. Lamar of Newton, were married September 12 at Yale Divinity School's Marquand Chapel in New Haven, Conn.

Rev. Robert C. Lamar, the groom's uncle, officiated.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Kimberly C. Steffen of Guilford, Conn. and the bridesmaid was Mrs. Nancy F. Incalcaterra of Bethlehem, Pa.

The best man was Mr. Kevin J. Buckley of Hamden, Conn. and the ushers were Mr. Neil Braccidiferno of Hamden and Mr. Robert Shycon of New Haven.

The bride, a certified public accountant, graduated in 1980 from Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pa. with a Bachelor of Science in business and economics. The groom, a radio news director, graduated in 1980 from Yale University in New Haven with a Bachelor of Arts in history. After a wedding trip to Greece, the couple resides in New Haven.

SCHOOL NEWS

Student musicians practice on release days

Students in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades in Winchester are eligible to join the three, extracurricular music groups which have begun to meet on release days. Students bring a bag lunch, eat at their own schools, and are then transported to the rehearsal places until dismissal at 2 p.m.

The All-Star Orchestra rehearses at Winchester High School under the direction of Mary Alice McCann and consists of fourth, fifth and sixth grade string players. The year culminates with a performance at the Community Schools Association Concert in the spring.

The All-Star Band meets at McCall Junior High School under the direction of David Kontoff and is open to fifth and sixth grade students. In addition to a C.S.A. Concert performance, band members learn to play while marching and participate in the EnKa Parade in May.

The third music group is the Sixth-Grade All-Star Chorus, which meets at the high school under the direction of Paul Davis, Herman Greene, Pat McSorley and Lynn Rahmeier. This is a chance for musically inclined, but non-instrument playing, students to express and explore their musical interests. They, too, perform for the C.S.A. Concert and last year, were videotaped for the town cable station. Sixth grade students in the orchestra and band may also be members of the chorus with transportation provided from McCall to the high school.

For more information about these groups contact Lynn Rahmeier at 721-7020, ext. 141.

Muraco plans fun fair

Muraco School will hold its annual Fun Fair on Saturday, Oct. 24, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

There will be games for children of all ages: donut on a string, bean bag toss, face painting, dart board, wheel of fortune, skittle ball, basket ball toss, and more.

The public is welcome and all proceeds go to the Muraco enrichment program.

Golden and Filtzer honored by Merit program

Christopher Wadsworth, Headmaster of Belmont Hill School, announced this week the three semifinalists and the 14 Commended Students from Belmont Hill in the 1988 National Merit Scholarship Program. Semifinalists include the highest scorers in every state and represent half of one-percent of the state's high school graduating class. John M. Golden, son of Dr. and Mrs. Brian M. Golden of Winchester is a semi-finalist.

Commended students place in the top five percent of over one million participants in the 33rd annual Merit Program. On the commended list is Paul E. Filtzer, son of Mrs. Marigrace Filtzer also of Winchester.

Keeping Your Options Open!

Tourmaline is a popular gemstone, in part because it is available in so many colors, in part because designers use it in many beautiful pieces, and in part because its beauty is affordable. Tourmaline, along with opal, is the birthstone for the month of October.

One of the popular shades of tourmaline is pink — especially for the fashion-conscious. Pink Tourmaline ranges in color from deep hot pink to peachy-pink and mauve-pink. A reddish tone of tourmaline is called rubellite (named because it resembles ruby in color) and is considered special because of its beauty and rarity.

Green tourmaline is also available. Deep teal blues, greenish-blue or gray-blue tourmalines are called indicolite. Chrome green tourmalines are a beautiful color option too.

During crystal growth, tourmaline's color may change abruptly. Consequently, it is not unusual to see a bi-colored tourmaline. When red and green colors occur in proximity, they are sometimes cut in the same piece and called "watermelon." Just like watermelon, the interior is red and the border is green. Other bi-colored and tri-colored combinations are also mined.

Tourmaline is sometimes carved to highlight its unusual multi-colors. Tourmaline's cat's eye can also be found — the most desirable are the pink and green varieties.

Because so many colors are available, tourmaline is a gem that many find pleasing. Designers use tourmaline for earrings, pendants, rings, and beads. It is an affordable gem and so it's suited for an entire wardrobe.

If you haven't yet tried on tourmaline, come in and explore some very colorful options.

Girls stop Wakefield in soccer

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High Varsity girls soccer team came up with an important 1-0 win Monday morning over Wakefield to catapult themselves back into first place in the Middlesex League.

After a shaky first half of the season, coach Chris Scanlon could not be happier with the way things turned out against Wakefield.

"It was really important for us to win this one," said Scanlon. "I felt the girls needed a little confidence and this should help."

Sophomore Margaret Cunningham scored the game's only goal on a nice feed from Ingrid Spanjaard. Spanjaard had beaten the goalie but was too deep to get off a decent shot so she crossed it to Cunningham who tapped it in.

It was the defense, however, which captured most of Scanlon's praise, particularly goalie Allyson Price.

"Allyson really came through for us today right when we needed her to," said Scanlon. Price has allowed only one goal in her last four games and has been especially busy in the last two games with Andover and Wakefield.

Scanlon was pleased with the effort Sandra Bennett and Deborah Skahan put in in shutting down Wakefield's Mary Beth Sydlowski. Jenna Maconochie, Beth Small, Kelly Meehan, Laura Rutherford and Cara McDonough also earned praise from the coach for their work on defense.

The Sachemettes had quite a battle with Andover Saturday morning, which resulted in a 1-1 tie. After falling behind 1-0 in the first half, the Sachemettes came back on Denise Chabot's goal assisted by Debbie Nowell. Nowell led Chabot perfectly and the left winger beat two Andover defenders before blasting a shot past the helpless goalkeeper.

The game got downright rough in the second half as there is very little love lost between these two teams. With bodies flying every which way, both teams had casualties. Chabot sprained her ankle and the speedy right wing had to miss Monday's game with Wakefield. At one point, Julie Sexeny was dumped hard by an Andover halfback. She got up and gave her opponent a furious glare but thought better of hammering her with a right as a father on the sidelines had suggested. Eventually, she was tripped up again but this time the referee handed out a yellow card to an Andover winger much to the crowd's approval. There was no further scoring however, and the Sachemettes settled for a tie.

Earlier in the week, Winchester rolled past Woburn, 4-0. Tri-captain Emily Doherty and Spanjaard each had a goal and an assist. Jen Ciotti scored the eventual game winner and Chabot also scored as the Sachemettes outshot the Tannettes, 23-1.

The Sachemettes host an improving Arlington team Friday afternoon at Skillings Field beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Sachems boy's team loses for first time

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' soccer team lost its first game of the season Monday morning when they were upended by Wakefield, 3-1. Winchester is now in second place behind the Warriors with an 8-1-1 record.

Wakefield simply outplayed the Sachems, beating them to the loose balls and converting their scoring opportunities when they had them. The Warriors came up with goals early in each half which served as confidence builders while the Sachems had their chances, but came up empty.

Down 3-0 early in the second half, the Sachems were still having problems despite the appearance of a twelfth attacker, a Doberman Pinscher (see field hockey photo), that took Wakefield out of their rhythm and kept the Warriors away from the ball during his several cameo appearances.

Paul Erbafina finally broke the ice for Winchester as he easily poked a direct penalty shot past the Warrior goaltender. Vandy French hit the crossbar and Kenny Fowler was robbed on a hard shot but that was the way the day went for the frustrated Sachems.

The team had a bit of a scare with Woburn before taking firm control in the second half as they posted a 4-1 victory. Playing without halfback Paul Capodano who was nursing a bruised thigh, the Sachems still only took 48 seconds to get on the scoreboard as French used his head, literally, to score his 15th goal with an assist to Erbafina. But if the Sachems thought they were going to coast, they were in for a rude awakening as the Tanners turned the tables and scored less than a minute later.

The play was fairly even for the rest of the half as goalie Andy Shao was called on a few times to come up with the big save before David Romboli broke through the Woburn defense to put Winchester up, 2-1, with an assist to Mike McGeehan. In the second half, McGeehan set up Fowler with the go-ahead goal as Fowler beat the Tanner goalie to a loose ball. Jason MacConkey followed with another insurance goal to round out the scoring. Goalie Tony Fryklund made a couple of nice saves while fullback Matt Umscheid headed away a ball destined for the Sachem net to preserve the lead.

The Sachems hope to get back on track this week when they face Melrose and Watertown.

Field hockey team dominates Melrose

By CYNTHIA PREE
Special to the Star

The Winchester High field hockey team dominated the field this week with a big win over Melrose.

The girls did suffer one loss this week against Woburn in a heart-breaking game that resulted in a 2-1 score. The defense played well throughout the game, while offensive player Ulrike Botts scored a goal assisted by Leslie Pedulla.

In their next game against Wakefield, the girls' confidence returned as they played a terrific defensive game resulting in a 0-0 tie. Goaltender Ritika Bowry saved an amazing total of 19 shots taken on the Winchester goal.

The Sachemettes' hard work paid off in their next game as they dominated the field over Melrose. The game ended in a 1-0 win for Winchester. Approximately 13 minutes into the first half, Catherine Coleson scored on a free hit touchback from Eileen O'Connor. Among the other players who played predominantly well were Colleen O'Connor, who took advantage of many fast breaks, and Sarah Latanision, who supported the team with dependable defensive saves. Winchester had a total of nine corners and 12 shots on net while Melrose took a feeble six shots on Bowry's pads.

Sachemette coach Mary Brown was quite satisfied with her team's effort.

"For the most part we controlled the game today," said Brown. "We played very well and we really looked like a team."

Winchester hopes to continue their dominating spirit when they play their next opponent, Watertown.

WHS bounces back against Watertown

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High football team staged some last-minute heroics last Saturday to pull out a 17-14 victory over a pesky Watertown team. Clayton Wight's 32-yard field goal with three seconds left was the difference as the Sachems rebounded at home after two close road losses.

The Sachem offense showed poise when it was needed as Micky Feeley led Winchester from their own 48-yard line down to the Watertown 12 in less than 40 seconds to set up the winning score. Scott Garvey, who had been held in check by the Watertown defense most of the afternoon, came up with a couple of key bursts in the drive including a 22-yard run which gave the Sachems excellent field position.

Defensively, the key to the win was the superb play of the Sachem secondary which shutdown the high-octane aerial attack of Watertown. Their quarterback completed only eight of 32 passes on the game as defensive backs Chris Umscheid and Craig Driscoll spent the afternoon deflecting his tosses. When Watertown was driving for a possible winning score with less than two minutes to play, the Sachem secondary knocked away four consecutive pass attempts to set up the offense for the winning drive.

After Watertown took an early 7-0 lead, Winchester struck on its third play from scrimmage. Feeley hit Jon Furey for a 63-yard touchdown pass set up by a key block from Jon's brother Alex Furey. Wight, who is perfect on the season, converted the extra point and the game was tied.

The Sachems took the lead in the second quarter as Garvey scooted four yards around the right end. Wight's extra point made it, 14-7. Watertown had one more drive in the first half but Garvey came up with the key interception to kill it.

Turnovers nearly killed Winchester in the second half. A fumble gave Watertown the ball on the Sachem 20. Watertown marched in for a touchdown from there and the score was tied once again. Linebacker Frank Gianci and defensive lineman Todd Crandall also had outstanding games for Winchester as Watertown never seriously threatened the rest of the way.

When it came down to Wight at the end, there was not much doubt as the senior kicker blasted it through twice, thanks to a Sachem offside penalty which nullified his first attempt.

Winchester goes for its first road victory this Saturday when they visit Burlington.

Girls junior varsity wins 2-1

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High Junior Varsity girls' soccer team prevailed over Wakefield JV, 2-1, Monday morning to stay unbeaten in Middlesex League action. The Sachemettes ran their record to 6-0-1.

"We just outplayed them," said coach Paul Austin, whose team out-shot the Warriorettes 24-5. "The field was muddy but they maintained their composure."

Sophomore Shana MacConkey and tri-captain Christine Sullivan scored Winchester's goals as Wakefield did not get on the board until the waning moments of the game. MacConkey also scored the game-winner and only goal in the Sachemettes first battle with Wakefield in the season opener.

Since then, the Sachemettes have dominated virtually every contest because, unlike the varsity at times, their offense has been potent. They have outscored their opponents 30-4 and are led by Cheryl Casalino with five goals and Lisa Campbell with four goals.

Belmont JV posed the only real threat for the Sachemettes so far when the two teams battled to a 2-2 tie. It was a victory in a sense for Winchester because Casalino did not score the second of her two goals until there were only 20 seconds left in the game. In a game coach Austin termed "an embarrassment," Winchester walked all over Woburn, 9-0. Junior Karen Verhaegen scored twice while tri-captain Sarah Wilson, Megan Mullin, Denise Delaney and Siobhan White all picked up their first goals of the season.

Delaney and White are currently injured but Austin hopes to have them back soon.

"Denise and Siobhan are both very talented," said Austin. "We really need them in our line up."

Sharing the goaltending duties thus far have been sophomores Lisa Donlon and Stephanie Keefe. They each have allowed only two goals as they alternate starting assignments each game. Other key members of the squad include juniors Jenny Campbell, Laura Pedulla, Kelly Scott and Liana Ewald along with sophomores Alison Alberts and Heather Walsh.

The team hosts Arlington Friday afternoon at Leonard Field beginning at 3:30 p.m.

Committee reviews bus policy

administration recently when a Vinson-Owen parent living within the one-mile limit requested an extra stop along the regular bus route for his twin kindergarten children. The request was eventually broken down into two separate issues, however: that of changing the policy to allow more exceptions; and that of busing for kindergartners apart from older children.

"Adding stops for kindergarten children where buses are not full is a legitimate request but to honor it would cause problems in other areas of town," Fitzgerald said, adding, "It could be the end of it to the school department but (it could) bring about a similar demand or request throughout town. What becomes an unreasonable request? One stop? Two? Three?"

The parent who questioned the policy, David Leland of Pilgrim Drive, was on hand at the meeting to argue his point. "If it increases safety for the child, decreases town liability and causes no more expense to the town, to ask the bus to stop on the existing route, with seven kids on the bus, will cause no increase in time. I don't see it as a significant change," Leland said.

"For older children, it's a convenience issue. I think a distinction should be made," Leland added. Several other parents at the meeting also spoke up, saying they didn't know anyone who would allow their kindergartners to walk to or from school alone. This appears to be more of a concern for half-day pupils who come home at lunchtime when the older children stay in school.

Although the safety officer might not determine a particular "safety hazard" for these youngsters, parents said they were concerned more with abductors than with crossing streets. They felt kindergartners should be considered different from older students. "There's a big difference between kindergarten and first grade. (First graders) are familiar with the walk and with the school setting," Leland told the Star after the discussion.

Fitzgerald noted that earlier comments from parents suggested to him that "very few of the kindergarten kids walk. We provide transportation for about 25 percent, but most are transported, either by car pools or by their parents. There are no more than two or three from each school who walk."

Suggesting that the School Committee consider an alternate busing plan solely for the kindergarten, Fitzgerald warned that any additions to the current bus system would cost more money. He also said there are several ways to address the issue — all kindergarten children could be bused both ways, new boundaries could be created for them, or they could just be bused home on non-release days.

In the meantime, Fitzgerald asked the committee to reject Leland's request until a more comprehensive review of the policy was completed and the ramifications of such an exception determined. Superintendent of School Charles Mitsakos agreed, as did Jerry and committee member Alice McCarter.

Dissenting were committee member Edward O'Connell, who said he saw a need for overall policy review but thought the board could "provide temporary relief from this bureaucratic issue," and committee member Donna Brandt-Landry.

"Our system is too small to not respond for this," Brandt-Landry said, adding that she does not believe the school department will be inundated with requests for exceptions because of this one. Committee member Michael Ronayne abstained from the vote, stating he felt uncomfortable with uninformed policy-making.

Jerry said he hoped the board could obtain clearer information by the next meeting and make suggestions based on a broader concept of the policy.

PLANNING BOARD

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING REGARDING ZONING BY-LAW AMENDMENTS

Notice is hereby given that the Winchester Planning Board will conduct a Public Hearing on Monday, October 26, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center, 107 Skilling Road, upon the proposal by the Winchester Planning Board and a petition to amend the Zoning By-law as follows:

ARTICLE To see if the Town will vote to amend the Zoning By-law by changing Section 4.4 Table of Use Regulations, Permitted Use 23, by inserting before the word "beverages" the word "non-alcoholic" and to now read as follows:

23. Lunchroom, restaurant, cafeteria or similar place for serving food and/or non-alcoholic beverages, except diner or lunch cart, to persons inside the building, and to add a new Permitted Use 23A and to read as follows:

23A. Restaurant (with approved alcoholic beverage license) and package store (with approved license for sale of alcoholic beverages) and to insert "N" under all District Headings except under CBD insert "Y".

(By Petition) Purpose of this amendment is to only allow restaurants that serve alcoholic beverages and package store that sell alcoholic beverages to be permitted in the Center Business District (CBD-30), whereas the present Zoning By-law allows this use in the General Business District (GBD-1.0), Local Business District (LBD-0.50) and Limited Light Industrial District (LL-1.0).

ARTICLE Amend Section 6.0 Dimensional Requirements by inserting in Section 6.1 Table of Dimensional Requirements opposite District Headings RDA, RDB and RDC Footnote (q) and to read as follows:

(q) In order to limit the degree to which a lot may have an irregular shape, the following build factor formula shall be used:

Lot Perimeter Squared Actual Lot Area

Actual Lot Area Required Lot Area

Lots recorded or endorsed after October 8, 1987 shall be subject to a maximum build factor of 20 in the Single Residence Districts (RDB-10) and (RDC-15), and a maximum build factor of 25 in the Single Residence District A (RDA-20).

Lots recorded or endorsed prior to October 8, 1987 may not be modified such that the build factor of the modified lot exceeds 20 in the RDB-10, and RDC-15 districts and not exceed 25 in the RDA-20 district.

Amend Section 9 Definitions by inserting in the appropriate alphabetical order the following definition:

Build factor: A ratio of lot perimeter to lot area which limits the degree to which a lot may have an irregular shape according to the following formula:

Lot Perimeter Squared Actual Lot Area

Actual Lot Area Required Lot Area

Purpose of this amendment is to include language in the Zoning By-law which would limit the degree to which a parcel of land may be subdivided that would result in its having an irregular shape that would be a detriment and cause an adverse effect to the surrounding property.

Prior to the hearing information may be obtained at the Planning Board/Engineering Office temporary quarters, Town Hall Auditorium, 71 Mt. Vernon Street, Winchester, MA.

By order of the Winchester Planning Board this 21st day of September 1987.

SENIOR NEWS

Jenks Center hires manager for Eating Together program

The committee for setting up the congregate meals program at Jenks Senior Center in cooperation with the Minute Man Home Care Corporation is pleased to announce the hiring of a part-time site manager. The service offered by the Winchester Council on Aging should be ready to begin by the end of October on Wednesday and Friday noontimes of each week. All seniors are welcome to participate for a minimal donation for the meal. Programs will be planned for those who attend and diners will be encouraged to remain after eating.

A Winchester resident of seven years, Elaine Di Pietro, mother of two children, ages three and ten, has accepted the position as Nutrition Site Manager. Her qualifications are excellent, including a bachelor's degree in sociology, training as a licensed practical nurse, work at the Massachusetts Rehabilitation Hospital in Boston, and nursing home experience.

She has studied nutrition at the University of Lowell and has coordinated in-service education programs involving nursing personnel.

The committee is pleased to present a young person of Di Pietro's caliber and background to handle both food and volunteer management at the Jenks Senior Center Congregate Meals.

With the exception of vegetables to be cooked on the premises, the meal will be prepared by a Stoneham caterer, who provides the same menu for a number of other communities.

Watch next week's Star for the menu listing.

Senior Center holds Fall Fiesta Fair

The Jenks Senior Center was transformed into a real bazaar on Oct. 7 and 8, resembling an international market. Seniors, both men and women, used all their public relations skills as salespeople of the many wares offered in the several booths. The strong support given to seniors by the public of the town — the organizations, the merchants, the churches, and individuals was characteristic of the help that the community has given in past years to encourage senior activities.

Visitors to the fair were intrigued by the wide selection of books in all classifications. White elephants always command interest and attention. The jewelry display was a focus of attention for holiday shopping. Men's and women's boutiques, knit goods, aprons, and baked goods all drew crowds and of course, the snack bar was well-patronized. A new innovation this year by Guy Schipiletti offered big bargains in decorative picture frames of varying sizes and styles.

A bus full of Acton seniors arrived in mid-morning to shop for a couple of hours. This group has visited the Jenks Senior Center fairs on several previous occasions.

Eight ladies from the Aberjona and Winchester Nursing Centers were warmly welcomed. Accompanied by Susan Goodwin, Jane Schofield and Brenda Duncan, they remained to learn who was to become the owner of the 1987 Ford Escort Pony car.

Every worker for the fair is to be commended highly for giving time and energy in unstinting measures to make the annual event a successful activity.

Crowd enjoys lasagna dinner

Some 345 people enjoyed the delicious lasagna dinner prepared by Caterer Ezio of Stoneham. This annual meal was offered for the first time in the spacious auditorium of the Jenks Senior Center. Heretofore, the Knights of Columbus have loaned their hall most graciously to enable seniors to carry on this social event.

June Cannon, assisted by her husband, John and members of the Winchester Women's Republican Club, girl scouts from the Ambrose School and their leaders, Angelo Giannetti and Helen Hodgdon provided for two hours of continuous serving in an atmosphere of friendliness. At the conclusion of the dining, the servers, who had covered great expanses of floor space in providing for the hungry ones, were foot-weary but glad to be of service. It was a welcome sight to committee members to observe many young people at the dinner and throughout the selling area of the building. Norman Keene entertained at the piano during the meal, playing tunes old and new for the pleasure of the diners.

A group of men at the center worked long and hard in setting up the auditorium for the evening meal. Richard Fiore, custodian, Robert Fiore, Angelo Giannetti, Jeff Gaudioso, Frank Frongillo, Guy Schipiletti, Vin Berger, Dick Clarke, John Null, John Corcoran, Dr. Robert Smith, Al Karnilla, Charlie Craven, and probably others who lent their strength in accomplishing the heavy work in preparation for the meal.

Another group took many trips from the storage room on the lower level in stocking the tables in the selling area. Helen Murphy, Ray Murphy, Dot Cullen, Mary and Claire McLaughlin, Regina Karnilla, Mary Flaherty, Mary Craven and Mary Collins were among those observed bearing large armloads of wares for sale.

Collecting the tickets at the door were Anne Feuss and Dr. Leonor Rich. Evie Jenks and Clarence Borggaard made the dinner successful in terms of numbers in attendance. They made dozens of contacts selling to a large percentage of the diners who were present.

Without Barbara Ciampa and her "Candid Camera," many of the highlights of the fair would be lost forever. Her photography has made possible a series of albums that are a source of visual history for the annals.

Currier wins Ford Escort

With bated breath, many people stayed at the center until the magical hour of three o'clock when the lucky raffle numbers were drawn. The Ford Escort Pony went to Brenda Currier of Canterbury Road. Congratulations, Brenda!

Elaine Chipman, a member of the Winchester Council on Aging, won the beautiful full-sized crocheted afghan that had been made by Mimi Biagiotti. Congratulations, Elaine!

Mary Giannetti and Caroline Frongillo had sat hour after hour for two days selling tickets for both the car and the afghan. Prior to the fair, Mary Giannetti had sold to friends $2,500 dollars worth of tickets on the car, a masterful job of salesmanship.

Angelo Giannetti, fair chairman, is grateful to all members of the Ways and Means Committee of the Winchester Seniors Association and to every person who helped in any way to make the annual fair at the Jenks Senior Center a success.

Glee Club to meet Oct. 20

The Jenks Senior Center Glee Club will meet for a rehearsal on Oct. 20 from 10:30 a.m. to noon, the much beloved and admired director, Bob Mulford, expressed the wish that a substitute director be found to handle rehearsals until he was physically able to resume the leadership role. His wish was verbalized only hours before his demise.

He began the ensemble, looked forward to rehearsal days, played the piano accompaniments and directed the singing, and had plans for future community service by the choral group. He was the major force that kept the members coming regularly to sing together. In his memory it is important to carry on in accordance with his ardent wish.

Two people have been found who are willing to provide services for the dozen men and women who enjoy singing together. Others who would like to join the Glee Club are invited to come to sing some old favorites and become involved in the relaxing and pleasant experiences of exercising their vocal chords in chorus with others.

More details will be forthcoming

COMING EVENTS

First Church holds Harvest Supper

The Annual Harvest Home Supper is scheduled for Oct. 20 at 6:30 p.m. in Chidley Hall at the First Congregational Church.

Charlie Doe and friends are hosting the prime rib dinner, which has a price of $5.99.

In addition to an evening of good food and good fellowship, the Two by Fours and a women's chorus, Second Wind, will perform.

Tickets are available through the church office.

in the next issue of the Star.

Rug-hookers needed

Only three people have signed up for the rug-hooking class that is scheduled to begin Oct. 20 at the Jenks Senior Center. Unless more express an interest immediately, it is probable that the class will not run. For more detailed information, call the instructor, Doris Reid, at 944-9424.

Early reservations for trips necessary

Four trips are being scheduled requiring early reservations since complete arrangements must be made far ahead of the departure dates.

These trips are: Nov. 15, Rockingham Park (a Sunday outing); Nov. 18, Pheasant Hill Mall with lunch at the Turkey Farm; Dec. 6, Danversport Yacht Club, in conjunction with gateway Travel, and Dec. 10, Wayside Inn in Sudbury.

Make reservations at the reception desk at 721-7136.

June Cannon's exercise classes at the Jenks Senior Center were well-represented at the popular annual Governor's Walk Saturday, Sept. 26.

Some 35 seniors did the mile and the three-mile walks, about half of them participating in each. The course was flat with ample water stations and marshals along the way, starting on Charles Street between the Boston Common and the Public Garden.

The event was sponsored by Nabisco Brands, Inc., who provided refreshments. Cooperating were Gov. Michael Dukakis, the Massachusetts Executive Office of Elder Affairs, Boston Commission in Affairs of the Elderly, the City of Boston, Boston Parks and Recreation Department, M.D.C., Mass. Track and Field Officials Association, Governor's Committee on Physical Fitness and Sports, Boston Common Garage, and sanctioned by the New England Athletic Club.

MORTGAGE WEATHER REPORT.

They say that in New England if you don't like the weather, wait a minute. New England mortgage rates can be tough to predict, too. One way to gain the upper hand is with a Convertible Rate Mortgage from CambridgePort. That way you can start off at a low rate, and lock in an even lower rate when you see the chance. We have two sensible plans, both with one of the lowest lifetime caps around. And we don't charge you a fee to convert, which is the whole idea in the first place. If you're not sure which way the wind is blowing, now you can take the pressure.

Convertible Plan A. Pay half a point, float at a competitive adjustable rate with the opportunity to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 10.60%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.66%

Convertible Plan B. Pay two points, and we will give you an even better adjustable rate for the first year, then let it float until you decide to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 8.85%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.64%

Other Facts. No fee and minimal paperwork when you convert to a fixed rate. Convert anytime between months 13 and 60. Annual cap: 2%. Lifetime cap: 5%. Margin: 2.50%. For homes throughout Massachusetts call Rebecca Taber at 661-4900 to find out more.

SAVINGS BANK

Rates, terms and fees may change daily. Interest rate is adjusted annually and is based on U.S. Treasury Securities adjusted to a constant maturity of one year plus the applicable margin. Fixed interest rate is determined in accordance with the terms of the rider to the note which will be signed at closing. Program available for one to four family owner-occupied residences with a maximum loan-to-value ratio of 90%. Maximum loan amount varies depending on type of residence.

Merchants Corner— The Window Place

ATTENTION RETAILERS! If you would like to place your advertisement in this high-visibility page, have a professionally written story and photograph taken of your business, please call our advertising department at 729-8100 today.

For more than twelve years Neil Haggerty has been improving the appearance of area homes and businesses as owner/president of Prime Contracting Inc. In the course of remodeling hundreds of homes and building an impeccable reputation for quality workmanship, Neil discovered a need for a separate division specializing in windows; complimenting his already successful contracting business. In September 1986 The Window Place was formed. This division of Prime Contracting has a permanent showroom located in 601 Main St., Winchester where you are sure to find the window, blinds or shades which best suit your home or office.

With his extensive experience in the field owner Haggerty will help you choose the window that's right for your home or office needs. To help you select the blinds or shades which best with the decor of that home or office, decorating expert Theresa DeConto is available for consultation. Theresa who studies interior decorating at Framingham State College, is a lifelong Winchester resident with more than four years of experience in interior decorating, with a primary focus on window decorations.

After experiencing what he describes as an "overwhelming demand for specialization in "just windows," Haggerty formed the Window Place which he says has received a "phenomenal response."

If fact Haggerty explains that "Since the Window Place opened his company has experienced an unprecedented growth."

The Window Place offers a variety of windows including bay, bow, garden, and double hung models. All are custom-fitted and designed for the energy conscious consumer, and all are very competitively priced.

With a contracting background specializing in thermal insulation, Haggerty is more than qualified to assist you in selecting a window that will result in a substantial heat savings. As he explains, "When you want to make the right choice call The Window Place."

The Window Place is open Monday-Friday 10-6, Saturday 10-2, and Haggerty and DeConto are available by appointment at your convenience, for in-home consultation.

With a wide selection of windows, roller and pleated shades and mini, micro and vertical blinds, and a variety of name brands like Levolor, Kirsch and Delmar, you are sure to satisfy your window needs at The Window Place.

OBITUARIES

Richard Dexter

Richard D. Dexter of Warren Street died Oct. 11 at Massachusetts General Hospital. He was 65.

Mr. Dexter was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., and lived in Winchester for 27 years.

He was a 1946 graduate of Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill.

Mr. Dexter was a U.S. Army Air Corps veteran of World War II. He owned Dexter Realty Management from 1977 to 1987. Previously he had worked as a comptroller/vice president of finance for the H.P. Hood Company in Charleston for 18 years.

He had been a Town Meeting member for several years. Mr. Dexter served as Finance Committee Chairman and was an active member of the Church of the Epiphany, Boy Scouts of America, and Winchester Rotary Club.

Mr. Dexter is survived by his wife, Dorothy W. (Waye) Dexter; a son, Dr. William W. Dexter of Portland, Maine; two daughters, Ann D. Dexter Esq. of Hartford, Conn., and Elizabeth Dexter Stockwood of Winchester; two brothers, John and Robert Dexter of Santiago, Calif.; and one grandchild, Benjamin W. Dexter.

A memorial service was held in the Church of the Epiphany Oct. 14.

Burial was private.

Arrangements were by the Lane Funeral Home.

Memorial donations may be made to the Appalachian Mountain Club, 5 Joy St., Boston, Mass., 02118.

Olive Hatch

Olive D. (Scudder) Hatch of Winchester died Oct. 11 at the Rivercrest Nursing Home in Concord. She was 85.

Mrs. Hatch was born in Osterville and was a Winchester resident for more than 45 years.

She was a graduate of Barnstable High School and the Massachusetts General Hospital School of Nursing.

Mrs. Hatch was a registered nurse at Massachusetts General Hospital until her retirement in 1954.

She was an active member of the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church. She belonged to the Morning Circle and Fortnightly Clubs for more than 45 years. Mrs. Hatch was also a member of the Winchester Seniors Association, the Massachusetts General Hospital Nurses Alumni, Winchester Historical Society, Osterville Historical Society, Scudder Association, New England Deacons Association and the Order of the Eastern Star.

She was the wife of the late Ralph W. Hatch and the late Jack B. Hawkins.

Mrs. Hatch is survived by a son, Donald S. Hawkins of Kinnelon, N.J.; a stepdaughter, Jean H. Wrisley of Londonderry, N.H.; a stepson, Donald Hatch of New Hampton, N.H.; a brother, Howard Scudder of Brockton; three grandchildren and 12 step-grandchildren.

The funeral Mass will be held today at 2 p.m. at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. David Purdy will officiate.

Burial will be at Hillside Cemetery in Osterville, Friday, Oct. 16, at 1 p.m.

Arrangements are by the Costello Funeral Home.

Memorial donations may be made to the Memorial Fund at the Crawford United Methodist Church.

Richard Willard

Dr. Richard W. Willard of Sargent Road died Oct. 5 at Winchester Hospital. He was 57.

Dr. Willard was born in Flushing, N.Y., and lived in Winchester for 25 years.

He was the son of Gladys W. Willard of Arlington, Va.

Dr. Willard was an educational research consultant for five years. Previous to that, he was employed by Lesley College in the Evaluation, Dissemination and Assessment Center for nine years.

He was a 1951 graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics, and a 1955 graduate of Harvard University, where he received a master's of education degree in guidance. In 1969, Dr. Willard earned a doctorate in education from Harvard in tests and measurements.

Dr. Willard is survived by his wife, Gail L. (Rennie) Willard of Winchester; two sons, James C. Willard of Long Beach, Calif., and Robert E. Willard of Winchester; two daughters, Allison Healey of Salem, N.H., and Lorraine W. Menard of Wilton, N.H.; and two sisters, Edna C. Willard of Winchester, Va., and Barbara A. Blommers of Waldorf, Md.

A memorial service was held in the Meyer Chapel of the Unitarian Church Oct. 9.

Burial was private.

Arrangements were by the Lane Funeral Home.

Memorial donations may be made to the National Kidney Foundation, 344 Harvard St., Brookline, Mass., 02146.

William McDonald III

William E. McDonald III of Swanton Street died Oct. 9 at Winchester Hospital. He was 67.

Mr. McDonald was born in Winchester and lived here for 60 years. He had been a 1937 graduate of Winchester High School. He was a 15-year resident of Dover-Foxcroft, Maine.

In 1942, he graduated from Harvard University.

Mr. McDonald was a U.S. Coast Guard veteran of World War II.

He was district manager for Ford Motor Co. and president of McDonald Ford Sales in Dover-Foxcroft for 15 years.

He was a member of the Dover-Foxcroft Board of Selectmen for four years. He was also a member of the Kiwanis Club and Knights of Columbus in Dover-Foxcroft and the New England Ford Dealers Association. He was a director of the Maine Dealers Association.

Mr. McDonald is survived by his wife, Claire (McGrath) McDonald of Winchester; a son, Michael W. McDonald of Freeport, Maine; two daughters, Julia Belanger of Safety Harbor, Fla., and Ann Marie Palumbo of Winchester; a sister, Margaret Detoso of Stoneham; and three grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the Lane Funeral Home Oct. 12 and was followed by a funeral Mass at St. Mary's Church.

Burial was at Wildwood Cemetery. Memorial donations may be made to the Massachusetts General Hospital Building Fund, 55 Fruit St., Boston, Mass., 02114.

C. Darwin Carroll

C. Darwin Carroll of Orient Street died Oct. 12 at Winchester Hospital. He was 74.

Mr. Carroll was born in Winthrop and was a 40-year resident of Winchester. He was a graduate of the New England Conservatory and spent most of his life in the windowshade business.

In his younger years he was actively involved in the Unitarian Church, in religious education, summer conferences and on the music committee.

Mr. Carroll is survived by his wife, Lucy (Odgen) Carroll and his daughter, Judith O. Van Koughnet of Santa Ana, Calif.

A memorial service will be held at the Winchester Unitarian Church on Sunday, Oct. 18, at 3 p.m.

Memorial donations may be made to the Winchester Unitarian Society.

Robert Mulford

Robert M. Mulford of Winchester died Oct. 6 at the Phillips House of Massachusetts General Hospital. He was 73.

Mr. Mulford was born in Syracuse, N.Y., and had been a Winchester resident for 40 years.

He earned a bachelor's degree from Syracuse University in 1935 and did graduate work at the New York School of Social Work. In 1944 Mr. Mulford earned a master's degree from the Columbia University's School of Social Work.

Mr. Mulford worked for the Public Welfare office in Rochester, N.Y., in 1937 and 1938. He was appointed Executive Director of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in 1947, a position he held until his retirement in 1974.

He earned the Vincent DeFrancis Award in the field of child protection and was a leader in the modernization of state laws concerning the protection and care of children.

In the 1950s, Mr. Mulford was a member of the legislative subcommittee which redrafted laws dating from 1882. The resulting Chapter 119 broadened the definition of child abuse and neglect and established the use of trained, impartial investigators during court proceedings.

In 1971, Mr. Mulford chaired the Governor's Committee on Child Abuse, which resulted in legislation mandating professionals who work with children to report suspected cases of abuse and neglect.

As an instructor in child welfare at Boston University's School of Social Work, he offered the first course specializing in child protection.

Mr. Mulford was the chief administrator of the M.S.P.C.C., which, under his auspices, has grown to be the country's largest private non-profit child protection agency. It serves 10,000 children annually.

He wrote "Neglected Children and Youth," one of more than 20 articles and pamphlets he contributed to his field.

Mr. Mulford was a former deacon and clerk of the First Congregational Church. He was a former chairman of the Council on Aging, and director and pianist for the Jenks Senior Center Glee Club.

He is survived by his wife of 50 years, Claudia (Terry) Mulford of Winchester; a daughter, Roberta M. Walker of Greenville, R.I.; two sons, Terry W. Mulford of Charlotte, N.C., and Porter G. Mulford of Hanover; a brother, Dr. Frederick S. Mulford of Rochester, N.Y.; a sister, Clara M.

DeYoung of Rochester, N.Y.; and seven grandchildren.

A memorial service was held at the First Congregational Church on the Common Oct. 9.

Arrangements were by the Lane Funeral Home.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the First Congregational Church or the Jenks Center.

Show will aid UNICEF Connery lectures Enrollment to drop

Poonen of Grove Street or architectural engineer Albert Dietz of Cambridge Street.

These five Winchesterites will talk about their individual Indian experiences. They will use slides to aid their presentations. Afterward, the speakers will open the floor for questions and discussion.

Aside from the speakers, Williams has the aid of Pat Archibald, Carolyn Dettinger, Ruth Dietz, Anne Galli, Ruth Lowell, and Doris Emmons.

Galli, the group's publicity coordinator, has been involved with UNICEF for 15 years. She said she collected for the fund as a child and got more deeply involved when she became a mother. "Becoming a mother was a watershed event," Galli said. "It gave me a sense of unity with the moms of the world, as corny as that may sound."

Both Williams and Galli stressed that UNICEF, founded after World War II by the newly-created United Nations to help war orphans, is no longer primarily an emergency fund. The international organization helps countries fund inoculation, education, nutrition, and clean water programs as well as providing help during emergencies.

UNICEF's philosophy is based on providing a better future for the world's children, and its families, according to Williams. The organization is funded strictly through donations; it does not fall within the United Nations budget.

"Trick or Treat for UNICEF" will continue in Winchester's schools this year. For the second year, Eileen Schlorff will coordinate the collection. Children in each elementary school have the opportunity to pick up a UNICEF box at their school.

For more information on "Glimpses of India" or other UNICEF activities, contact Margie Lamar at 729-1517 or Lib Williams at 729-4062.

elephant?" Connery reminded the group. He pointed out that "a framework of suburbia (grew) around the major interchanges of highways."

But Connery said he does not believe development will continue to expand into rural areas. "What you're seeing now is infill into the economy of greater Boston," in areas like Quincy, Malden and Waltham, areas close to highways and public transportation, Connery said.

He noted that as business and industry moved to the suburbs, they created "subcenters" or "secondary nodes of employment. People don't have to commute to the city anymore."

"Now you have to ask, what do you want? Some will say no more business, no more traffic, keep (the suburbs) straight residential," Connery said. He told the group Winchester will not be a "nodal" major business area because it does not have the land or zoning structure to support it.

Connery said the town will have to look at how to divide the commercial area into two parts but still keep those parts united and noncompetitive. "I see (Winchester) as a town center with a tail, a spine along Main Street up to the Woburn Loop and Woburn," Connery said.

He defined two categories of potential business in the town: the downtown area, a "community-wide convenience area...that's primarily retail, local-based," and a service-oriented area that he envisions along the Main Street "tail."

"You could do a new retail strip, but be careful (not to have) an area that competes against downtown," Connery warned. He said he does not think the town can stand two retail areas, but that some restaurants and retail could support the service businesses, such as research and development and offices, he sees for that section.

Such a plan would enlarge the town business district, but the two areas would have "two different roles that complement each other," Connery said. "Think about differentiation of the business areas and how they relate to each other," he told the group.

In addition, Connery advised the chamber members to think about other commercially zoned areas where there is development potential. "Parking and development issues need to be brought up again," Connery said, adding that he thinks the town needs a fourth liquor license.

"It's important to maintain restaurants to support business activity. We need a continuing commitment to make sure restaurants work," Connery said.

Noting that businesses "create a tax base and jobs and a healthier business climate helps (the community)," Connery concluded by saying, "We're lucky. We can make a choice of how we want to do it in Winchester."

three levels of classes (honors, college and regular).

School Committee members reacted immediately to the implications of budget and program cuts. "There's nothing wrong with those numbers," said committee member Michael Ronayne, responding to the projected class sizes. "I hope you schedule courses in a comprehensive way. Students here shouldn't expect to get any less because there are 800 to 900 in their school rather than 1400," he added.

Committee Chairman William Jervy said, "Students have expectations based on what's happened in the past. In junior high school, they expect to be able to take advanced courses later on. We have to do everything we can not to pull the rug out from under them."

Committee member Edward O'Connell commented, however, that "we have to face the reality of the student population. It's our obligation as managers to look for economies without sacrificing anything." When a parent asked where the school department would draw the line at class size, if, for example, only three students wanted a particular advanced class, Mitsakos said, "I'm not prepared to answer that question."

But Ronayne said he could not see why the class would not be offered to those students, unless it were not financially feasible. "If there's plenty of money, why not? I would challenge a community on what its priorities are," he remarked.

"We have to decide as a community and school district what kind of school we want and swallow hard for two years," Mitsakos said. "We've made an investment in (other programs) in the past. Now if we want to focus on our high school, we have to try to convince the community to support that," he added.

Ronayne countered, "If you tell the story properly, the Town Meeting will support it."

Article sparks debate

for a meal. They walk around and look. Even if the stores are not open, they may come back to shop," she said.

Others, such as Jeanne Tahnk, owner of Jeanne Tahnk's Gourmet Kitchen on Main Street do not agree with limiting the liquor license to the downtown area.

Tahnk, who is currently planning to expand her restaurant, is interested in applying for the liquor license if and when it becomes available.

"It does not seem quite fair for anybody to draw the liquor into one area," said Tahnk, "and not just because I am interested in the license."

Tahnk feels that her track record could only help Winchester. A successful business, she says, helps the reputation of the town.

"If you have a good business, no matter where you go, you will draw people. By drawing them into the town, you won't take them away from the center," Tahnk added.

Tahnk feels that space downtown which could accommodate a 100-person plus restaurant (one of the restrictions for obtaining a license) is very limited.

Tseckaris, however, disagrees. "I think that there are other opportunities to establish a restaurant besides the Dover Grille area. Our committee wants to encourage the selection of someone who is more centrally located."

As the liquor license restrictions stand now, it is available to a business in either the Central Business District, Local Business District, or the Limited Light Industrial district.

Tseckaris feels it is important to keep the liquor license in the downtown area, which is why the amendment would restrict the license to the Central Business District.

"However, if enough people feel it should expand to either the central business district or the local business district, we (the committee) would be willing to consider it. But expanding to an industrial area is ridiculous."

There will be a public hearing on the amendment on Monday, Oct. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center. The amendment is due to go before Town Meeting in November.

"We want to help the dynamics of the downtown. The concept we're trying to reinforce downtown is that we don't want to let it get fragmented," said Tseckaris. "If we were to somehow discourage consolidation, it would tear the place apart."

Georgia Boudreau

In 2 weeks Georgia dropped from a size 14 to a size 12. "I feel fantastic. I don't ache like I used to. My goal is to get down to size 9 or 10. If you feel like losing inches and weight, feeling good and getting some spark and energy, come to Bodytoners."

Susan Dellarocco

In 3 weeks Susan lost 7 inches. "I enjoy the program because it's really effortless and it works. My clothes fit better and I just overall feel better. I was doing aerobics and this makes me feel just as good as doing aerobics and I don't have to kill myself."

George Dahlquist

"It's convenient, and it's exercise that I wouldn't normally do. It relaxes me and I think anyone that has self-motivation and pride would like a program like this."

Charlie Hale

One of Bodytoners' newest members

"Before I started coming to Bodytoners, I had lower back pain and stiffness. After the first day I felt good. The whole day I had lots of energy. I feel more mobility. I would like to come every day. I think it's worthwhile. When I walk out of here I know I'm feeling good."

Gilda Hines

In two weeks Gilda lost 8 1/4 inches. "Since I started at Bodytoners I have more energy, feel happier and don't experience the daily pain that I used to. The bursitis in my shoulders doesn't bother me as much. Before, I had such a hard time getting out of bed, now I can get up like a young girl. My husband has arthritis in his hip. Since he started Bodytoners he can walk longer and work in the yard longer."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

while on public service television.

In the most recent episode, these two feckless town fathers picked up their marbles and remained home because they were going to be outvoted on a significant issue of town policy. "I'll show you. If I can't win, I won't play; so there!" No doubt this is their concept of how to represent the real Winchesterites.

Moreover, one of them alluded to a great communications conspiracy within the Board, carried out behind his back. Yet, on almost any weekday, one can find this disappearing duo lollygagging on a street corner in Winchester Center engrossed in their own private seance.

What awaits us in the next installment?

Will we find that they really are dedicated to the town's welfare and demonstrate it by not only closteking their marbles but keeping them out of play entirely during all future elections.

What To Do

Gore Place: Federal period architecture

Can you name the finest example of Federal period estate architecture in New England and its location? Give up? The answer is at Gore Place in Waltham, one of America's Great Houses.

The country seat of Christopher Gore, the seventh governor of Massachusetts (1809-10) and his wife Rebecca, Gore Place today consists of an elegant, antique-filled

Clockwise: Gore Place, the heart garden, a master bedroom, bedroom with eating area mansion situated on 40 acres with flower and herb gardens, grape arbor, and carriage house.

Operated by the Gore Place Society, the mansion and grounds are listed on the National Register of Historic Places. Gore Place is open to the public from Apr. 15 to Nov. 15. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sunday, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Admission to the house is $3 for adults; $2 for senior citizens; and $1 for children. However, the grounds are free and open to the public during the daylight hours, year round.

Built in 1805-06 for a cost of $24,000, the mansion was designed by French architect Jacques Guillaume Legrand who collaborated closely with Mrs. Gore. Patterned after the concept of the English country seat, Gore Place was a working farm as well as an elegant country home and grounds. The property, at that time, encompassed nearly 400 acres. Fourteen servants worked in the house alone.

The Gores used the house primarily in the summer, preferring to be in Boston for society's winter season. They entertained frequently and some of their more important guests included President James Monroe, and French statesmen Talleyrand and the Marquis de Lafayette.

When Governor Gore died in 1827, the house remained in the family until the death of his widow in 1834. The estate was sold at auction and the proceeds were used to build a library at Harvard University. (Widener Library now occupies the site.)

The property went through several owners until 1920 when the Waltham Country Club purchased it and overlaid the grounds with a nine-hole golf course. When the Country Club failed in the early 1930's, a Mrs. F. Gordon Patterson — who had visited Gore Place as a child — purchased the mortgage and established the Gore Place Society in 1935 to preserve and restore the estate as an outstanding example of the Federal period.

The House Today

If you enjoy exploring historic properties, then plan to visit Gore Place either before Nov. 15 or during its three-day open house in December. When you come, a friendly and knowledgeable volunteer will take you through the house. Because the original furnishings were auctioned off after Mrs. Gore's death, not everything in the house belonged to the Gores. However, many pieces did and everything you'll see comes from the Federal period (1786-1825) or earlier, giving an accurate portrait of life during that time.

The first floor includes the family dining room; the Great Hall, where large formal dinners, dances, and concerts could be held; the billiard room; the library; and the sitting room. Gore Place also has two perfectly oval rooms, a downstairs drawing room and the upstairs family sitting room, each with curved fireplaces and doorways.

Some of the more unusual first floor furnishings include two chandeliers belonging to Catherine the Great of Russia; a table belonging to the family of George Washington's wife Martha Custis; a gentleman's library chair; and an edition of The Book of Common Prayer, a gift to Mrs. Gore from Queen Charlotte of England when Mr. Gore was presented at the Court of St. James in 1803. The book, published in 1701, originally belonged to Queen Anne and is stamped with her Royal monogram, "AR" (Anna Regina).

The second floor rooms include two nursery rooms, and the family rooms, consisting of the Gore bedroom, Mrs. Gore's dressing room, her closet, the family sitting room, and a ladies' retiring room. The current nursery rooms were probably Governor Gore's private offices because of their close proximity to the library and the formal entrance.

The tour also includes a visit to the fragrant Herb Room and the Gift Shop. The latter contains post cards, candles, Shaker boxes, slate boards, towels, and books for children and adults. One can find information on herb gardens, fabrics, and antique dinner recipes. Several items in the shop are courtesy of Dr. Charles A. Hammond, the director of Gore Place since 1975. A beekeeper and herbalist, he makes his own honey, sachets, and several varieties of herb vinegar.

Why should you come to Gore Place? Perhaps that can best be explained by Hammond: "Gore Place is a time warp, a place to come when you've had enough of this crazy world. Like the people of their time, the Gores believed in knowing everything about the world. There was no aspect of their lives that didn't touch them and they wrote about it in an interesting manner, as we read in their letters."

"Today, our lives are so full of aggressive images such as Rambo, that it's easy to forget that Americans also have a tradition for quietness, gentleness, elegance, charm, and grace. In many ways, those qualities are more important than aggression."

"If you have a special interest in botany, landscape design, architecture, art, or furniture, we invite you to use our resources and discover, for instance, how elegant people created space to entertain the president of the United States." Hammond earned a PhD from Boston University in the American and New England Studies Program. He has studied historic architecture and landscape design particularly as it relates to Palladianism.

Interested persons are needed to work as volunteers at Gore Place, acting as tour guides, conducting research, or working in the gardens. Call Gore Place at 894-2798 for more information.

The public is also invited to join the Gore Place Society. Memberships cost $15 for an individual and $25 for a family. All contributions and membership dues are tax deductible.

To reach Gore Place, take Main St. (Rt. 20) west from Watertown Square. Gore Place is midway between the Square and Waltham Common. Turn left at Gore Street, which is across from The Ground Round. For more information, call 894-2798.

Who were the Gores?

Christopher Gore was born in Boston in 1758, the son of John and Francis Pinckney Gore. One of 13 children, he attended Boston Public Latin School and North Grammar School, then entered Harvard College, graduating in March of 1776.

In 1783, he married Rebecca Amory Payne, whom he had met as a child at the Brattle Street Church. A woman of refined and elegant taste, she was the daughter of Edward Payne, a successful marine insurance agent and a charter member of The First Bank of Massachusetts, now The Bank of Boston. Their marriage, though childless, was very happy.

Gore served in many capacities during his life. Some key appointments include:

- First District Attorney of Massachusetts (1789-1796)
- Commissioner to the Arbitration Court set up under the Jay Treaty (1796), which necessitated living in New England until 1804
- Member, American Academy of Arts and Sciences (1802)

•Charge d'affairs in England (1803)

•President, Massachusetts Historical Society (1806-18)

•Massachusetts senator (1806)

•Massachusetts governor (1809-10)

•Harvard College Overseer (1810-15)

•United States senator (1813)
Gore died in 1827 at the age of 69 and was buried in the Amory family tomb in the Granary Burial Ground. Seven years later, his wife died at the age of 75.

Celebrate the holidays at Gore Place

Christmas at Gore Place, 1805-1887, a festive, three-day recreation of early and late 19th-century holiday traditions is scheduled for Dec. 5-7 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission is $4 and includes refreshments. Free parking is provided. Established in 1977, the Christmas open house activities are held bi-annually.

Twelve first floor rooms will reflect the traditions of Regency England and France, and New England. The doors, windows, and mantles will be decorated with fragrant spicy greens. The table decorations, all historically accurate, will consist of live and cut plant materials, such as citrus trees, camellias, forced bulbs, and dried arrangements. The atmosphere of those rooms will recreate the first 30 years of the house when President James Monroe and many important diplomats visited the mansion.

The nursery rooms will reflect a more Victorian approach to the holidays. Displays will include rare and unusual children's clothing, and christening gowns; and toys, clothing, and furniture detailing how Christmas was celebrated here in 1887. The highlight of the nursery room exhibits will be a Victorian children's tree with rare period ornaments.

In addition, the Christmas Boutique will be stocked with hand-made and homemade seasonal items, including fresh and dried wreaths, small decorated trees, ornaments, and holiday foods. Russian tea punch and light refreshments will be served and musicians will fill the house with festive music.

Gloucester loves Cartright

Road extended at Gloucester Stage

The Gloucester Stage Company has extended its current hit production of Jim Cartwright's Road due to an unprecedented demand for tickets. Road will continue for an additional week, with performances Wednesday through Sunday, Oct. 21-25.

Director Grey Cattel Johnson has assembled a cast of over 25 local actors for the New England premiere. GSC is one of only two American theatres granted the rights to produce the smash of last year's London theatre season.

Playwright Cartwright worked with the GSC to localize Road for North Shore audiences, and the English setting has been transported to Gloucester and filled with references to the locale.

Gloucester residents in the cast include David Arseneault, who plays Manny, the bartender; the fun-loving duo of Tina and Lane are portrayed by Heidi J. Dallin and Vicki-Lynn Seebacher; cast as Tina's sometimes lover is Dennis DiGregorio; the crochety old Mr. Bald is enacted by Bob Beard; Genie Wills portrays Valerie, a disillusioned housewife. Other natives include Rita Chick, Guy Fiero, Amy Klopotoski, and 12-year-old Kelly Bernie, who scored in the GSC's American Beef this spring.

The award-winning Road paints a savagely comic picture of a Massachusetts seaport town trying to cope with 100 percent unemployment and is staged promenade style.

For this production the GSC has created a town complete with a bar, a sub shop, and over a half dozen houses in their warehouse space at 267 East Main St., in Gloucester.

Performances are at 8 p.m. on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 5 p.m. on Sunday, and 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. on Saturday. For further information and reservations call the GSC box office at 281-4099.

L'Orfeo at Jordan Hall

The Boston Camarata, Joel Cohen artistic director, performs a concert version of Claudio Monteverdi's L'Orfeo Friday through Sunday Oct. 23, 24 and 25 in Jordan Hall at the New England Conservatory.

L'Orfeo features the renowned tenor Jon Humphrey in the title role.

Among the featured artists joining Mr. Humphrey for L'Orfeo are D'Anna Fortunato, alto, and Robert Honeysucker, bass.

First produced at the court of Mantua in 1607 as The Fable of Orpheus, Monteverdi's opera, with libretto by Alessandro Striggio, illuminates the myth of Orpheus and Eurydice. With the dramatic intensity that characterizes Monteverdi's best work, the opera follows Orpheus' descent into the classical underworld to rescue his beloved Eurydice.

Monteverdi's rich and colorful score will be realized by an orchestra of 18 authentic performance specialists, all under the direction of Joel Cohen.

Performances of L'Orfeo are scheduled for Oct. 23 & 24 at 8 p.m., and Oct. 25 at 3 p.m. All performances are at Jordan Hall.

Remaining tickets for L'Orfeo are priced at $19.50, $17.50 and $16.50, and will go on sale Oct. 5 at the Jordan Hall box office (536-2412), at all Bostix locations, at Out-of-Town Tickets in Harvard Square, and by calling Concertcharge at 497-1118.

Pavarotti sings at the Wang Center

Luciano Pavarotti gives a recital in Symphony Hall on Sunday, Oct. 25 at 3 p.m.

Pavarotti offers a program of songs and arias including works of Scarlatti, Schubert, Verdi and Liszt. John Wustman, pianist, is the assisting artist.

Remaining tickets for Luciano Pavarotti are $75, $60, and $50, and on sale at the Symphony Hall box office (266-1492). Tickets are also available by calling Concertcharge (497-1118).

Elvira, mistress of the macabre, escorts people through the Haunted House at the Palace nightclub in Saugus, 9 p.m. on Oct. 16. Call 321-1660.

Blue Leaves at Trinity Rep

The first production of the season in Trinity Repertory Company's Downstairs Theatre series, John Guare's award-winning comedy The House of Blue Leaves, is currently on the boards and continuing through Sunday, Nov. 15.

The House of Blue Leaves is directed by David Wheeler, who last season at Trinity Rep directed the highly praised productions of Hurlyburly and A Lie of the Mind. Scenery is designed by Robert D. Soule, lighting by John F. Custer, and costumes by William Lane. The associate director is Neal Baron.

The cast includes Company members Peter Gerety, Anne Scriveria, Cynthia Strickland, Margot Dionne, Barbara Meek, Keith Jochim, Becca Lish, and Frederick Sullivan, Jr., with Katherine Argo, Alan Brown, and Michael Sexton.

The House of Blue Leaves was first produced in New York in 1971, winning the New York Drama Critics Circle Award as the best American play of the year. Last season's New York revival brought a Tony Award nomination for best play, as well as a generation of theatregoers eager to enjoy John Guare's unique vision, language, and characters.

The House of Blue Leaves is a touching, engaging, and hilariously off-the-wall comedy about a harried, middle-aged zookeeper who dreams of becoming a famous songwriter. But he seems destined only for domestic madness of major proportions.

John Guare is the author of Rich and Famous, Bosoms and Neglect (both produced at Trinity Rep), Landscape of the Body, Marco Polo Sings a Solo, Lydie Breeze, Gardenia, and Women and Water, among many other plays. His screenplays include Atlantic City, directed by Louis Malle.

Performances of The House of Blue Leaves are Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m., Sunday at 2 and 7 p.m., and selected Wednesday and Saturday matinees at 2 p.m. For reservations and ticket information, call the Box Office at (401) 351-4242. The theatre is located at 201 Washington St. in downtown Providence, RI (02903).

Guests to be executed at Collins Center

A nervous night of mystery and adventure awaits theatre goers at the Murder Mystery Night at the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, Shawshen Rd., Andover on Saturday, Oct. 24, at 7 p.m.

Staged by a professional murder mystery company, the performance begins with a reception where professional actors mingle incognito with the audience. The night includes high drama, murderous mayhem, exciting chase scenes, and many other thrills for amateur and serious sleuths.

As the plot thickens during the evening, shameful secrets, suspects, and motives emerge. Also, corpses crop up unexpectedly and no one, including the audience, is above suspicion.

"A Murder Mystery Night is not usually staged in a legitimate theatre," said Dr. Glen A. Gulezian.

Touching, poignant comedy

REMEMBRANCE, a new play in its New England premiere by Graham Reid; directed by Munson Hicks; scenery designed by John Falabella; costumes designed by Susan Tsu; lighting designed by Jackie Manasse; With Kim Hunter, Emery Battis, Ross Bickell, Monica Merryman, Robin Moseley and Susan Pellegrino. At the Huntington Theatre Company, 264 Huntington Ave., Boston through Oct. 18.

It's always an exhilarating experience to discover a gifted new playwright, an author whose work abounds with lyricism, eloquence and compassion. Such a man is 43-year-old Irish playwright Graham Reid, whose work is relatively unknown on these shores and whose latest play, Remembrance, is on the boards at Huntington Theatre Company.

Remembrance is touching, poignant and sensitive yet brimming with old-country, warmhearted humor, recounting a bittersweet romance between two mature adults caught up in the turbulence of contemporary Ireland. Although set against the background of strife-torn Belfast, this is not a political play, rather one that centers on anti-violence and hope for the future.

It mirrors the effect that grim and bloody politics has had on the plain, hard-working people who struggle daily for survival. It focuses on the narrowing of perspective and the coloring of lives where the first inquiry upon awakening each morning concerns the latest atrocity; where an unnecessary trip outside the home could result in an innocent person becoming the latest victim of a 'political incident'; where the scars of the struggle — bombed out, bullet-ridden buildings and bulldozed blocks — are a constant reminder of the ever-present threat.

John Falabella's set captures the immediacy perfectly: the interior of the two drab, starkly-furnished homes on either side of the stage, and center, the forbidding arched, stone entrance and wrought iron gate into the cemetery, backed by the skeletal remains of a bombed out building looming over the landscape like a threatening specter...a constant reminder of the ongoing conflict that invades the lives of all the innocent who live there, products of poverty and endless years of fighting.

Bert Andrews (Emery Battis), 68, is Protestant, a widower, and a retired military man, brought up to believe in cold baths, long walks and strong laxatives. His younger son Sam was recently shot to death in the driveway of his home. His older son Victor (Ross Bickell) is an alcoholic, constantly hung over, and a womanizer who lives on the edge of danger.

He is a tough cop who enjoys violence and molesting his prisoners, bashing their heads against walls. He is bitter, and an insufferable bigot who dreams of going to South Africa where they honor you for shooting "nigs".

Victor's drinking, philandering and insensitivity have caused a split between him and his wife Jenny (Monica Merryman) and he has moved back into his father's house. To help support herself, and because she is so fond of Bert, Jenny comes into the house to cook and clean up.

Theresa Doherty (Kim Hunter), 65, is Catholic, a widow, and mother of three children. She is the product of a society where women's rights have eroded, where the partnership in marriage has been done away with and all that is demanded is respect and obedience.

Her son Peter is dead, gunned down in the streets by Protestants. Her younger daughter Joan (Susan Pellegrino) is plain, subdued and unmarried, living at home and constantly cleaning their humble abode as though possessed, as though it will cleanse her hands of guilt.

Her eldest daughter Deirdre (Robin Moseley) is married with three young children, ages 5,6,7. Her husband, a terrorist, is doing time for murder. Life has hardened Deirdre. She craves sex but any attempt at a liaison would mean instant retaliation by her husband's friends...who look after her. "Want to know the newest methods of birth control?" she asks of Joan, "it's a 3 a.m. arrest and a life sentence for your husband!"

The graves of the sons of Bert and Theresa are opposite each other in the cemetery and it is here they meet, grieving their lost ones. Bert packs light lunches of sandwiches and tea and they sit on the bench outside the grounds and chat.

It is here that the star-crossed love affair develops...two lonely, nice people not adverse to a little more than just living out their lives. They find joy and comfort in companionship and humor in heartache. Theresa reflects, "You get to wonder why the worms are so fat around here!"

The problem is breaking the news of their relationship to their children. Observes Theresa, "The thought of meeting children is even more frightening than meeting parents!"

A meeting at Bert's house proves a disaster. Victor is cruel and insulting, demeaning Theresa's morality. He caustically notes, "With all the tea and sandwiches I thought my father was planning a cafe for Resurrection Day!" He lashes out at Bert for canonizing his younger brother, accusing him of wishing that he died instead of Sam. Later, Bert explains to Theresa that an attempt at a reconciliation between Victor and Jenny would be futile...it would be "a nuclear marriage...neither can win but both have the ability to destroy each other."

Theresa also meets with violent opposition from her daughters who fear the break up of the religious cycle, the family unit and the security of the status quo. Theresa decries "watching the selfish antics of children we thought had grown up!"

Some chasms are too large to bridge as to when Joan says to Victor "Peter was killed by murderers, but your father was a hero for murdering!" During the turmoil, Miriam Varon and Ron Ritchell in Arthur Miller's The Price at the Lyric Stage through Oct. 25.

Team keep the Price right

When Arthur Miller's The Price opened at Boston's Lyric Stage last month, it marked the return of a husband-wife team who had made similar appearances there in former years.

The husband is at the wheel of the family car, delivering his wife to the stage entrance prior to showtime and returning some three hours later to pick her up. Benno Weiser-Varon declares that he enjoys his role as limo driver...a complete switch from his days as a diplomat, when he was the driven one.

Varon's appointment as Ambassador to Israel and to various posts in Latin America put on hold Miriam Varon's burgeoning career on stage, film and TV. When she was cast in the role of Her Excellency she thought her career was at an end. Fortunately, it didn't work out that way. Throughout what she refers to as her diplomatic gypsy years Miriam worked on occasion as a guest artist, mostly in Spanish — her fifth language on stage — in the various national theatres.

She appeared as Mrs. Frank in The Diary of Anne Frank in Paraguay, as well as in three episodes of Plaza Suite. The couple authored a comedy, A Letter to the Times, produced in English and Spanish in the Dominican Republic.

It was reviewed in the N.Y. Times and rated an invitation to Kingston, Jamaica where its gala opening, under the auspices of the Diplomatic Corps, was attended by the Prime Minister, the Governor General and member of the Cabinet.

Miriam, who played the female lead, recalls one of her most cherished moments — when her husband joined her on stage along with the rest of the cast for curtain call and whispered, "This gives me more satisfaction than all my diplomatic successes."

Benno added: "It was a very auspicious curtain raiser for my mission to Jamaica. Miriam certainly was a great asset for my diplomatic tasks. We were a team. Her stage image was a guarantee that affairs at our Embassy would never be dull. She brought to my very sober profession the invigorating ingredient of fun and glamour."

The Price runs through Oct. 25 at the Lyric Stage, 54 Charles St., Boston. Performances are Wednesday through Friday at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., and Sundays at 3 p.m. Ticket prices range from $10 to $13. For reservations call 742-8703. Tickets are also available at Bostix and all Ticketron outlets.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — You could get a second chance on something important — give it all you've got! Concentrate on partnerships, don't be rushed into quick decisions and check carefully for legal rights. It may be time to finally break with the past.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Lady Luck rides with you. You may win a contest or benefit from speculative ventures. Set a good example in the workplace and you'll gain cooperation. Be diplomatic with mate or partner and favors could be returned.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — You have allies working on your behalf and an important deal could go through now. Display charisma and style — be ready for romance and adventure! Roll up your sleeves and clean up chores, deadlines you've procrastinated about.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — A gift and social invitations could arrive or a chance to travel, perhaps with relatives. Domestic relationship and property matters are accentuated — concentrate on long-range plans. A love relationship grows more intense.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — A creative hobby could prove financially lucrative and you can collect money due you. A recent setback could boomerang in your favor. Answers you get now indicate a second chance and you could complete a transaction successfully.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — Your popularity peaks and it's a good time to upgrade your appearance, talents and personality. Double-check financial transactions and bank accounts for possible errors. Be alert for new opportunities to be more independent.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Work on creative projects behind the scenes early in the week. Later your popularity soars, you can make powerful, bold moves and get whatever you ask for. Review your finances — a lucky hunch you have could pay off handsomely!

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Concentrate on long-range goals, love, marriage and more business success. You could learn a secret about romance, your intuition and feelings are heightened but guard against moodiness. Up-grade your personal appearance.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — You could get a big chance professionally — you're on your way up! Accept social invitations, be daring and bold in your personal appearance. Catch up on correspondence and find some private time to mediate and muse.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — The spotlight is on higher education, travel and your philosophy of life. Be aware of rules and regulations, listen to a valuable tip about your career and be patient. You're articulate now, so speak up and share your ideas.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — The accent is on saving money and a partner or relative gives you a good tip about taxes or insurance. Take advantage of a practical educational opportunity. At a social affair you may meet someone important to your future.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — Let your mate or partner take the lead in major decisions — be cooperative and diplomatic. Pay attention to joint finances, keep detailed records and stick to your budget. A gift from a loved one lifts your spirits.

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

Charles River Night Scene, a watercolor, is one of 69 paintings by Agnes Abbot on exhibit at the Concord Art Association gallery in a retrospective of the artist's work.

Agnes Abbot: 69 years

Sixty-nine of Agnes Abbot's paintings, dating from 1917 to 1986, are exhibited at Concord Art Association, 37 Lexington Rd., Concord. Curator Patsy B. McVity has been researching, collecting and preparing the work for exhibition since early 1986. Her efforts have resulted in a fine, delightful tribute to the Harvard, Massachusetts resident who retired from Wellesley College in 1963 after a 43-year association with the art department, where she served as its chairman and taught a variety of studio courses.

The years with Wellesley were interspersed with several leaves of absence. Viewers who see "A Life In Art: Agnes Abbot Retrospective" will have no doubts about the artist's activities during these interludes from academia: she painted, she travelled, and she painted.

Abbot's works have the freshness and immediacy of having been executed in the excitement of a visual moment as quick and as fleeting as one a photographer might lie in wait for. On a farm in Harvard a dozen turkeys ignore the tractor in their midst and trot out their profiles. The machine's big tractive rubber wheels and spiky metal plow have a benign rather than intrusive presence in a scene that glistens with crisp harmony of light.

A hotter, drier light bounces off the striped canvas of bedouin tents in Jordan and sinks pink and ochre into the fleece of a flock of sheep crossing the visibly arid landscape.

The artist captures such moments with bold child-like wonder and a mature formal confidence. The fresh, unself-conscious drama of something seen for its unique and inherent visual charm gives her paintings the quality of being a watercolor journal — notes on her travels and a life enriched by the joys of seeing.

Expressing her interest in painting representationally the world before her eyes, Abbot says "It is the quality of light that concerns me, whether indoors or out, in city or country....I am interested in establishing a mood, and frequently in the suggestion of movement. Whatever the immediate focus of my attention, it is the subject matter which, I feel, should suggest the handling, rather than my forcing it to conform to a certain style. The visual world is made up of such a fascinating variety of form, color and texture that I find no more joyful excitement than attempting to deal with it in paint."

The "quality of light" filters through an apple orchard, turning a leaf here pale and opaque mint green, and a bough there deep, transparent purply-viridian. It glares bright and hard outside the door of a darkened interior on a Provincetown wharf where fishermen sort the day's catch. Abbot does not shy away from such contrasts. She understands what she terms "Unity of Light" and uses her understanding toward the depiction of subjects and scenes that might intimidate a less accomplished painter.

Such boldness is especially evident in the artist's many paintings of nighttime. Yip Foo Laundry, painted in 1940 in New York City summarizes the edgy romance of a late night urban street. The picture is a succinct aerial view of a lone person striding down an otherwise empty sidewalk that is lighted momentarily by the fluorescent yellow laundry windows, then soaked up into and silenced by the night's blacks and dark grays.

Self-Portrait in Moving Train (Returning from New York) is also a night picture. The artist catches her own reflection in the train window as white and yellow splashes of city lights dot her forehead. The portrait can stand, in its direct and unpretentious look at the artist herself as a part of the world around her, as a statement for the entire retrospective, which is, too, a self portrait.

The works of Agnes Abbot are on exhibit through Oct. 25. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Call 369-2578.

Exhibits & Events

Fort Point artists open studios

Boston — Oct. 17 & 18. From noon to 5 p.m. The Fort Point Arts Community of South Boston, representing over 300 visual artists in approximately 23 buildings in the Fort Point Channel area, open their studios to the public. For information call 423-4299.

A closing reception in Cambridge

Cambridge — Oct. 25. Modestino Gallery, 426 Broadway, hosts a closing reception for the exhibition of recent work by Jose Benitez Sanchez of Mexico. The artist's yarn paintings communicate the spiritual traditions of one of the last remaining shamanic cultures of the world, the Huichol Indians, and will remain on exhibit at the gallery through Oct. 31. Call 868-7206 for viewing hours.

'People on Paper'

Newton — Oct. 16 - Nov. 8. The Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, hosts an exhibition of large drawings described by exhibiting artist Scattergood-Moore as "representing people and exploring the human landscape." Other artists in the exhibit are Jim Ann Howard and Don Stinson. The public is invited to an opening reception 6 to 9 p.m. Oct. 16, and a gallery talk by the three artists

Andre Watts plays Symphony Hall

Andre Watts, the distinguished American pianist, gives a recital on Sunday, Oct. 18, 3 p.m. in Symphony Hall. He will perform works of Haydn, Mozart, Schubert, and Brahms.

Born in 1946 to a Hungarian mother and an American father, Watts studied at the Philadelphia Academy of Music and, from the age of 9, performed a varied repertoire including Haydn, Mendelssohn, and Franck for the Philadelphia Orchestra's children's concerts. Leonard Bernstein discovered Watts while screening young pianists for his own memorable Young People's Concerts with the New York Philharmonic.

"He wasn't just another young pianist," Bernstein recalls. "he's one of those special giants." When an ailing Glenn Gould cancelled a performance in January 1963, Bernstein, in a bold and unexpected move, selected Watts, a 16-year old prodigy, to replace him.

Watts gave a now-legendary, televised performance of the Liszt Concerto in E-flat with the New York Philharmonic, Leonard Bernstein conducting, and his career was launched.

Remaining tickets for the Andre Watts recital are priced at $20, $18 and $17, and will go on sale at the Symphony Hall box office (266-1492) and by calling Concertcharge at 497-1118.

Discounts for groups of 10 or more are available by contacting the Wang Celebrity Series at 482-2595.

Vintage music at Palace

Blood, Sweat & Tears, featuring lead vocalist David Clayton-Thomas, has been added to the lineup of start being presented by The Palace Nightclub during their celebrity music showcase series. One of the most popular bands of the 1960's, the group will perform on Oct. 24, for two shows, at 9 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. All tickets are $12.50.

Other celebrities booked by The Palace, located at 1500 Broadway in Saugus, are the vintage Harold Melvin & the Blue Notes on Oct. 17; The Association on Nov. 7; a reunion concert by The Great Pretenders on Nov. 25; and Boston's own Tavares for two nights, Nov. 27-28.

Further details and all ticket information is available by phoning The Palace box office at 321-1660. All shows are at 9 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. and tickets are priced at $12.50.

Catch presents comedy

Jay Johnson, whose dual role as Chuck and Bob Campbell on TV's Soap established him as the premier ventriloquist of his generation, headlines at Catch A Rising Star in Harvard Square through Oct. 17. Joining him on the triple bill are Hub favorites Linda Smith, host of Catch's Monday Night New Talent Showcase, and Chris Sheeno.

During the forthcoming weeks the Catch has scheduled an impressive list of headliners.

From Oct. 20 to 25 Jerry Seinfeld returns for a very special week. He's even hotter than when he opened the club in February, with his own HBO special on the cable network this month. For his appearance there will be extra performances on Thursday evening and on Sunday. Special ticket prices are $12.50 Tuesday through Thursday and on Sunday, and $15 for Friday and Saturday. Comic Mario Joyner, who moonlights as an opening act for The Cosby Show, is also on the bill.

Featured during the week of Oct. 27-31 is Ellen DeGeneres, Showtimes Funniest Person in America 1984-85. Miss DeGeneres is a veteran of all the major clubs in the country. Tonight Show guest, and all-around female comic star.

Highlighting the week of Nov. 3-7 is Kevin Meaney, the Boston favorite now making a name for himself all over the country. He will be seen in the film Big, marking the directing debut of Penny Marshall (Laverne & Shirley). Also on the bill is Colin Quinn, who is featured in the soon to be released film Three Men and A Baby, and Wendy Libman.

Allan Havey will take center stage the week of Nov. 10-14. Havey is spotlighted in next month's HBO Young Comedians Special and The Tonight Show. Joining him on the bill is Gary Lazer and Julie Barr.

All shows at Catch are All Ages Shows. Headline comedy is presented every Tuesday through Thursday at 8:30 p.m., Friday at 8:30 and 11 p.m., and Saturday at 7:30 p.m., 9:45 p.m. and midnight. Cover ranges from $7 to $10. Sunday and Monday is Comedy Showcase/Open Mike Night at 8:30 p.m. with a cover charge of $3.

Performance art showcase

Science Projects, a program of new performance works, will be presented Oct. 14-16, at Mobius, 354 Congress St., Boston. The project is the result of a unique collaboration between New England Foundation for the Arts, Mobius, and the New England Museum Association.

Science Projects features New England performance artists who have been exploring scientific themes, principles, and issues in their work. The program is being held in conjunction with the annual New England Museum Association conference. This year's conference theme emphasizes connections among the arts, humanities, and sciences.

The Julliard String Quartet plays Schubert at 3 p.m., Nov. 1, 2, Jordan Hall, Boston. Tickets are $16.50. Call 536-2412.

The Science Projects explore ways that ideas from one discipline are expanded by perspectives from another. These performance pieces use aesthetic, kinesthetic, and emotional sensibilities to explore and express scientific ideas.

Participating artists include Harris Barron, Richard Lerman, and Victor Young of Massachusetts; Peter D. Burns and David Moss of Vermont; and Bob Rizzo of Rhode Island.

Remembrance

Theresa still maintains her sense of humor... "If they're talking about us they're leaving someone else alone!"

Construction of Reid's play is very interesting: two different households, each treated equally with the same number of scenes, and the cemetery setting as the location of neutrality between them. Each vignette overlaps with the last, creating a symmetrical rhythm. All the characters are fully drawn and the cast, working as an ensemble, is uniformly excellent. Munson Hicks directs with a tight and sure hand.

Remembrance of this stalwart couple in the autumn of their lives is something you will long remember and cherish!

Travel savings available for senior citizens

Mature adults, age 55-plus, will find new recognition and discounts for travel, at least through the end of 1987, aboard the Greyhound bus system. The Greyhound Golden Savers Seniors Club is the new program, where qualifying adults need only present proof of identification and age at any Greyhound station to secure a cost-free membership card.

The new discounts for mature adults are 15 percent from any fare — including promotional fares — on the Greyhound route system. For example, the cross-country special fair of $59 is reduced with the discount, to only $50.15.

Information on the new Golden Savers Senior Club may be secured from local Greyhound offices and the ticket facilities in terminals.

coast-to-coast are participating in the adoption program.

They conduct orientation sessions for potential adopters, match qualifying seniors with a cat or dog that suits their needs and interests, and make follow-up calls to the new pet owners.

Ralston Purina donates $100 to the shelters for each pet adopted through the program, to fund the adoption fee, inoculations, spaying or neutering, and a pet-care kit that includes collar, leash, food and water bowl and a starter supply of Purina brand pet food.

For more information about Pets for People, or to receive the name of the closets participating shelter, write Purina Pets for People Program, Checkerboard Square, 6T, St. Louis, MO 63164.

HOW TO STAY YOUNG

The body is a wondrous machine with parts that can be maintained well to keep functioning as well as ever. The body also has the ability to regenerate itself to even better health if given positive attention and care.

These statements are present as fact in understandable terms in the new book, "Staying Young: The Whole Truth About Aging and What You Can Do to Slow Its Progress," by Thomas Hager and Lauren Kessler.

From taking the sag out of skin to producing a trim body, from exercises for the mind to life-sustaining care for the heart, this remarkable book analyzes each part of the body, identifies potential problems, and then provides positive health programs for personal use.

Published Aug. 1, 1987, "Staying Young: The Whole Truth About Aging and What You Can Do to Slow Its Progress" (ISBN 0-8160-1303-9, 225 pages) is available in bookstores in hard-cover at $17.95.

Or, the book may be ordered directly from the publisher, Facts on File, 460 Park Ave. South, New York, NY 10016 at $17.95, postpaid. (Residents of New York state need to add $1.44 for state sales tax.)

Audi Remanufactured Parts. Built Like New. Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit — alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts — is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts. The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

*Ask for Autobahn or Audi Limited Warranty at our Parts Department.

There are important detail points to watch in connection with brake fluid. One is that it must not come in contact with water, gasoline, oil or any liquid other than methylated spirits, alcohol or special brake-system cleaning solvents. It is best to keep it in the original can, but if necessary to decant it, use either a brand-new pourer or one that has been carefully cleaned with methylated spirits. Brake fluid will damage a car's paintwork, so be very careful with it and destroy any rags used to mop up spilled fluid. Cleanliness is ultra-important with the braking system because the tiniest speck of grit can damage the delicate seals on the wheel cylinders and may even mark the pistons.

NEWS NOTES

Council to focus on drug awareness

The Council on Youth would like to focus on drug awareness and finding a new location for the Recreation Center, Council member Bradley Bailey told the Board of Selectmen last week.

Bailey said that members of the council had expressed concern about drug and alcohol use and abuse among Winchester youth. He said that the council would like to coordinate an awareness program at Winchester High School to help combat the problem.

Staff members at the high school to whom Bailey spoke said they are willing to participate in the organization of such a program, Bailey said. One idea for the program, Bailey added, is a speaker's day at the high school.

The second problem, the location of the Recreation Center, stems from Winchester youths complaints, Bailey said. Students are unhappy with the current location of the youth center, Bailey reported, because it is in a school building: the Muraco School on Bates Road.

Bailey said that having the youth center in a school has a "chilling effect" on students who are off for the summer. The youths are interested in escaping from educational facilities during recreation, he said.

Shannon elected

new assessor

Charles E. Shannon will serve as the town's new assessor, the Board of Selectmen and assessors voted in a 4-3 split Tuesday night.

Selectmen Robert Deering, Francis Sopper and Mark Lombardi and Assessor David Errico voted for Shannon. Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia, board member Thomas Schmitt and Assessor Francis Mahoney voted for Joseph Guarnotta. Shannon fills the vacancy created by the death last month of Assessor John Murphy.

He got his real estate broker's license in 1967. He got his experience at an Arlington real estate firm and then went on to open his own business.

Shannon told the selectmen that he applied for the assessor's position because he has been in Winchester for five years and he now feels that he has time to give of himself to the town and to the people who have helped him.

POLICE LOG

Monday, October 19

At 4:16 a.m., police were heading west on Church Street behind a rust-colored Chevrolet Nova.

According to reports, the driver of the Nova repeatedly looked into his rear-view mirror and then tried to evade the patrol car by driving down several side streets and then turning back onto Church Street headed west. The driver then pulled into a driveway and turned off the car's headlights. The police continued down Church Street and saw the car back out of the driveway with its lights still off, police said.

Police stopped the driver at the corner of Church and Cambridge Streets. The man verbally identified himself. He said he did not have his license or registration, according to police reports.

A check of the license plate showed that the car was registered to a Lowell woman. A driver's license check on the name that the man gave the officers came back with no response. A Winchester dispatcher called Lowell and found that the car had been reported stolen, police said.

The police placed the man under arrest, at which time he told the police his real name. He faces charges of larceny of a motor vehicle, and a default warrant out of Chelmsford for operating under the influence, reckless driving, leaving the scene of property damage, and driving an unregistered car, according to police.

The man, a Lowell resident, was also cited for operating without lights and operating after a license suspension, police said.

Sunday, October 18

At 8:31 p.m. police saw a black Chrysler Cordoba driving south on Main Street with what appeared to be fresh damage to its right side, according to police reports. The car also crossed the center line of the road.

The registration and vehicle description had been given to Winchester and Woburn police earlier in the day, because the vehicle was suspected to have been in a hit-and-run accident at 626 Main St., police said.

Police stopped the car on Main Street at Glenwood Avenue. Police suspected the man had been drinking and arrested the Swanton Street resident on charges of leaving the scene of an accident and operating under the influence of alcohol.

Saturday, October 17

While operating radar on Pond Street, police stopped two motorcycle drivers at 2:12 p.m.

The officer said he clocked the motorcycles at 59 miles per hour in a 30 m.p.h. zone. One of the two drivers was not licensed to operate a motorcycle, and his driver's license had been suspended, police said.

Police arrested the man on charges of speeding, operating after a license suspension, and operating a motorcycle without a license, according to police.

Friday, October 16

At 11:45 p.m. police saw a red Buick go through a red light at Main and Swanton Streets, according to police.

Police stopped the car, which was driven by a Woburn man. The man did not have a driver's license. The car was unregistered and uninsured and the license plate belonged to a Highland Avenue man's Ford Escort, police said.

The man was arrested and cited with driving without a license, attaching plates, and driving an uninsured and unregistered vehicle, according to police.

Wednesday, October 14

At 7:39 a.m. police were called to the scene of a burglary on Cambridge Street.

The owners of the house said the intruder must have entered the house through an unlocked basement bulkhead door after 10:30 p.m. the day before, according to police.

Once inside, the intruder went upstairs into the kitchen and took a pocketbook with a purse containing a checkbook, $20, credit cards, and house and car keys, police said. The thief also took a quart of Scotch and a quart of Tia Maria from the liquor cabinet in the living room, according to police.

The refrigerator and freezer doors were open, but nothing had been disturbed and an electronic digital thermostat, which police believe could have been mistaken for an alarm control box, had been tampered with, police said.

Ingrid Crepeau and Michele Valeri will present the children's musical, "Dinosaur Rock," Nov. 1.

Nursery sponsors "Dinosaur Rock"

On November 2, 1 16-foot tall triceratops named Barney will be among the many dinosaur puppets that sing and dance on stage in the children's musical "Dinosaur Rock".

The puppets are creations of Ingrid Crepeau, Emmy award-winner for her puppet design. When she teams up with singer/songwriters Michele Valeri and Michael Stein, facts about dinosaurs are presented in dialogue and melodies. One dinosaur sings "I'm the hadrosaur from Hackensack, been gone 100 million years and now I'm back, oh Baby...oh Baby...oh...!"

Throughout the musical, the dinosaurs invite the audience to participate in sing-alongs, yodeling or just simple clapping. "Dinosaur Rock" returns to the Boston area after packed performances at the Kennedy Center and Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C. and Boston's Museum of Science last fall.

This event is being sponsored by the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School in Winchester. Last year the folk singing team "Rosen-shontz" was the school's successful fundraising effort.

"Dinosaur Rock" will be held at the McCall Junior High School in Winchester from 7 to 8 p.m. on November 2. For ticket information, contact the Neighborhood Cooperative Nursery School at 729-8081 or 729-7319.

Davidson to accompany open sing

At 3 p.m., Sunday, Oct. 25, the Winchester Music Society will sponsor an open reading of J.S. Bach's motet, "Jesu, Meine Freude" in the old parish hall of the Parish of the Epiphany. This program, which is partially supported by funds from the Massachusetts Arts Lottery as administered by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council, will be directed by John Duffy and accompanied by Carole Davidson. All interested local residents and friends are invited to participate.

Carole Davidson, a long-time resident of Winchester, an active member of the Winchester Music Society, and former head of the Winchester Arts Lottery Council, lives with her husband Douglass, at 14 Thornberry Rd. Both Davidsons have been active in previous sight singing sessions in the roles of director or accompanist.

Davidson, who is a pianist, singer and accompanist, will provide keyboard accompaniment for the Bach motet. She is a graduate of Pomona College and, currently, organist at the Old North Church, Boston. Davidson is a teacher of Orff-Kodaly and recorder to students ages 4 to 9. She also produces and directs musicals for children and adults. At present she and her husband are working on the Cole Porter musical, "Anything Goes", for the Needham Community Theater. In early December Davidson and Bruce Goody, a flautist, will present a program for flute and organ at Hammond Castle.

The Winchester Music Society encourages all local musicians to join its members in performing Bach's motet, "Jesu, Meine Freude". For further information, contact Martin Hitchcock of 29 Wildwood St.

Archie Kolligan of Winchester, the New England Regional Committee member and Senior Delegate of the Holy Trinity Church of Greater Boston, announces that the Supreme Patriarch and Catholicos of the Armenian Church, Vasken I, will visit New England on October 26 through 28.

Kolligan will be on hand to greet the plane.

Republican Club to host

John Sununu

New Hampshire Governor John Sununu will address members of the Winchester Women's Republican Club on Tuesday, Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Center.

A question and answer period will follow. Light refreshments will be served.

Library to hold a concert by Tamarack Trio

Winchester joins a national celebration on Nov. 1 when Music at the Library presents a concert in honor of National American Music Week. The concert begins at 2 p.m. in the Public Library reference room.

Presented by the Tamarack Trio, the concert program will be entirely devoted to music by American composers — Charles Martin Loeffler (including a premiere performance of his composition, "Cynthia"), Ned Rorem, Henry Cowell, Robert A. Olson, and G. Theodore Wiprud. The latter two composers are expected to be in attendance.

The Tamarack Trio, whose members have performed extensively in the Boston area, is composed of Ann Karnofsky, piano, Cynthia Stult, violin, and Wendy Smith, cello.

The concert is open to the general public free of charge. Donations will be accepted. It is produced by the Community Arts Program as part of its year-round series of community concerts and funded in part by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council.

St. Mary's School to hold crafts fair

More than 30 skilled professional craftspeople will be displaying their wares at "Ye Olde Yankee Craft Faire" on Nov. 7 at St. Mary's School Hall on Washington St. from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The public is invited to join us in this yearly event. There will be a wide variety of wares from wooden items, ornaments, quilts, wreaths and many more wonderful craft creations.

This event will also feature a children's corner with many enjoyable activities for the young ones, a Yankee Kitchen featuring an assortment of food and St. Mary's own bake table with an array of "specialty" desserts. The raffle committee plans a wide variety of raffle prizes including a Sharp Video Cassette Recorder.

Players perform "Table Manners"

Reservations are now being accepted for the Winchester Players fall production, "Table Manners" by Alan Ayckbourne. Playdates are Friday and Saturday, Nov. 6 and 7, and Thursday through Saturday, Nov. 12 through 14.

All performances start at 8:15 p.m. in Metcalf Hall of the Unitarian Church. Admission prices are $6 and $4 for students and seniors. Reservations, for all dates except Nov. 6, may be made by calling the Players answering service, 721-1707. The reservation chairman will contact callers to confirm reservations. The Nov. 6 performance is a benefit performance for the Chamber of Commerce. For this performance only, call 729-8870.

"Table Manners" is one of a trilogy of modern British comedies known as "The Norman Conquests." It presents one weekend in the lives of Norman Dewars, his in-laws, and attempted conquests. The cast of six is directed by Michael Jacobs and supported by a seasoned crew of Players volunteers.

Crawford Church plans Big Fall Rummage Sale

The Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church will hold a rummage sale Friday, Oct. 23, from noon to 9 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 24, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Admission is free. Clothing, white elephant, linens, books, toys and game items will be available.

The event is sponsored by the United Methodist Women.

Recreation Dept. plans shopping trip to Nashua

The Winchester Recreation Department's Great Escape Program for adults is sponsoring a shopping trip to the Pheasant Lane mall in Nashua, N.H., on Thursday, Nov. 12.

Transportation will be provided by bus or van for a $6 (non-refundable) fee. The bus leaves from behind McCall Junior High School at 9 a.m. and returns at 4 p.m. Checks may be made payable to "Town of Winchester" at time of registration. The deadline to register for the trip is Thursday, Oct. 29 at 2 p.m. Participants will be free to shop and lunch at their convenience.

For further information, call the Recreation Department at 721-7125.

MORTGAGE WEATHER REPORT.

They say that in New England if you don't like the weather, wait a minute. New England mortgage rates can be tough to predict, too. One way to gain the upper hand is with a Convertible Rate Mortgage from CambridgePort. That way you can start off at a low rate, and lock in an even lower rate when you see the chance. We have two sensible plans, both with one of the lowest lifetime caps around. And we don't charge you a fee to convert, which is the whole idea in the first place. If you're not sure which way the wind is blowing, now you can take the pressure.

Convertible Plan A. Pay half a point, float at a competitive adjustable rate with the opportunity to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 10.83%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.89%

Convertible Plan B. Pay two points, and we will give you an even better adjustable rate for the first year, then let it float until you decide to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate 9.08%
Annual Percentage Rate 10.87%

Other Facts. No fee and minimal paperwork when you convert to a fixed rate. Convert anytime between months 13 and 60. Annual cap: 2%. Lifetime cap: 5%. Margin: 2.50%. For homes throughout Massachusetts call Rebecca Taber at 661-4900 to find out more.

Congress declares yearbook week

Congress has officially declared a week to honor and recognize yearbooks and the student journalists nationwide who create them. The proclamation President Ronald Reagan signed cites the educational and career value of the yearbook and the historical and social significance of this school publication.

The Winchester High School yearbook staff produces the "Aberjona" and is directed by Adviser Carlyjane Watson. Watson said this is the first time Congress has officially declared a week to honor and recognize yearbooks and the student journalists who create them.

Winchester has a long yearbook tradition, having produced the "Aberjona" for 58 years. Each year a student staff plans, designs, and produces the publication.

"It's a complete experience," said Watson. "Staffers learn and practice skills in writing, editing, marketing, advertising, budgeting, photography, art and design, and people management. Some go on to further journalism study, but all benefit in some way from the demanding and educational work of producing the yearbook."

The 1988 "Aberjona" staff is headed up by Michael Chen, Editor-in-Chief; Martin Herlihy, Co-Editor-Layout; Doug Holt, Co-Editor-Copy; Shivanthy Srikanthan, Co-Editor-Production and Elaine Eliadis, Business Manager. The 1988 "Aberjona" is scheduled to be delivered next spring during the last week in May.

Teenage life to be discussed at PFA meeting

"Drugs, Sex and Rock & Roll...an intimate portrait and discussion about teenage life in Winchester" will be the topic for the Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association meeting at WHS on Nov. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Howard Sherman and David Margolis, licensed, certified social workers in Winchester, will kick off the 1987-1988 Parent-to-Parent program for the WHS PFA with this provocative program. Both Sherman and Margolis have years of experience in working with teens and parents around issues of adolescence.

The evening will include parental participation and an ample opportunity for a question and answer session. Parents should feel free to call Judy Bush, president of the WHS PFA at 729-7489 or Sherman or Margolis at 729-2070 with any topics or questions that they would like to see addressed.

Lincoln School sponsors musical

On Saturday, Oct. 24, at 1 p.m. at the Lincoln School, The Loon and Heron Repertory Company presents a public performance of an original musical adaptation of Grimm's classic folktale, The Golden Goose.

The story celebrates the trials and triumphs of the unwitting Simpleton. As reward for his gentle kindness and good humor, Simpleton receives a magic golden goose. Whoever touches it sticks fast, and follows the bewildered hero through hilarious misadventures. One important idea in the story is that no matter what a person seems to be, they are of great worth.

The Golden Goose offers a blend of music, movement and drama, puppets, brilliant costumes and stage settings. The performance is sponsored by the Ways and Means of Lincoln Elementary and admission is $4.

For more information on the performance, contact Charlotte Morse at 253-3529. For further information about the Loon and Heron theatre program, call 232-1715.

The program is funded by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities, a state agency.

Lincoln School presents Loon and Heron show

On Saturday, Oct. 24, at 1 p.m., in the Lincoln School auditorium, the Loon & Heron Theatre will present an original musical adaptation of Grimm's classic folktale, The Golden Goose. Directed to pre- and elementary school students, the story celebrates the trials and triumphs of the unwitting Simpleton. As reward for his gentle kindness and good humor, Simpleton receives a magic golden goose. Whoever touches it sticks fast, and follows the bewildered hero through hilarious misadventures.

The production offers a blend of music, movement, and drama, with the aid of life-size puppets, costumes and stage settings. Proceeds will benefit programs and projects of the school through the auspices of the Lincoln School Association.

The Loon & Heron Theatre, Inc. has been reaching out to children of all ages since 1978. Its audiences include not only schools, libraries, and community groups, but also such traditionally underserved populations as physically disabled children, those with special needs, and inner city youth.

Tickets are $4. For further information, please call Charlotte Morse at 253-3529 (days) or 729-4735 (evenings).

Haunted house guarantees to strike delightful terror

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Special to the Star

Costumes are coming down from the closet shelf as carved pumpkins make their way to windows, their candlelit faces flickering in the night. Halloween is almost here.

Another reminder of Halloween is the annual Chamber of Commerce Haunted House, which is once again guaranteed to scare the daylights out of daring visitors.

The Chamber Board of Directors has hosted the event for the past 16 years. According to Debbie Rogers, who is in charge of publicity, this year promises to be just as exciting and action packed, with all new scenes.

Plans for the Haunted House began last spring when Craig Thayer was chosen as chairman, along with "scene" chairmen for each of the five scenes. This year's scene chairmen include Alan Eyden, John Frongillo, Noreen Arcari, Ray Callahan, Dr. Bob Tursey and Vinny Guarna. The scene chairmen are responsible for deciding on a scene and for recruiting workers to put the plan into action.

By September, when the committee held its organizational meeting, most of these decisions had been made. Among this year's scenes are Mountain Terror with the Abominable Snowman and Dracula (complete with coffin and bats).

Scene construction and prop decisions are all made by the scene committees. "People work really hard," said Rogers. "They're all busy in their own businesses, but a lot come back [to help] year after year because it's so much fun. There's a lot of creativity that goes into it."

Arcari, who is the chairman of the Dracula scene, says this year's Haunted House will be excellent. "The main goal is to scare and delight," she said. "It's dynamite. It's a sensory as well as startling affect."

Eyden, who is chairing the Mountain Terror scene, agrees.

"I think it's going to be good. I'm enthusiastic," he said. "We have new people coming in every year to let their talent run wild."

Eyden noted that most of the volunteers are either Winchester residents or business people. In addition, the high school's drama club, Curtain and Cue, is in charge of a room this year.

Proceeds from the event help fund activities that the Chamber sponsors throughout the year, such as the Christmas Tree lighting and Town Day kick-off. "This is one of the largest fund-raisers," said Rogers.

Last year, 6700 brave souls journeyed through the Haunted House. Rogers added that she hopes attendance will be up this year.

"The Red Sox were in the World Series and the weather wasn't too good last year, so that may have kept some people away," she said. "It's usually well attended by all the towns in the area."

Rogers reminds Winchester residents that Palmer Street will be one-way during Haunted House hours. Traffic will only run from Main Street to the four-way stop at Wildwood Street between 6:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. There will be police officers and traffic-control volunteers on hand to assist with parking and directing traffic.

Since the Haunted House can be frightening for children, Rogers recommends that younger children are accompanied by an adult. In addition, children under 5 are not encouraged to visit.

Tickets for the event are $1.50 per person. The Haunted House will be open Oct. 23, 24, and 25, and Oct. 28, 29 and 30 from 6:30 to 9 p.m. and is held at the Wedge Pond beach house.

Police review

Halloween safety

Chief John P. McHugh and Safety Officer Kevin P. Mawn join with the Mass. Safety Officers League to improve Halloween safety throughout Massachusetts.

According to Chief McHugh, every year accidents involve children pursuing 'trick or treat' fun because Halloween exuberance overcomes the child's observance of nominal safety practices.

According to the Chief and Safety Officer Mawn, Halloween comes after dark, which is approximately 5 p.m. This is also the time when vehicular flow is at its greatest. Therefore, it is imperative that parents give some thought to the following: younger children should be accompanied by an adult; street crossing kept to a minimum, with any crossing done at corners or crosswalks after looking in all directions of traffic flow; costumes should be kept simple, white or something bright for easy identification; costumes with flowing skirts should be avoided to eliminate tripping; makeup or painted faces are preferred to masks which may reduce the ability to see, or make sure mask eye holes are oversize; flashlights are recommended as a safety precaution.

In addition, Safety Officer Mawn recommends that children 'trick or treat' only in their own neighborhoods, remaining on one side of the street, visiting all of the target houses, then carefully crossing to visit the houses on the other side of the street; avoid criss-crossing and be aware of driveways and backing vehicles.

In other years there were many stories of foreign substances hidden in 'treats'. Most of these stories have been found without truth. However, Safety Officer Mawn recommends inspection of all treats and discarding any unwrapped candies or other treats for reasons of health and sanitation.

Chief McHugh concluded, "Halloween is a day children have always had as a fun day. Parents should accept all safety practices to ensure a Happy Halloween!"

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

A close-up of glasnost

It probably isn't very often that the editor of a local American paper gets invited to meet with a wide variety of Soviet citizens, but I found myself in that position and just came back from two weeks as a guest of the Soviet Peace Committee.

I would normally write this column in an objective, universal tone, but the Soviet Union is a big place and world relations and the arms race are big subjects, so I thought it best to convey the experience in a more personal way.

Fifteen of us, mostly owners of small businesses, traveled with three English-speaking Soviet guides to Moscow, Baku and some small villages. We saw factories and the new, private co-ops introduced under "perestroika," the Soviet program of industrial renewal that has begun to be implemented. We spoke with workers in a plant that produces children's books and met with academics, journalists and politicians.

We heard much that was formerly taboo. "Glasnost," the Russian word meaning "openness," has brought many subjects out of the closet.

Most of us were curious as to whether glasnost and perestroika are real, or simply a propaganda ploy. I think the answer is that something momentous is happening in Soviet society with important implications for the entire world, but that the changes will come slowly.

On the Intourist bus from Sheremetevo airport into Moscow, our first few minutes in the country, one of our hosts took the microphone and bellowed out, "Welcome to the heart of the Evil Empire!" We all let out a hearty laugh. He had hit a sensitive nerve with perfect aim.

We kept hearing repeated references to Stalin and the damage done to the country under his reign. Even two years ago no one would mention his name in public. People were saying that Stalin took Communism off course for 30 years. Attempts are now being made to bring back the original principals established by Lenin in the '20s.

For example, Lenin initiated the New Economic Plan that called for private commerce in certain areas. Stalin destroyed those initiatives and collectivized the entire country, much to its detriment.

On the second day we met with American Ambassador Jack Matlock. He said, "What is happening is not a sham."

But Matlock sees problems with the implementation of Soviet leader Gorbachev's program. Self-financing and pay-for-performance, two elements to be integrated into the economic system Jan. 1, will take away from workers and managers grown lazy from a non-incentive system. Many conservative party members are threatened by the planned dismantling of various privileges, particularly the special stores with hard-to-get goods that the higher-ups currently enjoy.

Matlock says Gorbachev will have a hard time keeping his enemies at bay, and to expect strikes and protests as unpopular reforms take hold and prices for basics increase.

To have a lasting effect, five to 10 years of steady change will be needed.

Workers we spoke to were very concerned about possible unemployment. In the Soviet Union today there is none, technically. Academics we spoke to explained that one of the primary rights of a Soviet citizen is the right to work. But they admitted under close questioning that when the management ranks are cut in half as planned, not all the managers will be reabsorbed rapidly.

Some of the discussion was about war and peace. None of us want war and the Soviets desire peace with a fervor that only a people who lost 20 million citizens in World War II could.

In an Orthodox Church in Baku, one of our number addressed the crowd in his broken Russian. He said America wants peace and friendship, and other things in that vein. As we left the church scores of old women with colorful scarfs wrapped around their heads wept and kissed our hands, calling out, "Mir," the Russian word for peace, and other things we couldn't understand. Many of them lost husbands 45 years ago.

While the American military confronted Iranians in the Persian Gulf, we inspected Soviet oil platforms 250 miles north of Tehran in the Caspian sea. All is quiet on the northern front.

During World War II, Hitler's armies tried to take Baku for its oil. If they had been successful, the Soviets, and possibly the rest of us, would have been finished.

The head of the Azerbaijan Peace Committee (Baku is the capital of the Azerbaijani Socialist Republic) was a division general in the army that turned the Nazis back. He, like others who saw serious action, is firmly committed to preventing further bloodshed.

At one point during a toast of champagne at a privately run restaurant, the Americans were shouting and carrying on. The general, who spoke no English, took the floor, saying through an interpreter, "I am a general. I have a right to tell people what to do." And he ordered us to refill our glasses.

It is difficult to portray the atmosphere of an entire nation in such a small space. It is even difficult to portray my small view of that nation. I have said nothing of the complex changes that are taking place in journalism and the arts, or the intricacies of international trade and Soviet economics that we discussed with academics, or proposals we made to have military delegations from both countries visit each others' missile sites.

I can only say, keep an eye on the U.S.S.R. Many exciting and mostly pleasant things are likely to be coming out of there in the next while.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dewald rebuts Schwartzman's letter

TO THE EDITOR:

I regard the letter by Mr. Carl Schwartzman, published in the October 15 edition of the Winchester Star, as simply awful. There is nothing to be gained by ridiculing personalities when the town has real issues to deal with. Dealing in personalities will never lead to a consensus with the electorate on issues. Not only was Mr. Schwartzman's letter a vicious personal attack on two honorable selectmen, but it was an insult to the electorate as a whole.

It needs to be pointed out that Mr. Schwartzman is the husband of Misty Schwartzman, who was the campaign manager for two current members of the Board of Selectmen, namely Mrs. Judy Muggia, chairperson, and Mr. Thomas Schmitt. It is inconceivable that one so familiar with town politics would write such a letter independently.

Finally, I do not consider Mr. Schwartzman's letter an example of a dignified debate, an issue that Mr. Schmitt deemed so important during his campaign last spring.

Residents relate history of UNICEF

TO THE EDITOR:

We read with great interest Sue Shor's article in last week's Winchester Star about UNICEF's 40th birthday and the "Glimpses of India" celebration. It was gratifying to read about Winchester's own Elizabeth Williams and her devoted work with the UNICEF committee over the years. As supporters of UNICEF, we felt that the people of Winchester might like to know about this wonderful organization.

UNICEF began in 1946 as the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund to assist the children of war-torn Europe. In the early 1950's the General Assembly shortened UNICEF's name and expanded its purpose to address the children in developing nations. In 1965, UNICEF was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, linking work for children to world peace.

Today UNICEF is a network of country and regional offices serving 119 developing nations. UNICEF is particularly concerned about the major causes of death and disease among children under five. According to statistics published recently by the United States Committee for UNICEF, 14 million children die before the age of five, and estimates are that at least one-half of these deaths could be averted by a handful of low-cost health actions.

Many of the three million children who die annually from measles, whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus, polio, and tuberculosis could be saved by immunization. Millions of malnutrition related deaths could be averted by programs encouraging breast-feeding and regular weighing. Starch or sugar and salt mixtures would prevent the millions of deaths caused from diarrhoeal dehydration. In addition, UNICEF promotes many formal and informal education programs stressing nutrition, clean water and sanitation. These are just a few of the outstanding feats that UNICEF accomplished last year: 83,468 clean water supply systems were established; approximately 450 million doses of vaccines were supplied; provided stipends for training 87,600 local teachers; delivered 15,460 metric tons of donated food; provided technical supplies and equipment for 61,500 health centers in remote rural areas; provided grants for training 410,900 health care workers from physicians to traditional midwives; and assisted 15 countries hit by disasters including earthquakes, drought, famine, and floods.

"America Celebrates Children: 40 Years of Support for UNICEF 1947-1987" is the theme of a two week birthday celebration from Oct. 25 through Nov. 6. People across the United States are planning parties, dinners, lectures, teas, and other special events to raise money for UNICEF. Although UNICEF is an integral but semi-autonomous part of the United Nations, its budget is not funded by the U.N., but rather from people and governments who care about children. Winchester residents who wish to support UNICEF can attend the "Glimpses of India" program complete with an international dessert buffet at The Crawford Methodist Church, Oct. 25, at 7 p.m. Please call Elizabeth Williams 729-4062, or Margie Lamar 729-1517 for ticket information. Tax deductible donations can also be sent to the U.S. Committee for UNICEF, 99 Bishop Allen Drive, Cambridge, Mass. 02139. Mary-Jo Adams Peter Mencher

Resident praises town forest improvements

TO THE EDITOR:

When good work is done on town property we should all know about it. I would like to point out the recent great improvement in the Town Forest and its trails.

My interest and enthusiasm for the Town Forest, properly known as Brooks-Parkhurst Forest, goes back a long time to mid-June, 1939, when I attended a joint class birthday party for two young ladies from the Mystic School. The party was held in the Girl Scout cabin located in the Town Forest. The cabin was rustic and attractive, the woods were open and pretty and great for a fun party which became a custom for the next three years.

Coming to the present — in February of this year — 1987 — I went on a walk through the forest. It was difficult. The trails were overgrown and brush had been cut and left to pile up along the trails. The walk was not much fun.

Then, three weeks ago I was taken on a tour of the forest to find a completely different situation. The old trails have been cleared. Brush has been removed. Fallen tree limbs taken away. Old trails re-marked. A new "loop trail" has been clearly marked. This was a fun walk — what a difference — in just seven months!

Credit for this great improvement belongs to Don Ellis the new Chairman of the Town Forest Committee and to Al Marsters, perhaps Winchester's long-time leading outdoor enthusiast — and to the encouragement the Winchester Trails Organization has given them.

These two men personally have spent much time clearing the old trails and planning for the new loop trail. They deserve high praise and congratulations on their great work in improving a grand piece of town property. I hope their good efforts will continue and that their work will be supported by all of us and by all the town departments involved. The Brooks-Parkhurst Forest is a very valuable town asset today and for the future.

Grasso urges safety in dark with a poem

TO THE EDITOR:

Daylight Saving Time will be ending soon, and it will be dark very early in the late afternoon and evening. I hope children walking about will carry a flashlight and/or wear some clothing which reflects light. Perhaps youngsters who ride bikes will remember the following: Lights and Dark. I really do enjoy my bike, It's great mobility, But I use lights when it gets dark, So drivers will see ME!

The tempo of a small town is unruffled by those big-city ways

By TERRY MAROTTA

The scene is a pizza shop in a town where for generations, far from the jittery dance of city life, folks have moved in a kind of genial mosey from the hardware store to the filling station, from the Wash-O-Mat to the bean supper put on, Saturday nights, down to the church.

This town is in the process of being discovered these days, by tourists and passers-through in search of just such Rockwellian scenes. Especially it is being discovered by the denizens of New York, that most jittery city of them all.

Some of these enter the pizza shop, hungry and hot, with quick darting eyes that take in the whole scene: the ceiling fan, coated with dust and grease; the half-dozen tables; the dozen booths, one of which holds a brimming ashtray, a half-drunk Coke and the morning paper — obviously the place where the help sits when business is slow.

It isn't slow now. A family of six is ordering lunch. They all wear glasses and represent among them every manifestation and degree of shyness.

The young woman taking their order is sweet and bland and just a touch dim. She wears doubleknit slacks, hush puppies and an aqua pullover that provides a kind of sky for the pale scudding clouds of misdirected Clorox. She's having trouble, it seems, with the order, evidently by this shop's standards an enormous one, and asks two or three times for the family to repeat it.

As they retire to a booth to await its delivery, the girl and an elderly fellow manning the ovens go to work. Their pace is sedate. One hunts for sausage and begins painstakingly slicing it. Another tugs dreamily at a packet of mozzarella.

The man next in line, a Big City man, watches, drumming his fingers on the Formica. He wears a bright shirt out of whose open throat white hair foams aggressively. His wife is still fluffing herself like a pigeon into a suitable sitting position at a near-by table.

"Large pizza with anchovies," he barks. "Coke and a regular coffee." "Regular pizza?" she asks. "You mean cheese?" "Pizza with anchovies. Regular coffee."

She transcribes the prices on a piece of paper, draws a careful dark line under them and totes them up, carrying the 1's; crumples this piece and does it all again.

It is now our turn, and we place the typical order of a family with young children. Ham and cheese sub, hold the ham. Small cheese pizza, hold the cheese. Chocolate milk. In execution of all this, the pair behind the counter fumble and bump.

Time passes. A lot of time. Sunlight glints off the glasses of the Shy family. The city man explodes.

"Kind of a place is this?" he demands of the air.

"Get our money back, Ralph," his wife booms from her corner. She turns to us. "They've simply ruined our day! The afternoon is shot."

Now we have just driven three hours to a wedding, come within 20 minutes of the place, had a child get sick in the car, turned around, and driven three hours back, the evidence of sickness all about us. There is no ruining our day.

We sit at our booth. On the jukebox, Tina Turner gives throaty consolation. We spin a few quarters. We fold our napkins into tiny accordions.

At last the city man makes for the door. He has his anchovies now, but is too mad to be seen enjoying them. "Walk out," he advises the rest of us in a bellowing sneer. "Kind of place is THIS!"

The shy family smile, except their 15-year-old, who blushes deeply, down to his orthodontia. Eventually the food arrives and as we eat, it occurs to us that jittery Big City rhythms may be winning most of the battles these days; but the old small-town one-thing-at-a-time tempo may just end up winning the war.

ABOUT TOWN

Arts lottery to receive $4,500 in grants

Five grants totalling over $4,500 will be given to artists and organizations in Winchester through the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Project, the Winchester Arts Lottery Council announced recently. The following applications, approved by the Winchester Arts Lottery Council, have been certified by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council.

The Enrichment Committee of the Winchester Community Schools for an Artist in Residence in the Winchester Elementary Schools. Lisa Carter, a muralist, was selected for this project. Carter worked about 150 hours on the project to teach the children about murals as an art form, and to create with them permanent murals for each school.

The Winchester Community Arts Program of the Recreation Department received a grant to help fund the summer concert series at Mill Pond. They presented five concerts throughout the summer featuring a range of music from renaissance to Dixieland. Each of the concerts was also presented on Channel 19. Next summer's series is already being planned, to be presented on Wednesday evenings during July.

The Co-operative Theatre for Children for the purchase of a spotlight. This permanent acquisition will not only benefit the Co-operative Theatre, but is also made available to other community groups in Winchester.

The Winchester Music Society will receive a grant to partially underwrite three sight-singing sessions. These sessions will offer local musicians, both vocal and instrumental, the opportunity to rehearse and perform several works from the repertoire of choral masterworks under the direction of a local musician experienced in choral conducting. The Winchester Music Society is an un-brella organization whose membership includes both professional and amateur musicians of all levels of proficiency.

The next cycle for grants disbursement is scheduled for next spring. Applications will be made available in the town manager's office.

350 welcomes celebration ideas

The 350 Anniversary Committee has begun to put together a calendar of events for the 1988 celebration. Groups planning specific events are requested to deliver information on their activities as soon as possible to Ellen Knight, who will keep the calendar and coordinate event scheduling, care of the Public Library at 80 Washington Street.

The committee invites and encourages all organized clubs and societies, churches, businesses, and all individuals in Winchester to participate in the celebration. The committee welcomes volunteer assistance, suggestions for special events, suggestions of contributions that the celebration may make to the community, and any other community involvement or ideas. Communications to the committee may be directed to the Chairman, Daniel Chane, at 125 Forest St., 729-3261.

IF THEY WERE THE SAME PRICE, WHICH WOULD YOU BUY?

Now ask yourself the same question about double hung windows.

But before you answer, consider the differences between a Marvin E-Z Tilt Double Hung window and an Andersen* double hung window.

A Marvin double hung window has sash that tilt into the room for easy cleaning and maintenance. Andersen doesn't.

A Marvin double hung has a lower air infiltration rating than Andersen's published test results.*

Marvin has a wood double hung window available in 98 standard sizes. Andersen doesn't have one.

A Marvin clad double hung is also available in 98 standard sizes. An Andersen clad double hung is available in 36 standard sizes.

A Marvin clad window has an aluminum clad sash and frame for a maintenance-free exterior, and an all-wood interior that accepts a beautiful finish. Only Andersen's frames are clad, in vinyl. The sash is pre-finished. A wood interior is available only when ordered with a white exterior finish.

A Marvin window can be ordered with authentic divided lites for a true Early American look. An Andersen window can't.

A Marvin window can be

*1985 Sweet's Catalog

ordered with real wood grilles. An Andersen window has molded vinyl grilles only.

A Marvin window is available with jamb extensions already installed by a factory expert. An Andersen window isn't, which can lead to expensive adjustments on the job site.

The comparisons could go on, but we think you get the point.

NOW, MARVIN QUALITY AT AN ANDERSEN PRICE.

The simple law of economics would suggest a premium product can command a premium price. And Marvin Windows have.

But now Marvin has lowered that price. Lowered the price it costs to put the best wood double hung in your plans. The kind of window that not only sells customers, but sells homes.

We can't guarantee this price reduction will last forever, but why wait around to find out? See your Marvin dealer before you place your next window order.

Who knows? With the way Marvin windows sell homes, you may not care how much the car on the left costs.

For more information, call toll-free 1-800-346-5128. (In Minnesota, call 1-800-552-1167.) Or write, Marvin Windows, Warroad, MN 56763.

WHS girls defeat Ponders by 2-0

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' varsity soccer team snapped a four-game home winless string with a solid 2-0 decision over Arlington. The Sachemettes are still in first place in the Middlesex League as they enter a busy part of the schedule where they play three games in four days.

The Sachemettes have been having problems with scoring despite dominating the play in their recent home games. They again had problems with Arlington but Cara McDonough's goal on a direct penalty kick finally broke the ice in the second half.

Winchester played without left wing Denise Chabot for the second straight game as she continues to recover from a sprained ankle. Amy Binding filled in for her admirably and her aggressive play helped create some early scoring chances.

McDonough, however, was the most dangerous offensive weapon for the Sachemettes despite the fact she plays center fullback. Her powerful right leg provided medium-range missiles on penalty and corner kicks which wreaked havoc in front of the Arlington net.

Ingrid Spanjaard also had some good scoring opportunities as halfback Debbie Nowell set her up on a couple of occasions but the Sachemettes still had nothing to show for their effort when halftime rolled around.

Winchester kept the pressure on in the second half and McDonough's blast from 25 yards out put the Sachemettes on the scoreboard. A few minutes later, Nowell took a nice pass from Emily Doherty, faked the goaltender before putting it past her for the final margin.

The Sachemettes benefitted from the strong play from halfbacks Brenda Outwater, Sonja Johnson and Amy Derry, as well as front liners Jen Cioti and Shalagh Murdoch. Jennifer Thorne saw some action for only the second time this season as she has been hampered with a knee injury.

The Sachemettes will be busy this week as they face Burlington, Arlington and Reading.

Boys' team is back with a victory

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' soccer team bounced back from their first loss of the season with two easy 6-1 wins over Melrose and Watertown before demoralizing upstart Burlington, 4-0, on Tuesday. The Sachems record now stands at 10-1-1.

Against Melrose, Vandy French was the star as he picked up a pure hat trick with three straight goals which built the Sachem lead to 5-0. Mike McGeehan opened the scoring in the first minute on a header from Rob Kean. Paul Erbafina set up Ken Fowler for the next goal as the Sachems did whatever they pleased.

The Red Raiders broke the shutout shortly before halftime off a scramble in front of the net. But David Romboli came right back early in the second half to score on a pass from Andre Behrmann to recapture the five-goal lead. Jack O'Callaghan and Steve Reeve put in fine performances on defense.

It was much the same story with Watertown except the scoring star this time was Paul Capodano. After setting up Kean with the Sachems second goal, Capodano knocked in two consecutive goals, the second from Erbafina, to put the game out of reach late in the first half. French had opened the scoring on a pass from Erbafina.

wing Jason MacConkey. Romboli assisted on the first one while goaltender Tony Fryklund's long punt set up the other.

Tuesday's trouncing of Burlington was keyed by two first half goals by Fowler and French, which took the steam out of the Red Devils. Fowler's goal came on a pass from Erbafina and immediately put Burlington in a hole. The teams played fairly evenly until French headed in a pass from Fowler with less than a minute left in the half, which broke the Red Devils' spirit.

French scored the third goal on a breakaway set up by McGeehan while Fowler added the fourth on a penalty shot after the goalie sacked him in the penalty area.

Harriers split meets

By MARGARET ELLIS
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' cross country split a pair of races with Reading and Stoneham while the girls' team came close but lost to Reading before losing decisively to a powerful Stoneham team. The girls recorded a victory against Lexington last week while the boys did not fare as well.

The Sachems lost to Reading, 24-33, but succeeded at taking first as Dave McClintock clocked in at 15:57. In fifth place was Jon Sudbury (17:12), followed by sixth-place finisher Mike Aldrich (17:21). Jesse DeGeorge (13:16) finished tenth while Tucker Brandt (18:22) came in eleventh. Day Davis, Doug Holt and Jason Kuberski finished in 16th, 17th and 18th places, respectively.

The Sachemettes also met defeat after a close race, 21-38. The girls were led by freshman Petra Rydlova who took second with a time of 22:07. Captain Laura Tozza finished fifth (23:20), followed by Jennifer Lee (24:42), Sarah Fitzpatrick (27:13) and Meg Ellis (27:15).

A few days later, the Sachems were back in full force and were able to beat Stoneham, 20-35. Senior Aldrich came in first with a time of 16:24, the best time on the Stoneham course this season. Coming in second was Sudbury (16:29) followed by third place DeGeorge (16:36). McClintock took fourth (16:37). Holt came in tenth followed by an excellent performance by freshman Jason Finch who placed twelfth with a time of 18:17. Other strong finishers included Davis, Paul O'Neil, Dave Banks, Kuberski, Brandt, Finn Pullen, Marc Schwitters and Mark Merullo.

The Sachemettes, facing one of the toughest courses and one of the toughest teams, were defeated 15-50. After Stoneham swept the first seven places, Rydlova, Tozza, Lee, Fitzpatrick and Ellis finished eighth through twelfth, respectively.

Last week, the team met up with Lexington on their home course surrounding Horn Pond. This time, the girls won and the boys lost, although many of the runners recorded their personal best times.

The Sachemettes won with a score of 15-50. Coming in on top for Winchester were Rydlova (22:58), Tozza (23:10) and Lee (24:40). Other Sachem runners were Ellis, Kelly Petri and Siobhan Doherty.

In the junior varsity heat, the Sachems lost a close race, 29-28. Top finishers for Winchester were O'Neil (19:16), Finch (19:20) and Banks (19:39), all of whom cut several seconds off their previous records.

The varsity Sachems also suffered defeat, 30-25, despite McClintock's first-place showing and personal record time of 15:51. Other personal record breakers were Aldrich (16:46), DeGeorge (17:54) and Brandt (18:18). Sudbury also ran well with a time of 17:38.

Sachems lose third to Red Devils by 20-8

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High football team came out on the short end of a 20-8 loss in Burlington, erasing any hopes the Sachems may have had for repeating as Middlesex League champions.

With every team wanting to knock off the defending Division I Super Bowl champs, the young Sachems continue to struggle against inspired teams like the Red Devils. Winchester fell to 1-3 in league play, 2-3 overall.

Sachem quarterback Micky Feeley had a rough day as he went down with a pinched nerve in his throwing shoulder in the fourth quarter after completing only 4 of 18 passes on the afternoon. Chris Umscheid filled in for Feeley but his luck was no different as the Burlington defense played tremendously.

Ted Welch (51) tries unsuccessfully to stop a pass interception by Burlington.

Scott Garvey was the lone bright spot for the Sachems as he collected over 80 yards rushing including a 33-yard run for their only touchdown. But when Clayton Wight missed his first point after attempt of the season, Winchester may have sensed they were in for a long day.

Phil Svahn blocked a punt, which set the Sachems up at the Burlington 25 but the defense stopped them on four downs. The Red Devils tied the score as they converted on a turnover. In the first drive of the second half, Winchester failed on a fourth down near midfield. Burlington took over from there and controlled the rest of the ball game. Winchester got their final points on a safety in the final minute.

The Sachems will try to even their overall record when they host Reading this weekend at Knowlton Stadium.

Lexington stops WHS

By WENDY BOERNER
Special to the Star

Winchester led Lexington for the first two-thirds of their intensely competitive girls' swim meet, but suffered at the hands of the Minutemaids for the crucial remainder of the competition and fell, 93-78.

The opening medley relay in the recent meet was won by Lexington but close behind them were Liz McCann, Wendy Boerner, Sheila McCarthy and Kathy McGillicuddy. Winchester also placed third.

The 200 freestyle was won by Lexington's Beth Jaffe. However, two seconds separated the next four finishers. Ifer Boerner, Juliet Estridge and Meghan Herlihy placed second, fourth and fifth, respectively.

Winchester went 1-2-3 in the 200 Individual Medley. McCann, Wendy Boerner and McCarthy, in order of finish, all had remarkable swims and greatly increased the poolside Sachem spirit. The spirit continued for the next several events. McGillicuddy's 26:06 first-place time in the 50 freestyle boosted Winchester's pride even more.

Rachel Bonnell had several excellent dives and received second place for the Sachemettes in the one-meter springboard.

The 100 butterfly was an excellent race as McGillicuddy outouched Lexington's Kara Concanon with a time of 107:45. The conclusion of this race was the turning point in the score. Lexington led after placing first and second in the 100 freestyle. Erica Fleck received third and Val Fleck, fourth, for Winchester.

The 500 freestyle, the marathon of swimming, turned out to be an exciting event. There was close competition for second between Sachemette Ifer Boerner and Minutemaids Amanda French. French emerged victorious but Sachem spirit was shown via six minutes of continuous cheering.

McCann won the 100 backstroke for Winchester with a time of 1:14:96 while Herlihy placed fourth. The next event, the 100 breaststroke, was dominated by Lexington's powerful Susie Vitello. Wendy Boerner placed third and Kara McGillicuddy finished fourth for Winchester.

The final relay started off on a bad note with the disqualification of Lexington's second best relay team. This however worked out to the advantage of the Sachemettes for Erica Fleck, Mary Murray, Val Fleck and Juliet Estridge ended up receiving second and Kim McCarthy, Jen McCart, Suzanne Foley and Beth Crawford finished third.

Diana Coughlin, Kendra Lombardo, Sarah Gaumer, Amy Doe, Karen Cramer, Liza Stevens, Heather Germain and Julie Adelsberger all had personal bests. Coach Carol Minutoli was quite pleased with the girls swimming.

"The final outcome of the meet does not reflect the girls' hard work and determination during the season," said Minutoli. "With 90 percent of the team attaining personal best times against Lexington, we look upon the defeat as a stepping stone towards better performances in the future."

Powers scores for UMASS soccer team

Michelle Powers of Winchester, a University of Massachusetts junior, is one of the keys to the success of the UM women's soccer team which currently holds an 11-1 record and is ranked second in the nation in the latest NCAA poll.

This former high school All-American is an outstanding forward/halfback for Coach Kalekeni Banda's team and has registered nine points for UM on four goals and one assist. She also has two game-winning goals. Those winning scores came against New Hampshire College and the University of Connecticut. Powers' consistent play has helped UMass keep offensive pressure on their opponents all season long.

A graduate of Winchester High School, Powers was part of the school's championship teams. An animal science major at UMass, Powers hopes to go to veterinary school after graduation. She is the daughter of Ralph and Yuki Powers of Meriden Road.

Girls' JV soccer team only undefeated team

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' junior varsity soccer team remained the school's only undefeated team as they posted a 3-0 shutout of Arlington JV last week at Leonard Field.

Left wing Mary Sampson scored what turned out to be the game-winning goal after the Sachemettes adjusted to Arlington's offside trap defensive scheme. Arlington would pull up their fullbacks past the Sachemette offense whenever the ball was cleared, thus creating offside for Winchester.

"They're the only team we've played so far that uses it," said coach Paul Austin. "We were able to ad-

Junior Christine Sullivan scored the second goal and fullback Liz York converted the third goal on a direct penalty shot. Sophomore Cheryl Casalnuovo was injured on the play that set up the penalty shot. While Casalnuovo pursued a loose ball in front of the Arlington net, the goalie smashed into her with her shoulder. It was originally feared she had broken her jaw but after being taken to Winchester Hospital, she was found to be suffering from muscle spasms.

Austin credited his defense with a fine effort as York, Laura Pedulla, Kelly Scott and Liana Ewald all had good games. The team faces Burlington, Arlington and Reading this week.

THANK YOU,

NEW ENGLAND TELEPHONE COMPANY

and

STONEHAM POLICE DEPARTMENT

Recently, the main telephone line carrying all of New England Memorial Hospital's incoming and outgoing calls was accidentally cut at a construction site on the hospital campus, leaving NEMH without any external telephone service.

Thanks to immediate response and action by the New England Telephone Company, the negative effect of this service interruption on NEMH was kept at a minimum. Within 30 minutes of NEMH's call for help, a team of New England Telephone specialists had been dispatched to the hospital to begin emergency repairs. In less than an hour, New England Telephone's skilled team had reconnected the nearly 1,800 wires that had been cut, and NEMH's telephone service was restored.

During the period that the hospital's telephone lines were out of operation, the Stoneham Police Department provided NEMH with an emergency communications base.

NEMH extends very sincere appreciation to New England Telephone Company for its extraordinary concern and performance under difficult circumstances, and to the Stoneham Police Department for the sensitive and generous support it always provides the hospital, especially in times of need.

Special thanks from NEMH go to the following individuals for their help:

Jenks Center Eating Together lunches to begin

By LEONOR RICH
Special to the Star

The Council on Aging sponsored "Eating Together" noontime program will take place at Jenks Senior Center beginning on Wednesday, Oct. 28, and Friday, Oct. 30 at noon. Thereafter, on every Wednesday and Friday, luncheons will be served for a minimal donation of $1 each. The program is in cooperation with the Minute Man Home Care Corporation of Lexington.

Reservations must be made and/or cancelled by 11 a.m. on the day prior to the meal. Call the Jenks Senior Center Reception Desk if transportation is needed.

The menu listings for Oct. 28 and Oct. 30 are as follows:

Wednesday, Oct. 28 — Teriyaki chicken, chianti potato, zucchini and tomatoes, honeyberry wheat bread, and fruited gelatin; and Friday, Oct. 30 — Salisbury steak with mushroom gravy, Lyonnaise potato, mixed vegetable, white bread, and cookie.

Elaine DiPietro has been hired for 15 hours per week to serve as site manager for this new subsidized program in Winchester, spearheaded by the Winchester Council on Aging. The Minute Man Home Care Corporation has voted to fund the Winchester "Eating Together" site for one year. The site manager has the responsibility for setting the tone in developing a happy, social atmosphere during lunch hours.

Four volunteers, at least, are needed per day for serving, registration and check-in, and two are necessary for the clean-up activities. Call the receptionist at the Jenks Senior Center at 721-7136 to volunteer services for either registration, serving or cleaning up after eating.

All meals are subject to change by the caterer without notice.

Panel to discuss H.M.O.s

Insurance coverage presents a major problem in the field of health. To give some specific answers to the questions, a panel will be at Jenks Senior Center on Wednesday, Oct. 28, from 1:30 to 3 p.m.

Kathy Glenzell of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs will moderate the presentation on "Health Maintenance Organizations for Seniors," fielding questions from the audience.

Other presenters will be Jane White, special projects coordinator of the Tufts Associated Health Plan; Karen Carraro, Bay State Medi Plus; Lynn Bowman, director, Harvard Senior Care; and Jim Smith, Medical East Blue Cross.

It is to everyone's advantage to gain as much information as possible pertaining to what the health maintenance organizations offer by way of the protection of insured, whatever insurance group may have been selected by the individual.

Come and hear what the insurance specialists have to say.

Rotary Club to hold fundraiser

The Winchester Rotary Club is sponsoring "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band" to raise funds for their charity account. The annual auction and barn sales are no longer maintained which means that other fundraising activities are necessary in order to meet their charity donations.

The Rotary Club has been especially generous to the Winchester Seniors Association through the years, especially its fund drives for both the original building and the expansion. Here is an opportunity for seniors to give support to this Rotary Club activity.

The shows will be held on Friday and Saturday nights, Nov. 6 and 7, and Nov. 13 and 14 at McCall Junior High School. Tickets are available at the Winchester Cooperative Bank, the Winchester Drug, and from Winchester Rotarians.

Center to show "Rooster Cogburn"

The video tape cassette, "Rooster Cogburn," a western featuring John Wayne, Katharine Hepburn, Richard Jordan, Anthony Zerbe and John McIntire will be shown Friday, Nov. 6, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. A Bible-thumping schoolmarm joins up with a hard-drinking, hard-fighting marshal in order to capture a gang of incomplete outlaws who killed her father. The public is invited to attend.

Health committee sponsors Alzheimer's talk

A joint presentation of information pertaining to Alzheimer's Disease sponsored by the Jenks Center Health Committee will take place at Jenks Senior Center on Monday, Nov. 9 at 10:30 a.m. Nancy S. Bartlett, Alzheimer's Specialist at Minute Man Home Care Corporation and Marilyn Mulligan, Director of Program Planning at the Community Family Adult Day Health Center in West Medford, will include a positive approach to the importance of physical examinations and diagnostic workshops to determine Alzheimer's or other dementias, the range of support services in the community available to both the patient and the family, and examples of assistance to those people working with the Alzheimer's patient.

Center sponsors vision program

The Jenks Senior Center Health Committee is sponsoring a presentation by a representative of the Vision Foundation in Watertown on Friday, Dec. 4 at 10:30 a.m. at the Jenks Senior Center.

Melissa Blain, a certified home rehabilitation instructor, will address the needs of people who are visually impaired. She will explain the services available to people who are not necessarily blind but who could use special equipment and resources.

Registry inspector to speak Nov. 4

Inspector John Grano of the Driver Information and Education Program at the Registry of Motor Vehicles will be at the Jenks Senior Center on Nov. 4 from 10:30 a.m. to noon to speak to seniors on the important subject, "Drive Safely. Examine Personal Driving Skills," and the manner of coping with traffic problems.

As people add years, driving skills often tend to be affected. For general safety, it is important to consider factors that cause accident situations.

The speaker will give information about obtaining handicapped plates, and other phases of the driver education program that require attention.

Doctors Invent 'Lazy Way' to Lose Weight

New 'Fat Magnet' Diet Pill
Guarantees Fast Weight Loss

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (Special) — An amazing new weight loss pill called "fat-magnet" has recently been developed and perfected by two prominent doctors at a world famous hospital in Los Angeles that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose fat by simply taking their tested and proven new pill.

No Dieting—Eat Normally
Best of all, "you can continue to eat all of your favorite foods and you don't have to change your normal eating habits. You will start losing fat from the very first day, until you achieve the ideal weight and figure you desire."

There has never been anything like it before. It is a totally new major medical breakthrough for weight loss (worldwide patent pending).

Flushes Fat Out of Body
The new pill is appropriately called the "fat-magnet" pill because it breaks into thousands of particles, each acting like a tiny magnet, "attracting" and trapping many times its size in fat particles. Then, all that trapped fat is naturally "flushed" right out of your body because it cannot be digested.

Within 2 days you will notice a change in the color of your stool as the fat particles are being eliminated.

"Pills Do All the Work"
According to the doctors, the fat-magnet pills do all the work while you quickly lose fat with no starvation diet menus to follow, no calorie counting, no exercising, and no hunger pangs. It is 100% safe. You simply take the pills with a glass of water before meals.

The fat-magnet pills have just been offered to the American public and are already sweeping the country with record sales and reports of dramatic weight loss. It's the "lazy way" to lose weight for people who enjoy eating.

Now Available to Public
If you need to lose 20, 50, 100 pounds or more, you can order your supply of these new highly successful fat-magnet pills (now available from the doctor's exclusive manufacturer by mail or phone order only) by sending $20 for a 90 pill supply (+$2 handling), or $35 for a 180 pill supply (+$3 handling), cash, check or money order to: Fat-Magnet, 9016 Wilshire Blvd., Dept. W 14, Beverly Hills, CA 90211. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not 100% satisfied.) Visa, MasterCard and American Express OK. (Send card number, expire date, and signature.) Five Community Newspapers

WINCHESTER

ARLINGTON

WATERTOWN

We're as unique as the communities
we serve.

Century Newspapers has been built upon one simple premise: community journalism plays a most important role in the suburban lifestyle. We mirror each community. By reporting about the problems, opportunities, rich past and exciting future we share with our communities.

As an advertising medium, our newspapers have proven to be extremely effective, for large and small advertisers alike. Each newspaper may be bought individually or in combination. All at very competitive rates. All with one repro copy. All with one order, one bill.

We hope that you'll consider Century Newspapers as an important part of your print media buy.

You'll see that we work hard to get your business.
And even harder to keep it.

Research Center for nutrition to hold orientation

On Wednesday, Oct. 28, from 7 to 9 p.m., the Center for Nutritional Research, located at Winchester Hospital, will hold a free orientation for the community.

Dr. Kenneth Storch, an internist who has recently been named director of the center, will describe how many have been helped to modify their behavior and their eating habits and have thus been successful in losing the weight necessary to restore them to a healthy lifestyle.

Persons who are at least 45 pounds overweight are invited to hear Storch and other members of the center staff. The meeting will be held in the Kingsbury Seminar Room. Guests are welcome.

Registration is requested and may be done by calling the center at 729-9042.

Itkis will answer infection control questions

October 18 through 24 is National Infection Control Week by Presidential proclamation.

According to Dr. Sofya Itkis, infection surveillance officer at Winchester Hospital, "The purpose is to draw public attention to the infectious diseases that are still a nationwide problem."

Despite the rapid advances taking place in diagnosis and treatment, many infectious diseases continue to be of national concern. AIDS, infections associated with aging, and those acquired in hospitals and nursing homes are just a few.

Itkis emphasizes that hand-washing is still the single most effective means of preventing the spread of infection. Although a simple procedure which takes only 10 to 15 seconds, it can prevent very serious and dangerous infectious complications among patients. She also stresses that the use of "universal blood body fluid precautions" will play a significant role in preventing infection among employees.

Seven thousand members of the Association of Infection Control Practitioners (APIC) are committed to preventing and controlling communicable diseases in patient care settings and the community.

For questions concerning infection control, Itkis can be reached at Winchester Hospital at 729-9000, Ext. 3375.

For more than forty five years Ward's Gift Shop, located at 24 High St., Medford, has supplied that special something for many occasions from weddings and showers to birthdays and anniversaries.

For around thirty of those years the shop has been managed by one person who is on a first name basis with most of Ward's customers—they know her as Dorothy.

Ward's strives to give what they call "that personal touch" to the service of its customers and Dorothy is always on hand to offer gift ideas and assist them in finding the appropriate present for a friend or relative.

Ward's carries one of the largest selections of Waterford crystal in the Boston area, a collection to which even more pieces have recently been added.

They also have more than 300 Patterns of china including such well-known names as Lenox Royal Doulton, Pickard, Wedgwood and Noritake.

Among the 15,000-20,000 items in the store is one of New England's widest selection of figurines, collector's dolls, and limited-edition plates featuring such well-known names as Lladro, Royal Doulton, Hummel, Kaiser, Anri, Sebastian, Francis Hook and Precious Moments.

Adding to the already extensive collection of Edna Hibel prints and lithographs, Ward's has enlarged their selection, bringing the collection up to date. They also feature Edna Hibel collection plates, Christmas ornaments, figurines, music boxes, & gift boxes of wood, marble, soap stone and now onyx.

Most of the Christmas collector's plates and ornaments are now in and the Lladro first-edition Christmas ornament is another recent arrival.

For your gift ideas and selection, or any of your collectors items, come into Ward's and receive the attention and treatment that has led to thousands of satisfied customers, many of whom have moved away but still order from Ward's from as far away as Florida and California.

Ward's is open Monday-Saturday 9-5:30, Thursday nights until 8:30. In October they will extend their hours and be open until 6:00.

CLUB NEWS

Newcomers Club to hold many special events

Winchester offers a warm welcome and an opportunity to meet new friends through the Newcomers' Club, an active social organization for couples and singles. The club's objectives are to help those new to our area to become better acquainted with the town and to foster a friendly community spirit among its citizens.

The 1987 schedule is already in full swing for the fall and winter season. Special events include: Tex Mex Night on Oct. 24, progressive dinner on Nov. 7, gourmet luncheon on Nov. 12, holiday party on Dec. 5, and Diners' Club.

Newcomers' also offers a monthly coffee hour to help new and prospective members to get to know each other better. Upcoming coffees will be held on Oct. 20, Nov. 17, and Dec. 15 from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Crawford Methodist Church.

For more information about Newcomers' Club, contact Cathy Wrotny at 721-1404.

Justice to perform at College Club benefit

The Winchester Wellesley College Club will present storyteller Jennifer Justice at the annual theatre and luncheon fundraiser. The event takes place on Wednesday, Oct. 28 at the Parish of the Epiphany's Hadley Hall, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

The performer, who tells stories for adult audiences, became a storyteller after growing disenchanted with the separation between spectators and performers in more common forms of theatre.

Wellesley College Club members finalized plans for the event when the Board of Directors met on Oct. 20 at the home of Betty Jones, the club's president.

Kathy Dunn and Sheila Marian will manage the food preparation and service. Susan Haskell will act as liaison with Ms. Justice.

A salad luncheon which includes wine and home-baked desserts will be prepared and served by club members.

The luncheon and theatre fundraiser is a benefit for the college. Additional members of this year's planning committee include Jane Twitcheil, tickets, and Alice Warren, publicity.

Tickets will be available from club members until seating capacity is reached.

Tapia speaks at senior assoc. fall meeting

The fall meeting of the Winchester Seniors Association had Jayne A. Tapia, executive director of Visiting Nurse and Community Health Inc. as guest speaker. Her subject was Medicare Benefits.

The Visiting Nurse Agency has a Speakers Bureau which is available to all Winchester area clubs and organizations. For information, call Jayne Tapia 643-6090.

Hospital exhibits Kelly's paintings

The Winton Club is pleased to announce that the paintings of Mary Kelly are on exhibit in the coffee shop at the Winchester Hospital. Kelly paints landscapes and still life arrangements in oils.

She enrolled in the Triangle Studio of Art and has been taking lessons from Jo Triangle for the past four years. Kelly belongs to the Winchester Art Association and has exhibited her work at the association's gallery during the member's exhibits.

A Woburn resident, the artist is the mother of four daughters. Her paintings will be on display until Nov. 14.

NEWS NOTES

Council honors town involvement

Several Winchester churches, businesses and individuals will be honored at the Woburn Council of Social Concern's Donor Recognition Oct. 22.

"We're delighted to thank our major donors and celebrate the services that their generosity has made possible in our communities," said Dean Solomon, Executive Director of the multi-service agency. "Children, adolescents, the Hispanic community, families and the elderly have all been touched by their caring."

Winchester recipients of the Fulcrum Award for highest contributions will be the First Congregational Church, Immaculate Conception Church, and the Winchester Unitarian Society.

The Keystone Award for outstanding support will be presented to Jim and Janet Jones, and to St. Eulalia's Parish.

The Second Congregational Church, the Winchester Cooperative Bank, and students at McCall Junior High School will receive the Pillar Award for their financial and in-kind contributions.

Other donors to the Council this year have been the Winchester Savings Bank, the Woburn Nursing Center, First Baptist Church, Parish of the Epiphany, Twelve Lawrence Trust, and many individual families.

BEACON HILL ROLL CALL

The House and Senate. "Beacon Hill Roll Call" records local representatives' votes on a roll call from the week of October 12-16. There were no roll calls in the Senate.

Two weeks ago, the House sent Governor Dukakis' controversial universal health care bill back to the House Ways and Means Committee. This week, the House spent two days considering two different versions of bills extending the current hospital financing system.

Health Care (H 6069)- House 108-42, rejected a motion to substitute a new version of a leadership sponsored bill providing a six month extension of the current hospital financing system. The new version would shorten the extension period to 60 days. Legislators debated not only the two month vs. six month period, but also on what the six month version accomplishes.

Opponents of the leadership version claim it also provides for a six month freeze on hospital charges while leadership supporters said it does not necessarily provide for a freeze, but simply maintains the authority of the rate setting commission to set rates.

Supporters of the sixty day version said this will allow enough time for the legislature to resolve some of the issues of hospital financing and will eliminate any rate freeze which would adversely affect hospitals and result in elimination of important services and staff. They claimed the freeze is a leadership attempt to put pressure on hospitals to compromise on a long term solution.

Opponents of the 60 day version said the six month version simply extends the current system and insures that it functions while the legislature is given ample time to work on solutions.

A Yea vote is for the 60 day version. A Nay vote is against it.

OBITUARIES

Jennie Giaquinto

Jennie (Ciarfella) Giaquinto of Winthrop Street died Oct. 15 at Winchester Hospital. She was 82.

Mrs. Giaquinto was born in Boston and educated in Boston schools. She was a 17-year resident of Winchester.

She was a member of St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Giaquinto was the daughter of the late Tito and Philomena Ciarfella and the wife of the late Angelo Giaquinto.

She is survived by a son, Angelo J. Giaquinto of Winchester; a daughter, Jean M. Galluzzo of Winchester; nine grandchildren, Jennie, John, Christopher, Jennine, David, Marissa, Joseph, Annmarie, and Christine; and a sister, Lena Presti of Medford.

The funeral was held from the Lane Funeral Home Oct. 19. The Funeral Mass followed at St. Mary's Church.

Burial was at St. Michael's Cemetery in Jamaica Plain.

Florence DeCelles

Florence D. DeCelles, a native of Main Street in Winchester, died Oct. 14 at Winchester Hospital. She was 92.

Until her retirement she was employed by Chandler's Department Store in Boston in the fur department.

Born in Winchester, Miss DeCelles was the daughter of the late Joseph and Azilda (Bouthillier) DeCelles.

Miss DeCelles is survived by two nieces, Mrs. Lorraine Fogg of Wilmington and Mrs. Joanna Nyham of Arlington, Texas.

A funeral Mass was celebrated Oct. 17 at St. Mary's Church.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery in Woburn.

AND YOU

HOLDING THE SALE TOGETHER

Many of our listings come from people who tried to sell their own homes, and who thought they had been successful. All too often, however, "By Owners" learn the hard way that selling their home is easy, but keeping it sold and getting their buyers to the settlement table is another story.

What are some of the pitfalls? First of all, face to face negotiations with a buyer can be hazardous, even if they really want the house. Then there's the paperwork. Stationery store contract forms rarely cover all of the requirements in your city or state regarding taxes or various disclosure laws, and this may create major loopholes allowing buyers with cold feet to back out at the last minute. Once you have come to terms, how can you be sure your buyers will find competent professionals to handle their loan and complete the settlement? What if there are problems with the structural inspection or termites pop out of your woodwork? These are just some of the areas where our experience and expertise serve our clients every day in completing successful transactions!

For professional advice on all aspects of buying or selling a home, talk to the professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors. Come by our offices at 33 Thompson Street.

Bankers still confident

are blessed in Massachusetts with a strong banking system."

Segerstrom said that most of the assets of the Winchester Savings Bank are first mortgages on homes in which the owners have 40 to 50 percent equity positions. "We could sustain a substantial decrease in real estate values and still have our investment intact," he said.

Segerstrom also expects cash from the sale of stocks to come pouring into the "community-based banks" in the next week as market transactions clear. Both bankers see a flight to quality and safety motivating consumers to switch from stock holdings into the insured banks.

So in the short-term, the banking system seems relatively secure. However, Keegan points to the "deep concern" of foreign and U.S. investors about the long-term consequences of Reagan administration policies that have led to consistent trade and budget deficits.

As the dollar has fallen, consumption of foreign goods has continued unabated. This has increased the trade deficit, Keegan said, because more dollars are required to buy the same goods.

Keegan said the administration has to "get to work with other free-world" governments to address the "serious problems" in international trade. He called Monday's crash a "warning signal," and said that the "future of our democracy is at risk" unless something can be done about the "disarray" or our "domestic and international economic policy."

"This has got to be resolved responsibly," he said.

Bill impacts

about 79 employees, according to Cynthia Wetstone of the bank's human resources department. Those who work 30 or more hours a week are covered. Under the current version of the legislation, all employees who work 17½ hours a week or more must be offered 80 percent coverage.

Justin Magee of EBM Inc., a consulting engineering firm on Main Street, said his company would also be impacted little by the legislation because it already pays the full cost of a family insurance plan. But he said he opposes a detail in the bill that would have companies also cover medical insurance for the unemployed. He said the detail provides for some addition to the present unemployment insurance formula.

"We're already paying a fortune (in health insurance for employees). It's the reasonable thing to do. But there's only so much we can afford to pay, and to charge for our services. We're a small company; we can't pass off our costs (onto clients). We have to be competitive with other companies who may not pay as much in insurance costs as we do," Magee said.

He called the universal plan "a nice goal" but agreed with Vanderbilt that "it's really a national problem. It's a very difficult undertaking at best for the state." Magee said he also learned that typical medical insurance premiums would increase by a minimum of 20 percent if the legislation passes. Such an increase would mean an additional $800 per year per person for the five insured full-time employees at his company.

"You're asking one segment of the economy to subsidize another," Magee said. "The question is who, and how is it paid for?"

Kathy Tropea, who handles personnel and payroll at Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farms, agreed but opposes a more basic part of the legislation. "It's a great idea for people but not for businesses," she said. Her company's concern is with the 17½-hour rule for part-timers because they form the majority of workers at Mahoney's.

Don't move

The company covers 50 percent of medical insurance only for its 60-odd full-time employees, but there are about 200 additional part-timers who might be affected by the bill. "It will increase our costs dramatically. It's a tremendous burden on companies with lots of part-time employees," Tropea said.

In addition to its implications for small businesses, the bill's passage could mean an increase in state taxes to pay for the costs incurred by hospitals and not covered by insurance.

Selectmen back five, oppose two ice or raking leaves onto town property from private property. The second will create $25 fines for the violation of three town bylaws.

Winchester Housing Authority will get $124,000 from the town toward the construction of five units of Chapter 705 housing, if the Town Meeting agrees with the Selectmen. Article 8 would allow the town to appropriate the money to the authority. The Board voted 5-0 to support the article.

WHA Vice Chairman John Flatley said the state will give the authority $100,000 toward the cost of each unit. He said the WHA is expecting the cost to be $123,926 above that $500,000.

The project is not out to bid, but Flatley said the figures, which the authority commissioned from A.M. Fogerty and Assoc. construction estimators, should be correct.

Flatley said the state will not give the money to the WHA until the authority has received the extra funding from the town. He said he believes the units will be completed by the end of next summer.

The Selectmen also voted unanimously to support article 9 to allow the Winchester Public Library to accept as a gift monies contributed by the friends and family of Betsey G. Morton, and article 10, which would create a town wetlands bylaw.

What To Do

Story by Sue Shore

Frosty mornings, football, foliage

Signs of fall

It's October, time for people from all over America to make their annual pilgrimage to New England to see the red, orange, and golden-yellow splendor of autumn.

In New England, we sometimes forget that not everybody can look out their window and see nature at its most colorfully creative stage. Texans, for example, don't have the luxury, nor do southern Californians, a breed many New Englanders become just a touch envious of when the winter seems as though it will never give way to spring.

But autumn is more than the few weeks between the green of summer and the gray of winter. It's a season in which we begin to make the transition into winter life.

Fall foliage is our obvious reminder that the hot and hazy days of summer are over. The crisp, autumn air turns frosty at night and thoughts of flannel sheets and electric blankets creep into our heads.

It's time to go into the basement, attic or storage room and drag out the sweaters and boots that have been carefully packed away and forgotten in favor of bathing suits and sandals.

The difference in attire is not only related to bulk, but color as well. The pinks, yellows, powder blues and lavenders are replaced by more muted tones: grays, blacks, browns, and navy blues. White appears in small amounts as a highlight color at most.

Trying to find a fall jacket in a department store is impossible because the stores are already far into their winter lines of clothing and beginning to think about Christmas selling strategies.

Pancakes for breakfast

At the same time that we are rearranging our wardrobes (How did I have enough room for all these sweaters last winter?), we are also reworking our diets.

Fall brings a host of different foods to our plates. No more fruit salads full of strawberries, watermelon and pineapple. Fewer and fewer people are apt to say, "I could go for a nice salad and some cottage cheese (or yogurt)." Like the bear getting ready to hibernate for winter, humans want food that will stick to their ribs as the leaves begin to fall.

Breakfasts no longer consist of a glass of juice and a piece of fruit. Pancakes, oatmeal, and waffles seem more at home on a breakfast table in October than they did in August.

Roadside farm stands advertise the advent of fall as well as a red leaf; cider stands with scarecrows and apple picking opportunities are a sure sign of autumn.

Those stands also sell pumpkins, zucchini, and a multitude of squash in different sizes, shapes and colors (all fall hues, of course). Squash is more widely consumed in New England than any other region of the country, according to the state's Department of Food and Agriculture.

That could be because Massachusetts farmers grow over 2,396 acres of the autumn vegetable. The types available in stores now include butternut, acorn, delicious, hubbard, and buttercup.

Farmer's pumpkins are a sure sign of fall.

Cranberries are harvested in the fall. Towns such as Harwich and South Carver held their annual cranberry festivals a few weeks ago, and the fruit is in the store waiting to be boiled into sauce and jelly.

Farmers also harvest their root vegetables this time of year; supermarkets carry an abundance of potatoes, turnips and carrots, all good soup ingredients.

Soup is a food that falls by the wayside during the spring and summer, but makes a strong comeback in the fall. Almost every New Englander has his favorite chowder recipe, whether it be fish or clam, or at least his favorite place to get the creamy concoction that is almost a meal in itself.

Chowder is not the only culinary delight that is served in a bowl and becomes popular as the air cools down. Aside from the ever-expanding variety of broths, bisques and soups the average shopper can find on a store shelf in a can or in a mix form, a good stew is a favorite after a brisk walk on a fall day.

Stew, like soup, combines as few or as many foods readily available in the fall into a warm and filling meal.

For dessert, hot cocoa or coffee goes well with pumpkin pie and apple strudel. Ice cream is an addition to dessert instead of a treat unto itself. Instead of a dish of ice cream, we have hot apple pie a la mode.

Supper-eating in the fall is likely to occur with the dining room lights on. As the sun fades over the horizon earlier and earlier as October moves along and our days get shorter, we tend to head right home after work because it's already dark.

Soon the jarring effect of turning the clocks back to standard time (Oct. 25) will have us crawling into bed in our Dr. Denton's at nine o'clock thinking that it's much later.

The drive home from work, which becomes a little tougher when summer vacationers return to their year-round residences, will become even tougher when we have to navigate in the dark.

Players in long sleeves

The changing weather dictates a change in sporting activity, too. For the armchair athlete October and the World Series are almost synonymous.

Baseball players wear long sleeve shirts under their uniforms and sometimes play in weather football players are more accustomed to. There are only two teams left and if one of them is not the one you're rooted for all season, chances are you're paying more attention to the beginning of the NFL season, which will resume, sans scabs, this weekend.

What To Do

Walks in the woods are perfect ways to spend fall afternoons.

Sunday afternoons from noon to about 7 p.m. become marathon screaming sessions as opposing football teams fight it out on the gridiron.

Mid-October is also the time New Englanders begin to hear about the state of the pre-season Celtics. Just as baseball is about to exit the sporting scene for the year, of course the Red Sox were out of it long ago, we have basketball in its stead.

The season begins in November, but we already have forecasts by all the local sportscasters and writers as to when Kevin McHale will be back and if Bill Walton will be healthy enough to play this season.

We've seen the team's draft picks and heard Casey Jones' ideas for the 1987-88 season. We even know that unless we have a friend at the Garden box office, or have inherited season tickets from our parents, we will be watching the games at home. There are a few obstructed-view seats left if you like identifying the players by their sox.

For hockey fans, the Bruins are looking good so far. It seems as though the hockey season spans the whole year, except the ice-melting months of July and August. For the reclining-chair sports fans with pent up frustration over the end of the lazy days of summer, this is the perfect fall sport.

Athletes who actually take part in sports are switching gears, too. For high school students, this is soccer, field hockey, cross country and volleyball time as well as football season.

In the summer, many towns operate baseball and softball leagues, so despite a lack of school structure, students are playing ball. In the fall, it's time to gear up for the more strenuous sports mentioned above.

In colleges around New England crew teams have been getting up early in the morning to row in the nippy fall air in preparation for last weekend's Head of the Charles Regatta.

Sailboats are a common site on the Charles until Thanksgiving when the winds really make sailing regatta's difficult for college teams.

The weather is about as good as it gets for joggers, bicyclists and walkers. It's not too hot and the colors of the leaves in contrast to the crisp, blue, autumn sky is a picture-perfect backdrop for outdoor exercisers.

Whether you just finished a strenuous bike ride, or a stroll through the neighborhood looking at the foliage as you walked, once indoors again the ideal way to relax is curling up near a crackling fire.

Fall is a good time to chop that firewood for those really frosty nights in January and February. And for blood that's thinned out just a little bit over the summer, a fire on a chilly autumn evening can be the perfect finishing touch on an autumn day.

Many places to see foliage close to home

Although the peak foliage week for the Boston area is ending, this is an opportunity to travel south to the Cape for a weekend without the problems of trying to buck the summer traffic.

The weather is sunny and warm and at this time of year, off-season prices are in effect in most areas.

The complete changing cycle usually takes three weeks, with peak colors lasting a week.

The reds, yellows, and oranges that are so familiar as fall colors are actually present in leaves at all times, but the chemical chlorophyll, which is green, masks the colors. In the fall, when days are warm and sunny, and nights cool, the leaves form a corky substance that blocks the flow of water. The chlorophyll breaks down, leaving the brilliant fall colors behind.

Many factors effect the length and brilliance of a foliage season: temperature, rainfall, sunlight and wind. The best circumstances are a rainy spring and summer followed by warm, sunny falls days and cool nights.

In the fall it is often possible to tell what kind of tree one is looking at by its color. American elms, beech, birch, Norway maple, poplar, silver maple, striped maple, willow, and mountain ash turn yellow; black cherry, pin oak, sumac, and white oak become red; Red maple and scarlet oak turn scarlet; and blackberry and blueberry bushes turn crimson.

Ash trees become a mixture of yellow and dark purple; black oak turns a combination of red, orange, and brown and sugar maples are a brilliant yellow, orange and scarlet.

The most famous foliage route, according to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Office of Travel and Tourism, is the Mohawk Trail. The Trail consists of the part of Route 2 that runs from Orange to North Adams. Other east to west route suggestions are Route 9 and Route 20.

If you prefer traveling north-south, Routes 32, 202, 5, 112, 7 and 8 are all good foliage trails.

For the adventurer, ballooning and hang gliding are ways to see the foliage from the opposite angle.

Head to Balloon Adventures of New Bedford (636-4846) in South Dartmouth for peak birds' eye viewing of that area. Balloon Adventures offers two champagne flights daily with up to six passengers per flight, so call ahead if you have your heart set on sky high viewing.

For the not so brave of heart, the Mt. Tom Ski area in Holyoke, Wachusett Mountain in Princeton and Jiminy Peak Resort in Hancock all offer chairlift views of the trees.

Seafarers can take to the Charles to see the foliage. For those who don't have their own boat, canoe rentals are available through Concord Canoe Service on the Sudbury River in Concord among others.

Without going too far from home, residents of the Boston area can see the largest variety of trees, shrubs, vines and plants in North America, according to the state tourism bureau, at the Arnold Arboretum.

A trip to Plymouth, Cape Cod, Martha's Vineyard or Nantucket this weekend would yield a view of the peak of that area's season.

The best way to see the colors is by foot or on a bicycle. The Myles Standish State Forest in South Carver boasts 18 miles of paved trails; Nickerson State Park, which covers ground from Dennis to Eastham, offers a 19-mile trail; Nickerson State Park on Route 6A in Brewster contains 8 miles of bike trails; and Martha's Vineyard State Forest has 12 miles of paved trails.

If you prefer machine power as you see the colorful sights, the Cape Cod Hyannis Railroad is the foliage tour guide for you.

The railroad sports a 1920's restored parlor car, tavern car and coach. The ride takes you through salt marshes, woods, farmland and past cranberry bogs, which should add to the colorful scenery. Cranberry bogs turn ruby-red about this time during wet-harvesting. Riders can board the train in Hyannis, Sandwich, Buzzard's Bay or Boston.

Nature-lovers who want to be a part of the scene can plan a camping weekend among the trees. The Department of Environmental Management at 100 Cambridge St., Boston, 02202, offers free brochures on state forests and parks. For a listing of private campgrounds, write to the Massachusetts Association of Campgrounds, P.O. Box 100, Charlton Depot, 01509.

If you can't make it to the Cape, don't despair. You can still catch the tail end of the Boston area foliage peak. In fact, looking around it is apparent that some trees have yet to peak since they are still green.

No matter what road you're going this weekend, even if it's just to the corner store, or what road you're traveling colors abound in the area. So drive a little slower on your way to the store and take a peek at the sights that make this a peak tourism time for New England.

What's On The Boards?

Giselle: ballet of exquisite love

GISELLE, a ballet in two acts; music by Adolphe Adam; choreography by Leonid Lavrovsky after Jean Coralli and Jules Perrot; scenario by Theophile Gautier and Jules Henri de Saint Georges on a theme by Heinrich Heine; staged by Anna-Marie Holmes; special coaching by Nalalia Dudinskaya, Kirov Ballet, Leningrad, U.S.S.R.; scenic design by Oliver Smith; costume design by Paul Plesh; lighting design by David K.H. Elliot; musical director Ottavio de Rosa. With Lori Nowak, William Pizzuto, Roy Reid, Clara Stallings. At the Wang Center for the Performing Arts. (Closed).

Plaudits galore are due Boston Ballet's brilliant production of Giselle! This Russian version of the 19th century Romantic masterpiece explodes with dramatic intensity, pulsates with razor-sharp precision, and is spell-binding in its clarity!

Ottavio de Rosa and the fine musicians in his charge add an extra dimension of dramatic depth and urgency to the music; The sets by Oliver Smith are handsome, a fairytale Rhineland village square with its flower-bedecked thatched houses, and the eerie enchanted forest clearing. Costumes were designed by Paul Plesh and David K. H. Elliot produced the exciting lighting. All this brings the hauntingly romantic legend to life.

Giselle, an innocent peasant girl, is in love with Albrecht, a count who has disguised himself as a peasant to woo her. The gamekeeper Hilarion, also in love with Giselle, observes Albrecht's

Anna-Marie Holmes

Dancer recalls days in Russia

Anna-Marie Holmes, ballet mistress of Boston Ballet, set the brilliant adaptation of Leonid Lavrovsky's Giselle on the Company based on extensive research and her unique experiences in the Soviet Union over the last 25 years.

In 1962, Anna-Marie and her former husband, David Holmes, became the first North Americans to dance with the Leningrad Kirov Ballet. The couple achieved unparalleled stature in the renowned company and documented the Kirov's acclaimed ballet training techniques in a definitive eight-hour study, The Leningrad Kirov Teaching Films.

Recalled Anna-Marie, "For several years in Vancouver, I had a wonderful teacher from Leningrad named Lydia Karpova. When I joined the Winnipeg Ballet, I really stood out — I looked different from the others. It was said that I was perhaps too Soviet looking to be a principal dancer in Canada!

"The first year I was with Winnipeg, we had two guest artists from the Soviet Union. With them came a woman from their Ministry of Culture. They said, 'Oh, you dance like us! Don't you want to come to the Soviet Union and finish off your rough edges?'

"My God, I said, 'my dream would be to do that.' David and I wrote to the Canada Council and asked for a grant. We wanted to go to England, Denmark, France and Russia. We got a letter back from the Council — a little sarcastic — saying if we got an invitation to Russia they'd help us...knowing full well that no one had ever gotten such an invitation.

"A year went by and nothing happened. We finished our contract in Winnipeg and went to New York to do Agnes de Mille's Brigadoon on Broadway. There was a telegram one night at the stage door saying 'Your visas are ready for Russia.' We dashed up to Ottawa where they asked us where we wanted to go — Leningrad or Moscow. They stamped us six months in each city.

"Our goal was simply to go there and study, to train and learn more. We walked into the Kirov Theatre in Leningrad and Constantin Sergeyev, who was the director at that time, asked 'Who are you?' 'We are principal dancers from the Winnipeg Ballet,' we said, 'we are here to study. We are from North America.' He stared at us, 'You are here from where? We don't have foreigners here!'

"He called Moscow and found that everything was in order. So, I was assigned to Dudinskaya and David to Pushkin's class. It was very exciting — so many great dancers had worked there. Nureyev had just defected and Baryshnikov was still in school.

"We began studying every day with them. Soon, we went to Sergeyev and told him that we wanted to work more...one class a day just wasn't enough for us. Dudinskaya and Pushkin donated their time to us. They worked with us privately every day, while most of the principals would see these great coaches maybe once a month. They called us the Mad Holmes because we worked like maniacs!

One day in rehearsal, David and I were asked to show this piece, Flames of Paris, that we were working on. That very night we were walking in front of the Kirov, and there we saw in huge letters on the poster: Anna-Marie and David Holmes from North America dancing the leading roles in Flames of Paris.

"They had given us two days notice! I nearly died! In our first three months there, we thought, if we held a spear in the back of the stage, we would be lucky. Here we were doing lead roles! The American and Canadian ambassadors even came to see this performance. It was a success: We got in Newsweek as the first North Americans to dance with the Kirov. It had all begun. They changed our status from visiting artists to guest artists. We had become dancing members of the Kirov.

"In general, we were treated just like the Soviet artists. Our teachers spoke only Russian to us in class. The audiences knew we were foreign, but they liked us because we were so young and enthusiastic. Accepted artists are given a great deal of stature and respect in the Soviet Union.

"When you're a People's Artist, you are allowed to have a house in the country and a chauffeur-driven limousine. They also treat older artists

Chinese children dance

The Chinese Children's Palace of Hangzhou perform Chinese folk music, national and regional dances of the mainland Chinese, plus remarkable acrobatics for their Boston debut performance. The performance takes place on Oct. 28, at 8 p.m. in Symphony Hall.

Located southwest of Shanghai, Hangzhou is the capital of the Zhejiang province. The Children's Palace is a conservatory where talented young people — ranging in age from 10-18 — prove their abilities and gain professional skills in the traditional arts of music, dance, and acrobatics. This special youth cultural delegation brings together members of the Zhejiang School of the Performing Arts and the Hangzhou Teenage Acrobatic Troupe.

In the Chinese Children's Palace of Hangzhou, the musicians will play traditional instruments such as dizi (Chinese flutes), pipas (Chinese lutes), yangqin (hammered dulcimers), and ehru (two-stringed fiddles).

Included in the solo and ensemble music in the program will be Mongolian Horserace, Happy Song, Spring on the Pasture, and Singing in the Evening from the Fisherman's Boat.

The dances performed by the troupe are drawn from common images of recent and past Chinese life and include Picking Tea Leaves, Song of the Horseman, and Sea Fantasy.

The acrobats will perform the vivid and colorful Lion Dance, Plate Spinning, Pagoda of Bowls, and Boys Fooling Around at the Lantern Festival. (The program is subject to change.)

Remaining tickets for the Chinese Children's Palace of Hangzhou are priced at $17.50 and $16.50 and will be available starting Oct. 19 at the Symphony Hall box office (266-1492) and through Concertcharge, 497-1118. Group discounts are available by calling the Celebrity Series at 482-2595.

Shepard's Lie in Cambridge

The Harvard-Radcliffe Dramatic Club presents Sam Shepard's A Lie of the Mind for seven performances only, opening Oct. 23 at 8 p.m. at the 556-seat Mainstage of the Loeb Drama Center, 64 Brattle St., Cambridge. The production is produced by Roberta Feldman and Sophronia Scott.

Directed by Fred Pletcher, the cast includes Chad Raphael, Daniel Hurewitz, Heather Gunn, Sam Sifton, Susan Schwartz, Diane Paulus, Jon Tolins and Jenny Lyn Bader.

Performances are Friday through Sunday, Oct. 23-25, and Wednesday through Saturday, Oct. 28-31. Curtain is 8 p.m. for all performances. Tickets are $5 general admission and $4 for students and seniors. Tickets are available by calling the Loeb box office at 546-8300.

Boston Lyric Opera Company opened its season last week with Britten's ghost story The Turn of the Screw. A fully directed and costumed cast of signactors joined a cast of singers.

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

Fundamental relationships in painting and implied psychological relationships are explored in An Open Door, one of Michael Dowling's large oils on exhibit in his ten year retrospective at Hoyle Gallery.

Structure counts in works

In the ten years of work he shows at Hoyle Gallery, 553 Columbus Ave., Michael Dowling moves from deftly painted landscapes and genre scenes toward psychologically narrative paintings increasingly monumental in both image and idea.

The fast, painterly brushwork of Dowling's paintings of the '70s remains a constant throughout. But in the recent paintings the artist downplays emphasis on the sparkling play of light and paint over entire surfaces to allow compositional relationships and, especially, images, more assertive roles.

The exhibition is entitled Michael Dowling: A Closer Look, 1977-1987. A closer look reveals in many of the earlier works the potential for Dowling's shift. Indeed, one of the satisfactions in seeing an artist's work over a period of years is understanding more clearly where it is that he or she is coming from, or at least getting a broader base of clues about the intentions that fuel the work.

Single figures who manage to hold their own space and importance in very active landscapes are represented in paintings from the '70s such as Backyard, Backyard Secrets, and Nancy. The interaction between figure and environment is key to the recent paintings as well.

In the large 1986 canvas, Tears of Things, a seated figure's bowed head is locked into the arc shape of the foot of a frontally-viewed bedstead, both moving horizontally into the dark-light break of a vertical figure's clothing. The standing figure's verticality is echoed in the dark green wall that pushes tightly against his side and is cropped by the painting's edge. The wall's deep transparent green, like the conifers of Dowling's landscapes, infers mystery and closure, and works, as do the figures, to integrate itself with the picture's totality while maintaining a presence and character all its own. A full moon is symmetrically positioned in the thalo blue rectangle of a window directly above the head of the bed. The perfect round shape carries on a dialogue of white light with walls, bed linens and the seated figure's shirt. The moon's light is softly reflected off the conch shell in a picture on the green wall, completing the visual dialogue between the object closest to the picture plane and the one farthest away.

It is in such combining of imagery with structural elements that the visual impact of Dowling's work is felt, and is increasingly explored for taut and provocative relationships in the most recent paintings. A sense of fully satisfying abstract form and use of representational imagery for its multi-layered meaning thus continues to evolve in the work.

Especially inviting in the hands of some new gallery space is a downstairs alcove filled with Dowling's small-to-easel-sized landscapes. Here one can see the colors and shapes become more localized from the open, flickering brushwork of Black's Creek (1980) and Gloucester (1981) to an intensified and emotionally suggestive jelling of color, shape and image in the later works. The 1985 landscapes of aqueducts and waterfalls and 1986's Greenbelt and Essex River have a condensation of form that, while characterized by the same lively paint application of the earlier paintings, has taken on, despite their size, a new monumentality.

Dowling's exhibition, on view through Oct. 31, marks the inauguration of Hoyle Gallery, an elegant addition to the ever-burgeoning South End arts community. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday, and noon to 5 p.m. weekends. Call 437-0248.

What's On The Boards

Giselle casts a spell

vow of eternal love and, jealous, swears vengeance.

During the grape harvest festival Giselle's mother, Berthe, warns her delicate daughter to stop dancing, lest her heart fail and she join the Wilis, a band of young maidens who have died before their wedding day. By legend, the Wilis rise from their graves at midnight, luring unsuspecting men into a dance of death.

Albrecht's father, the Duke of Courland, arrives with a beautiful member of his court, Bathilde, and his assemblage (including two magnificent Borzoi dogs). The two women discover that each is engaged to be married. Hilarion suddenly reveals Albrecht's true identity by displaying his jeweled sword and Bathilde announces that he is, in fact, her fiancé.

The cascade of revelations drives Giselle insane and her madness culminates in a thwarted attempt at suicide. Ultimately, the grief-stricken girl dies, her mind snapped and her heart broken. Filled with remorse, Albrecht and Hilarion accuse one another of having caused Giselle's death. Never has the first act moved so quickly!

Action moves to the ominous grave sight in a cemetery by the lake. As midnight approaches, Hilarion enters to mourn his beloved, but is frightened off by mysterious flickerings in the trees. Myrtha, Queen of the Wilis, leads her ghostly tribe in a relentless dance before summoning Giselle from the grave to learn the dance of the Wilis, a form of initiation.

Albrecht enters, haunted by his love for Giselle, and kneels before her grave. Suddenly, her spirit flies past him. Unable to grasp her for long, he pursues her. Hilarion returns and is immediately seized by the Wilis. His pleas to Myrtha are met with scorn and she orders the Wilis to drown him in the lake. When Albrecht returns, the same fate awaits him.

In an attempt to save Albrecht, Giselle forces him to take refuge beside the cross on her grave. Her powers challenged, Myrtha orders Giselle to dance alone. Unable to separate himself from his only love, Albrecht joins in the deadly dance but is saved by the coming of dawn. The Wilis vanish, their power voided by the morning light. Giselle embraces Albrecht in forgiveness and sinks peacefully back into her grave, freed from the Wilis' curse by the purity of her love.

Giselle is among the most complex and challenging roles in the classical repertory and any ballerina who plays her must confront the considerable emotional as well as technical demands, its portrayal of passion, magic and madness.

On opening night, soloist Lori Nowak, dancing the role for the very first time, was more than equal to the task! She developed a human character, a character of truth — light and gay, girlishly coy and winsome, playful and charming.

When Berthe cautions her about excessive dancing, you can almost hear the irregular heart beat! From the blissful happiness, she reacts explicitly to the charges and counter charges and the realization that she has been duped. Miss Nowak makes Giselle's descent into madness a very special moment on stage and her attempted suicide and ultimate death are equally as impressive.

She is totally ethereal upon entering a new dimension, that of a spirit...haunting and wispy, like a moonbeam! The success of her long dance sequences in both acts was attested to by the avalanche of floral bouquets that showered the stage at curtain!

The balance of the cast execute their roles with equal skill. William Pizzuto is appropriately handsome as Albrecht and serves as a strong dance partner for Miss Nowak. Roy Reid brings textual reality to the role of Hilarion. Carla Stallings is marvelously cruel and unwavering as Myrtha. In the flashy, exuberant peasant pas de deux, aplomb with leaps and turns, Lynn Cote and Devon Carney win the audience completely.

And the Corps de Ballet shines as never before, attaining exact shape and line and unity, especially impressive in the lengthy dance in the second act. Frocked in classical ballet costumes, their arms and hands fluttering like wings, they execute countless jete en tourant (one leg extended backward to its maximum as they move across the floor) as one. A beautiful sight! And wonderfully dramatic and theatrical in the non-dancing, mime roles are Sydelle Gomberg as Berthe and Stewart Yaros as Wilfred, Albrecht's companion.

A ballet of exquisite love and shattering sorrow, Giselle remains a marvelous synthesis of its every quality of style, technique and dramatic feeling!

Gershwin in Andover

Mel Torme, Leslie Uggams, and Peter Nero star in The Great Gershwin Concert at the J. Everett Collins Center for the Performing Arts, Shawshen Rd., Andover, on Thursday, Oct. 29, at 8 p.m.

Making their only New England appearance, these three stars of stage, screen, and television will be accompanied by a 20-piece festival concert orchestra.

The program will include popular songs before Gershwin and also songs representing the entire span of Gershwin's career. Such famous songs as I've Got Rhythm and selections from Porgy and Bess will also be presented.

Tickets for The Great Gershwin Concert, starring Mel Torme, Leslie Uggams, and Peter Nero, at $40, $35, and $30, are on sale now at the Collins Center Box Office, Shawshen Rd., Andover, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Tickets may also be purchased at all Ticketron locations. To charge tickets, call Teletron at 1-800/382-8080.

"That respect begins with the children who curtsy to you in the halls no matter who you are. They're taught that from the start. It's interesting because kids are also very important in Soviet society — children and old people. The rest of us in the middle work for them. For instance, the people on the bus stood so Lian (Anna-Marie's nine-year-old daughter) could sit; the child sits, the child is what they are grooming.

"This was during the Khrushchev era. We never got caught up politically, though. We were so involved in our own little world — like monks — that this was all we knew. The living world was actually foreign to us. We couldn't go 50 miles beyond the city. But, then, no one could.

"We stayed there originally for two years. After that, we still had the ability to go back and forth which we did several times a year — taking classes and performing — until 1975. The training has in part returned to the way things were when I first visited. Sergeyev is now in charge of the school. He is a very artistic and strong administrator. Many great men are being produced after a lull of several years.

"The training is still slow and systematic. It is still more attuned to technique than tricks, long the trait of the Kirov. The Bolshoi will, in comparison, go for flamboyance. In the pure classicism of it, the Kirov relates more to our Western tastes. The Kirov remains the same today as it did 25 years ago. In fact, the first ballet I saw them perform this summer, The Fountain of Bakhchisarai, was the first ballet I saw in 1962. It was weird, like being in a time-capsule.

"Having trained there and been a pupil of Dudinskaya, it is a natural progression to pass on the Kirov tradition. They expect you to do it. They feel their method is the best and wouldn't have understood if I taught something else. I really believe in it too. What I'm trying to do in Boston is not a carbon copy but, with the Kirov base, we can produce something really special here."

What To Do

Apple picking time is now

It's time to go apple picking. Pick the orchard of your choice, pack up the kids and take off for the country and an invigorating day of harvesting one of nature's perfect fruits.

According to Jack Manning of J.P. Sullivan Company of Ayer, there is a good supply of apples being harvested now with plenty more to come as the season progresses.

The Greek historian Plutarch wrote that "the best qualities of all fruits are found in the apple. It is smooth to the touch, it imparts a sweet odor to the hand without soiling it, it is sweet to the taste and pleasing to the eyes and nose...only the apple can please all the sense at once."

And apples are nutritionally good for you. They have natural fiber, no cholesterol and are low in calories and sodium. They are filling but not fattening! right to orchard. Open daily 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., through mid November. 35 cents/pound.

Lookout Farm, 89 Pleasant St., So. Natick, 651-1539. Rt. 9 to Rt. 16 to South Natick Village. South on Pleasant St. 1 1/2 miles on right. Open daily 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. through Oct. 31. No tree climbing, no pets and no picnicking. 40 cents/pound and over 50 lbs/30 cents.

Windy Knoll Orchard 91 Norris Rd., Tyngsboro, 649-6500. Exit 36 on Rt. 3 to Frost Rd. Right on Lakeview Ave., left on Lawrence Rd. Follow signs. Open weekends 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Honey Pot Hill Orchards, 144 Sudbury Rd., Stow, 562-5666. Corner of Sudbury and Boon Rds. off Rt. 62 in Stow. $6.75/1/2 bushel. Call for information.

Hammerhead Farm, Westcott Rd., Harvard, 456-6858. 495 to Rt. 111 West, first left (Codman). Follow signs to Westcott Rd. Open 9:30 a.

Because it comes in its own wrapper, and is ready to eat, an apple is the perfect snack food for children and busy workers alike.

Apples should be stored in the refrigerator to retain their crispness and they can be kept for six weeks or more, if kept in a cool place.

Right now apples are at their freshest and the selection of different varieties is quite wide, so get out there and pick, pick, pick.

Following is a list of orchards where you can pick your own apples:

Brooksby Farm, Felton St., Peabody, 531-1631. Take Rt. 128N to exit 26 to Lowell St. Head West to set of lights, bear right onto Prospect St. for one half mile. Take left onto Felton St. and farm is at the end. Call for information.

Nagog Hill Farm, P.O. Box 396, Littleton, 486-3264. Rt. 128 to exit 19 (Acton-Fitchburg). Rt. 2 to Concord Rotary, Rt. 2A approximately 4 miles. Reservoir on left hand side, Nashoba Rd. to Nagog Hill Rd., take 5 p.m. through October. $6.50/1/2 bushel.

Bolton Spring Farm, 149 Main St., Bolton 779-2898. Rt. 495 take exit 27 (Bolton/Stow). Head East on Rt. 117 towards Stoe for 2 miles. Open daily 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., through Oct. Bags are supplied, no climbing trees. Picnic area and farmstand. $6.50/1/2 bushel.

Apple cider is one of the delicious byproducts of the apple harvest and it is readily available at local farms:

Acadian Farms, 200 North St., Holliston, MA. 429-4439.

Apple Hill Farm, Valley Rd., Dunstable, 649-6831.

Box Mill, Brookside Ave., Stowe, 897-8200.

Lawson's Cider Mill, Concord Turnpike, Lincoln, 259-8777.

Rofondo's Farm Cider Mill, 737 Bedford St. Concord.

Cook's Farm, Rt. 2A, Lincoln, 259-9080.

Our Machines Are Famous, But Our People Do The Thinking.

In fact, it's the thinking of our most innovative people that made those highly sophisticated machines possible. And made our X-Press 24[®] the largest automated teller network in the region...which has made us the first choice of Massachusetts consumers.

So we appreciate the value of technology in today's increasingly complex banking environment. Yet we place a still greater value on the competence and energy of our staff. In return, we offer extraordinary advancement potential. Professional recognition. Along with a stimulating, dynamic environment.

Messenger/Driver

Responsibilities include sorting and delivering interoffice mail to our company branches and departments through use of a company vehicle. Routes cover Waltham, Watertown, Newton and Framingham areas.

A valid Mass. driver's license and good driving record are required for this Waltham-based position.

Full and part-time positions with benefits available.

Customer Service Representative (Teller)

This is an entry level position in our Community Banking career track. We will provide you with four weeks of full-time paid training. Then you'll put your knowledge to work in our branches, handling cash transactions and providing our customers with information about our financial products and services. To qualify, you need an enthusiastic, professional manner, an aptitude for numbers and a high school diploma or equivalent. Opportunities available in Waltham, Watertown and Newton.

Data Entry Trainee

You'll be trained to operate an NCR Encoding Machine and to research and adjust errors. An aptitude for figures and the ability to be detail-oriented are all you need to qualify—but if you have typing or calculator experience, that's even better.

A variety of 20 hours/week schedules available.

Unlike many part-time jobs, this position provides benefits including paid holidays and vacation.

For further information, please call 894-2175. Bay Bank Middlesex, 637 Main Street, Waltham, MA 02154 (across from City Hall).

Our Machines are Famous, But Our People Do The Thinking.

In fact, it's the thinking of our most innovative people that made those highly sophisticated machines possible. And made our X-Press 24⁺ the largest automated teller network in the region... which has made us the first choice of Massachusetts consumers.

So we appreciate the value of technology in today's increasingly complex banking environment. Yet we place a still greater value on the competence and energy of our staff. We rely on them to maintain our impressive standing in banking circles, and beyond. And we reward them with extraordinary advancement potential. Professional recognition. Along with a stimulating, dynamic environment.

None of this matters to our machines. But it takes everything we offer to attract the top-notch professionals we seek. If you're qualified for one of the following positions, we'd like you to join us.

Customer Service Representatives (Tellers & Head Tellers)

Depending on your experience, we have positions for Tellers and Head Tellers at a variety of branches. Full and part time positions available. Summers off if desired.

Customer Service Center Representatives

If you enjoy talking to people on the telephone, consider applying for a position in our customer service center.

Drivers

Our drivers service and stock our automatic teller machines in and around the Boston area. A Massachusetts driver's license and a good driving record will help you qualify for this position.

Clerical Support

We have a variety of full and part-time positions available for people who are energetic and detail-oriented.

BayBank Harvard Trust offers a highly competitive compensation and benefits package including tuition reimbursement and paid training. For more information, please call the Human Resources Department at 661-7155.

Telling a man to change the way he drives is about like telling him to change the way he eats — so without being preachy, here are some facts you might like to know. Driving fast uses much more gas than driving slow. Hair-raising, wheel-spinning, scare-the-baby acceleration uses gas like a 747 taking off. Gentler starts mean gentler gas bills. The mental approach to driving is simple. Just concentrate on the job at hand — driving the car properly — and any other problem will automatically be pushed into the mental "pending" file. To be able to concentrate fully on driving, the environment has to be right.

The technicians at PETER FULLER OLDS are ASE certified. We keep a computerized history of all cars serviced here to notify you of preventative maintenance. Open 8-5. Tel. 924-8100. Good News for the Weekend Mechanic

Audi 5000S Sedan

If you do your own repair work, do the job right with genuine Audi replacement parts. First of all, they fit, so if you take your Audi apart Saturday morning, you know the parts you bought will get you back on the road without another trip. Second, every part has a 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty. At Audi, we care as much about your car as you do.

HOME & ENERGY GUIDE

Pick appliances wisely to save energy

Everybody likes a good bargain. But in household electrical appliances, some of the best bargains are found only by looking beyond the price tag; by looking, as well, for energy efficiency.

An appliance that saves energy saves money throughout its working lifetime; and those savings may easily outweigh any difference in purchase price, says Edison Electric Institute, the association of investor owned electric utilities.

When you pick a new appliance, pick one with about the right capacity for your needs. With too small a capacity, it can't do the job for you; and with too large a capacity it will only waste energy, running more of itself that you're really using.

Before you buy, compare different makes and models. Look for two things: built-in energy efficiency, and controls that you can set yourself to save energy.

Electrical appliances may be tagged with estimates of what it might cost, per year, to run them; but comparing these estimates is often confusing, because they don't take actual local energy costs into account, and they are changed from one year to the next as prices change. Two identical appliances can carry different cost estimates, because one was tagged this year and the other one last year. Even worse, a more efficient model may display a higher energy cost estimate than a less efficient one simply because they were tagged in different years.

So try to find out, from product literature or the dealer, how much useful work each appliance will do, per watt of electricity used, and compare those figures.

In automatic dishwashers and laundry washing machines, also compare how many gallons of hot water each model uses for a standard wash cycle. Less hot water means less energy consumed.

Most dishwashers use about two to three gallons of hot water, and it takes four to six times as much energy to heat that water as it does to run the machine itself. Look, also, for a short-cycle setting for lightly soiled dishes; its use can save as much as 25 percent of the water-heating energy. Check also for an "air-dry" selection which can save up to 30 percent of electricity use, compared with a heat drying cycle.

In laundry washing machines, look for a control that sets different water levels, so you can match the size of the wash load; a control to select water temperature, including warm and cold options; and a "suds saver" that lets you reuse hot wash water for additional loads.

Automatic laundry dryers can save energy if equipped with a drying time control and/or a temperature or moisture sensor that ends the drying cycle at a pre-set dryness level.

A self cleaning oven actually saves energy during normal cooking operation, because it is better insulated than a standard oven. It can reduce energy costs, provided its high energy cleaning cycle is used no more frequently than about once a month. A convection oven, with forced air recirculation, can allow cooking temperatures about 25 percent lower than a non-recirculating oven, and can shorten cooking times, saving energy.

Microwave ovens, handy both for quick cooking and for reheating meal sized portions, save energy, too. Tests by the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers found that homes using both a standard range and a microwave oven used about 14 percent less cooking energy than those with only a standard

Easy-to-install thermostats work hard to cut fuel bills

Save up to 30% on heating

□ — 10% setback for 8 hours — once daily*
■ — 10% setback for 8 hours — twice daily*

Actual savings will depend on your lifestyle, equipment and insulating factors in your home. Chart shows savings for typical homes in various climates.

your individual needs.

In response to your programming instructions, the Energy Managers will automatically cut back on the heating (or cooling) when you don't need it and then return it to a comfortable level when desired. You can program up to 2 economy and 2 comfort periods per day. You decide when each period begins and ends, and what temperature will be maintained during each period.

The savings in heating costs alone from automatically cutting back on the heat at night and when no one's home during the day can be as high as $300 (ASHRAE Journal Studies, 1978). Although your actual savings will vary according to lifestyle, climate, and home insulation factors, these thermostats are guaranteed to pay for themselves in fuel savings in one year or Robertshaw will refund you the purchase price.

Designed for easy do-it-yourself installation, Robertshaw Energy Manager thermostats can replace most low-voltage thermostats on heating only and combination heating/cooling systems. Part of a full line of Robertshaw thermostats available to meet virtually any comfort budget needs, Energy Managers are sold at hardware and home products stores nationwide. For more details, contact Robertshaw Controls Company, 100 W. Victoria Street, Long Beach, CA 90805.

Zero-investment ways to save energy money

Here's a deal that pays you regular cash dividends and requires no investment on your part. Interested?

Who wouldn't be?

And there's no "catch". It's not only legal, but good for the nation's economy and environment as well. It's called energy efficient living, and all it takes is a few good habits.

By practicing efficiency around the house, you can save electricity and fuel that puts cash right back in your pocket, as your utility bills come down.

Space heating, water heating, refrigeration, cooking, dishwashing, and laundering all offer opportunities for a savvy householder to save energy, says the Edison Electric Institute, the association of investor-owned electric utilities. Here's how:

Space Heating

If you put on a sweater and turn down the thermostat, you can keep yourself warm without overheating everything else. You may be comfortable with thermostat settings of 65 degrees F. during the day and 55 degrees at night. Every additional degree increases energy consumption by two to four percent, while every degree less saves that much energy. Remember: the money you save, with just a touch of the finger, is money you keep.

Close windows tightly near the thermostat, so it's not triggered by cold drafts; close heating vents and radiator valves in unused areas; and close the door of an attached garage so it shelters the house from cold winds.

Let heat reach living spaces efficiently: radiators or air registers should not be blocked by drapes or furniture. And don't dump warm air outside by unnecessary use of kitchen or bathroom vent fans, or a fireplace. Close the fireplace damper when it's not in use; when the fireplace is used, close doors and air ducts in that room and open a nearby window slightly, so warm air from the rest of the house is not drawn up the chimney.

Open curtains and shades on sunny windows during winter days, and let the sun warm the interior; then cover those windows at night to keep the heat inside.

Water Heating

Your hot water heater is one of the largest single energy users in your home. By using it wisely, you can conserve the amount of energy it requires.

Try setting the hot water thermostat to 140 degrees F. or lower; use the lowest temperature that meets your cleaning needs. Each 10 degree reduction in water temperature will save 4 to 6 percent in water heating costs.

Try to conserve hot water whenever possible. Don't let it run continuously; use it as needed, or fill a basin for washing.

Repair leaking faucets promptly. A leak of only one drop per second wastes 200 gallons of hot water per month.

If your hot water heater is not well insulated but you don't want to replace it yet, consider adding an insulating jacket.

Every hot water heater also should have insulation along the incoming and outgoing pipes for a distance of at least three feet from the tank, if possible, to reduce standby hot water energy loss. Check with your utility company for tips on proper installation.

Refrigeration

Don't open refrigerator or freezer doors more often, or longer, than necessary; each opening spills out cold air and brings in warm air which must be chilled.

If your refrigerator has switch controlled heating elements to prevent condensation on the outside of its cabinet, an "anti-sweat" or "power-saver" control, try turning it off during dry weather. Turn it back on only when condensation is really a problem. Leaving that switch off can reduce energy consumption about 15 percent.

Cooking

Range top cooking uses less energy than an oven, and microwave cooking usually uses even less.

Match the size of the container to the size of the range top heating element; a too small pot lets a too big burner waste its energy heating air.

Cook with the lid on, when possible, because it keeps heat in; a pressure cooker is even more efficient and can cut cooking time as much as two thirds. Use only as much water for cooking as necessary. And when water starts boiling, turn down the heat to simmer. Higher heat can't make boiling water any hotter, it only makes it evaporate faster!

Even cooking is most efficient if it's used to cook more than one dish at a time, or to prepare large quantities that can be stored for later use. Don't preheat an oven unless the recipe requires it, or the dish requires oven heating for only a few minutes.

Dishwashing

Run the dishwasher full. A partial load uses just as much energy as a full one. Use the "rinse-hold" feature only when necessary. It uses three to seven gallons of hot water each time. An "air dry" or "overnight dry" setting that lets dishes dry naturally, without high heat, saves about 10 percent of dishwashing energy.

Hiring a contractor to insulate sidewalls

Underinsulated sidewalls may be responsible for up to 30 percent of a home's heat loss. To prevent this, a professional insulation contractor should be hired to insulate them with a blown-in fiber glass insulation such as CertainTeed Corporation's Insul Safe III®.

While insulating an attic is a relatively simple project for a do-it-yourselfer to undertake, insulating sidewalls is a more complicated procedure which should be undertaken by a professional insulation contractor. Like the attic, sidewalls are an extremely important area to insulate because heat loss through walls may account for up to 30 percent of the total heat loss in a home.

First you must find the right insulation contractor to do the job. A good place to begin looking is in the Yellow Pages of the telephone directory under "Insulation Contractors." Friends and neighbors might also be a good source of leads. Once you have a few contractors in mind, be sure to check credentials, references and written estimates of the work to be done.

Typically, a contractor will begin by carefully removing some of your home's outside siding. Next, he will drill small openings into the wall cavity. Usually two holes are drilled per stud space, however some homes might require three or four openings depending on their construction.

Once all holes have been drilled, the contractor will begin blowing insulation into the wall cavities. Usually, he will use a special sidewall nozzle to blow-in the material. Most contractors will recommend installing a high quality, thermally efficient blown-in fiber glass insulation such as CertainTeed Corporation's Insul Safe III®. Insul Safe III is also non-combustible, noncorrosive to pipes and wiring and odor free.

Once the cavity is filled, the contractor will plug the holes with circular pieces of wood and replace the siding. With the exception of reductions in your energy bills, you'd never know the job had been done.

For the brochure, "Insulate Your Sidewalls for Added Comfort," write to the CertainTeed Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482.

Home equity credit. Before you sign on the bottom line, make sure you know what the bottom line is.

Home equity credit has been front page news lately. More Massachusetts homeowners have an equity line of credit with BayBanks than with any other lender. As a reminder for our current customers and for the benefit of those of you who are considering an equity line, we want to present the facts about this type of borrowing.

What is a home equity line of credit?

A home equity line is a way to borrow that uses a mortgage on your home as collateral. Home equity lines are revolving loans. This means that once you are approved for a line of credit, you can borrow money at any time, in any amount up to your credit limit, simply by writing a check. As you repay your account, you may borrow again without having to reapply.

At BayBanks, our home equity line is called REAL Credit™ — Real Estate Asset Line of Credit.

Why are home equity lines so popular?

A home equity line is often the least expensive type of credit available to a homeowner. Because your house is used as collateral, a home equity line is considered more secure than other personal loans, and therefore the interest rate is lower. And you are charged interest only on the amount you have borrowed for the time that amount is outstanding. There is no penalty for prepayment.

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 phases out interest deductions on all types of consumer loans except residential mortgages. If you itemize your tax deductions, in many instances the interest you pay on REAL Credit remains deductible for federal income tax purposes as long as the total amount of the mortgages on your home does not exceed the original purchase price of the house plus the cost of any home improvements. Beyond this amount, interest you pay on your REAL Credit line generally is tax deductible if the proceeds of the loan are used for tuition or medical expenses. You should consult your tax advisor for more information on how the Tax Reform Act of 1986 affects you.

BayBanks REAL Credit is the most popular home equity line of credit in Massachusetts.

The interest rate is only 1.5% over the BayBanks Prime Rate (the base rate that BayBanks uses to set interest rates for most business loans). For example, since the BayBanks Prime Rate is 9.25%, the REAL Credit Annual Percentage Rate is 10.75%.

Another advantage of BayBanks REAL Credit is that you can convert all of your credit line, or as little as $5,000 to a fixed-rate home equity loan. With this type of loan the interest rate will not change, and the amount borrowed plus interest will be repaid in equal monthly installments over the life of the loan (from one to ten years). For example, if you borrow $10,000 for five years under the fixed rate option when the fixed-rate home equity loan Annual Percentage Rate for that term is 11.75%, your monthly payment will be $221.18. If you borrow $10,000 for ten years under the fixed-rate option when the fixed-rate home equity loan Annual Percentage Rate for that term is 12.25%, your monthly payment will be $144.92.

You may choose to convert at any time, as often as you like, without conversion charges or closing costs. The remaining portion of your REAL Credit line will still be available for you to use as you wish. Once the fixed-rate loan is paid off, your REAL Credit line is automatically restored to its original amount.

BayBanks REAL Credit also offers the flexibility of accessing your REAL Credit line with an optional Gold MasterCard® or a Preferred Visa® Card in addition to checks. With this option you can combine REAL Credit's low interest rate and potential tax deductibility with all the benefits of a preferred credit card.

How much money can I get?

At BayBanks, the amount of money you can borrow is determined principally by your income and your outstanding debt. We want to be sure that your REAL Credit payments will fit comfortably within your budget.

The sum of your monthly mortgage, installment loan, minimum credit card and other loan payments, including REAL Credit (assuming your full line is in use at today's rate), may not exceed 40% of your gross monthly income (that is, salary, wages, and other income before taxes).

Next, we consider the value of your home as collaterally with your ability to repay. With this in mind, BayBanks grants credit only after determining that your income, as indicated on the application, will meet the repayment standards described above. If your financial situation changes, you should contact your bank to discuss appropriate arrangements.

Changing Payments. The monthly payment on a home equity line can change because the interest rate is usually tied to the Prime Rate. As the Prime Rate changes, the amount of your monthly REAL Credit payment will change as shown in this chart.

If the REAL Credit Annual Percentage Rate is:	The Estimated Minimum Monthly Payment per $10,000 Borrowed is:
8.75%	$122.92
9.75%	$131.25
10.75%	$139.58
11.75%	$147.92

Remember, with BayBanks REAL Credit you can eliminate the risk of increasing monthly payments by converting to a fixed rate.

Accessing equity with your credit card. At BayBanks, credit is granted according to your ability to repay and is not based solely on the value of your home. Therefore, a credit card does not increase the risk of having the line — it is simply another way to access your credit line. Credit card access gives you the added convenience of being able to use your credit line for emergencies and major purchases when personal checks are not accepted.

What's the smart way to use my home equity line?

You can use your home equity line of credit for any purpose, but keep in mind that your house secures the loan. Plan to use the line for items that will benefit your family over the long term. Examples are home improvements, education, medical care, and consolidation of high-interest debt.

How do I know I'm getting the best deal?

Get all the facts. Compare fees. REAL Credit currently has no closing or application fees for a first or second home in Massachusetts if you have a checking, NOW, Money Manager, or Capital Account with BayBanks and you are borrowing no more than the tax assessment of your house. If you request an appraisal, or if you apply for more than $100,000, a $75 appraisal fee will be charged. At BayBanks there is no annual fee for your line unless you select the preferred credit card option. The preferred credit card carries an annual fee of $75.

Look for flexibility. REAL Credit is convertible to a fixed rate at any time, as often as you wish. REAL Credit checks can be written for any amount up to your credit limit, and credit card access is available. No other bank offers this much flexibility.

How do I get REAL Credit?

For an application and our REAL Credit Fact Sheet which provides more detailed information about REAL Credit, come in to any BayBank office or call the BayBanks Loan Phone at 1-800-232-9876.

What are the risks of a home equity line?

A number of recent articles have described equity lines as risky. Some of the concerns those articles have raised are discussed below.

Using your house as collateral. Borrowing with a home equity line, as with any type of mortgage, should be taken seriously. Your loan obligations must fit comfortably within your budget.

POLICE LOG

Sunday, October 25

At 3:54 p.m. police received a call from a Swanton St. resident. She told police that a vehicle had just damaged the lawn at the corner of Swanton and White Streets, according to police reports.

A section of the property is owned by the town and a section is privately owned. Police also received a call from a White Street man who said he saw a car drive over the grass. The man gave police the license plate number of the car.

The car was registered to a Washington Street man who told police his son had just returned the car to the driveway. The man said his son, who was not at home, told him that he had driven over something and may have caused damage to the car, according to police.

An officer checked the car and saw grass and dirt on the tires and undercarriage. Officers said they would send the driver a citation for leaving the scene of an accident and operating at a speed greater than reasonable, according to police reports.

Between 2:13 p.m. and 3:48 p.m., police received five calls from Dix Street residents.

All five had the tires slashed on their cars while parked on the street sometime the night before.

While patrolling near the high school at 2:03 a.m., police noticed that the high school building had been vandalized.

The names of rock bands had been painted and spray painted in red paint with a white background on the east courtyard wall. According to reports, police found empty paint cans at the scene.

Saturday, October 24

At 12:28 a.m. police were dispatched to Rush Industries on Lowell Ave. to check on a burglar alarm.

As they approached the building, police reported hearing the alarm. The officers drove around to the rear of the building where they saw a parked 1976 beige Dodge Aspen. Two white males were walking out of the building. One of the youths was bleeding from what police reports said appeared to be a serious cut on his right hand.

The officers asked the youths what they were doing. According to police reports, "Their answers were unsatisfactory and inconsistent with the conditions."

While one officer continued to question the youths, who were from Watertown, the other began to check the building. He found three smashed windows, approximately 1 foot by 3 feet, with fresh blood stains on the walls adjacent to the windows, police said.

The youth who was cut said he got the injury in a fight with an unidentified youth, according to police reports.

Police called a representative of Rush Industries to open the building. A search found no one inside, and the representative said he could find nothing missing, police said.

While checking the car, police reported finding blood on the hood and footprints that matched the sneaker patterns of one of the suspects. The youths told the officers that the ignition key had broken in the ignition and they were trying to fix it when the police arrived. They had no explanation for the footprint, according to police reports.

Police arrested the youths on charges of breaking and entering in the nighttime due to the inconsistency of their answers, their proximity to the crime, the late hour, and their demeanor, according to reports.

The officers later learned that four other youths had been in the car, but had gone to find help. Police determined, through questioning, that the four were not at the scene when the break occurred, police said.

Thursday, October 22

At 8:52 a.m. police were called to the scene of an accident at Cambridge Street and Wainwright Road.

A truck had overturned and was on its left side. When police arrived the engine compartment was smoking and diesel fuel was leaking out of the gas tank, according to reports.

The driver said he was taking a left onto Wainwright at normal speed, which is about 5 miles per hour, when the truck overturned for no apparent reason, police said.

The Fire Department and Department of Public Works were called in to help right the truck and clean up the site, according to police.

No one was hurt, police said.

Wednesday, October 21

At 7:56 a.m., police were called to the scene of a break in on Cardinal Street.

An intruder tried to jimmy the door and, failing to do that, smashed a window, according to police.

Police believe the intruder was scared off, because nothing was taken from the house and everything was in order.

The neighbors were not home at the time of the break in, according to police.

Yard sale permits available at Town Manager's office

Town of Winchester bylaws require residents who want to hold a yard or garage sale to get a permit for the event.

Permits can be purchased for $10 at the Town Manager's Office. The Winchester Police Department reminds residents to read the restrictions on sign placement. The police will shut down sales that do not have permits or have placed signs in improper places.

Town businessman faces jail term for IRS bribery

Byung C. Kim, who operates a dry cleaning business in Winchester, was sentenced last week to eight months in jail and a $5,000 fine, according to Acting United States Attorney Frank McNamara.

Kim, a Lexington resident, was convicted last month of bribery and conspiracy to commit bribery for paying a $4000 bribe to an Internal Revenue Service agent who was conducting an audit of his taxes, McNamara said.

The jury found that Kim offered and paid a bribe to the agent, who cooperated in an IRS undercover investigation, in return for Kim's tax liability being reduced from $134,000 to $5,000 for the tax years 1983-85, according to McNamara.

New Muraco principal quickly takes to her job

By SUE SHOR

Star Assistant Editor

It's not hard to see that Andrea Purcell likes her job. The smile on her face is the first clue, and when she opens her mouth, enthusiasm for the school, the children, the faculty, her fellow principals and the administration bubbles out.

"I get up in the morning and I think, 'Oh good, I get to go to work,'" Purcell said. After teaching for 17 years, she said it's change that keeps her energy flowing. "When there's change in your life, you get excited and it translates into your job."

And her enthusiasm for her job is apparent with a step into the building. Perhaps the most obvious feature of the school's atmosphere is Purcell's wide open door. In fact, she has two open doors, one leading to the main office and one leading directly to the school's front hall.

The office, which she has occupied for five weeks, is decorated with artwork the students did to welcome her to the school. It has a homey, cluttered look of comfort.

"I'm in the right place," Purcell said about her new job. She said she doesn't miss having her own class to teach. "It's like being a grandmother," she said. "I can go into the classrooms and spoil them and leave."

In fact, going into the classrooms and teaching a lesson in each one was one of the first things she did in an effort to learn about the children.

Purcell told the students that they can always make an appointment with her if they want to talk. She said some of the older students have done so. She is still struggling to learn the names of all 286 students, but her goal is to learn them as soon as possible.

The demands a long day, Purcell said she gets to school at 8 a.m. and does not leave until 6 p.m., but she has energy to spare. "I love the variety. I can come in in the morning and have one little thing to do, and when I leave that one little thing is still there because so many other things have come up."

She said she spends more time in her office than she would like, but that, she said, will change as she learns more about the workings of the school. The first things she had to find out as a new principal were "who does what, where," she said.

Purcell speaks to Richard Young, who was principal of the Muraco School for 21 years before he made the move to Vinson-Owen, almost every day. She said she also talks to the department's other principals and gets regular telephone calls from Assistant Superintendents Bob Fit-gerald and David Ackerman.

"I walked in and there were so many things that had to be done," Purcell said of how she decided what to do first. Besides the catching up she had to do because she began after the school year started, the elementary schools are now going through an accreditation process that will take between 12 and 15 months.

It is a time when, according to Purcell, "the school intensely studies itself." It must develop a school philosophy, do a survey of the parents and students to see if the school is serving the community in a way that's best for it, analyze subject curriculum, and the use of school facilities among other huge tasks. But Purcell, while admitting the process adds a lot of work to her already heavy load, has found the silver lining. "For me it's terrific," she said. "I'm going to learn a tremendous amount about the school that it otherwise would have taken me years to learn."

Purcell earned a master of business administration degree, but said that while she was in business school she realized the business world was not for her. "A lot of the people I met in business school weren't happy. They got extra money and promotions, but to what?"

She does admit the money was tempting, but said, "for me, there would be something lacking" with a job in the business world. Purcell said she believes teachers are underpaid. "It's a strange phenomenon," she said. "The public has a vested interest in education and they want their children to succeed, but nobody wants to pay extra taxes."

"Teachers work with something elusive," she said. "You can't measure what we do."

Money is not the goal for Purcell; it's her love of children and education that keeps her smiling. Not only does she love to be an educator, she loves to learn. Besides her M.B.A., Purcell has a master's in social work and continues to take adult education classes.

Soon she will start meeting with a new principal's group at Harvard University. "I like to keep learning new things," she said.

Purcell said she decided to apply for principal's jobs because, "I knew I wanted a drastic career change. I spent 17 years in the classroom without anything in between, no sabbaticals or leaves of absence. I did it for personal growth."

Inservice education is one of the first things Purcell mentions when she is asked about the pluses of the system. The number of students is another. "The size lends itself to greater flexibility and freedom," she said. Purcell previously taught at a school with 450 students.

The one thing she said she would like is a full-time guidance counselor. The school currently has one 1½ days a week. "The guidance counselor has a major role in the school," she said. "He is a liaison between the school and the home."

Overall, Purcell is more than just happy with her new job. "I really feel like I've been given a gift. I'm so happy to be here."

IF THEY WERE THE SAME PRICE, WHICH WOULD YOU BUY?

Now ask yourself the same question about double hung windows. But before you answer, consider the differences between a Marvin EZ Tilt Double Hung window and an Andersen® double hung window.

A Marvin double hung window has sash that tilt into the room for easy cleaning and maintenance. Andersen doesn't.

A Marvin double hung has a lower air infiltration rating than Andersen's published test results.

Marvin has a wood double hung window available in 98 standard sizes. Andersen doesn't have one.

A Marvin clad double hung is also available in 98 standard sizes. An Andersen clad double hung is available in 36 standard sizes.

A Marvin clad window has an aluminum clad sash and frame for a maintenance-free exterior, and an all-wood interior that accepts a beautiful finish. Only Andersen's frames are clad, in vinyl. The sash is pre-finished. A wood interior is available only when ordered with a white exterior finish.

A Marvin window can be ordered with authentic divided lites for a true Early American look. An Andersen window can't.

A Marvin window can be ordered with real wood grilles. An Andersen window has molded vinyl grilles only.

A Marvin window is available with jamb extensions already installed by a factory expert. An Andersen window isn't, which can lead to expensive adjustments on the job site.

The comparisons could go on, but we think you get the point.

NOW, MARVIN QUALITY AT AN ANDERSEN PRICE

The simple law of economics would suggest a premium product can command a premium price. And Marvin Windows have.

But now Marvin has lowered that price. Lowered the price it costs to put the best wood double hung in your plans. The kind of window that not only sells customers, but sells homes.

We can't guarantee this price reduction will last forever, but why wait around to find out? See your Marvin dealer before you place your next window order.

Who knows? With the way Marvin windows sell homes, you may not care how much the car on the left costs.

For more information, call toll-free 1-800-346-5128. (In Minnesota, call 1-800-552-1167) Or write, Marvin Windows, Warroad, MN 56763.

COMING EVENTS

Getting ready

Kenneth Segal, left, and Robert M. Hallisey Jr. rehearse for the upcoming Winchester Players production of "Table Manners," a comedy by Alan Ayckbourne. Reservations for the play, which will be produced at the Unitarian Church the first two weekends in November, are being accepted at 721-1707.

Winton readies
Holiday Fair

Nancy McMahon, chairman of the Winton Gift Shop at the Winchester Hospital and Mary Jean Robison, assistant chairman, are busy making plans for the annual holiday fair.

This year's fair will be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, from noon to 8:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 5, from 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. and Friday, Nov. 6, from 9:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Winchester Hospital.

A large selection of Christmas decorations, cards, wrapping paper, silk flower arrangements, a wealth of stocking stuffers, and many gifts and toys have been selected by the Winton Shop's buyers for this year's Holiday Fair. There will also be a table of handcrafted items by the Friends of the Winchester Hospital.

Proceeds benefit the Winchester Hospital. All workers are volunteers. Holiday items will be sold in the newly renovated Winton Club Gift Shop from Nov. 9 through Christmas.

Holly Berry Fair runs Nov. 5 and 6

The Women's Association of the First Congregational Church on the Common is hosting its annual Holly Berry Fair on Wednesday, Nov. 4 from 6 to 9 p.m. and Thursday, Nov. 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The festivities include an a la carte supper the evening of Nov. 4 at 6 p.m. and a luncheon ($5 cost) Nov. 5 at 11:30 a.m.

There will be a variety of items for sale and auction. Proceeds will go to charity. For more information call 729-9180. Admission is free.

Sodality to meet Nov. 3

Saint Mary's Blessed Virgin Sodality will meet Tuesday, Nov. 3, in the Parish Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Paul G. Kelley, spiritual director. A presentation by Rosalee Oakley, executive director of gravestone studies, will follow.

Parent-faculty association to look at teenage life

"Drugs, Sex and Rock & Roll" — an intimate portrait and discussion about teenage life in Winchester — will be the topic for the Winchester High School Parent-Faculty Association meeting at WHS Nov. 17 at 7:30 p.m.

Howard Sherman and David Margolis, licensed, certified social workers in Winchester, will kick off the 1987/88 Parent-to-Parent program for the WHS PFA with this program. Both Sherman and Margolis have years of experience in working with teens and parents on issues of adolescence.

The evening will include parental participation and question-and-answer session. Parents may call Judy Bush, president of the WHS PFA (729-7489) or Sherman or Margolis (729-2070) with any topics or questions that they would like to see addressed.

590 WEEI AM to broadcast storm cancellations

Newsradio 590 WEEI AM, through its computerized Storm Alert System, will broadcast school cancellations for the Winchester School System.

Beginning at 5 a.m., cancellations will be read at both 6 and 30 minutes past the hour. Cancellations will be continuously updated throughout the day.

Storm alert broadcasts will also include updates on daycare and business closings, and travel, transit and weather conditions.

Next Halloween I get to wear the ears.

Author's edit

Author Jeffrey Kelley, formerly of Winchester, gives Marek Kozubal, a sixth grader at Ambrose School, a few tips on his writing. Kelley read the stories of older Ambrose students and helped them with organization. Kelley's books, "Tramp Steamer and the Silver Bullet" and "The Basement Baseball Club," have been read by many of the students.

Sixth grader writes on Constitution

This year the sixth graders at Lincoln School have written skits about the Constitution to celebrate its 200 anniversary.

These skits have taken a lot of effort, and everyone has given ideas and help preparing the skits. First everyone gathered information about the Constitution. Then the students split into groups of seven or eight people.

For weeks they prepared our skits on what really happened at the convention. We wrote and rehearsed our humorous skits and songs.

We are all proud of our work and are excited about performing our skits this week.

Mountaineer tells of his adventures

Photo-journalist and mountain climber Rob Taylor will speak at McCall Junior High School, Thursday, Nov. 5, at 10 a.m. He will tell of his adventures in remote mountain ranges of the Soviet Union and in Africa.

Taylor incorporates his narrative with slide show of his experiences in these seldom-traveled areas of the world. He will also refer to excerpts from the two books he wrote as a result of these trips, "The Breach" and "The Red Hills of Russia". The books will be available for purchase after his appearance.

Parents are welcome to attend Taylor's presentation, which is made possible by the Enrichment Committee.

BU graduates two

Winchesterites Gerald B. Edwards Jr. and Robert R. Tietsch were among 979 students awarded academic degrees at Boston University this fall.

Edwards received a master's degree in geology. Tietsch was awarded a bachelor's degree in history.

COMMENT

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

When looking a gift horse in the mouth be sure to pry it open real wide

When Arthur Griffin offered to donate a museum containing his entire portfolio to the town, he could never have imagined the town would make the gift impossible. He was willing to see Winchester whole in a number of areas, design and building costs, maintenance, management and endowment, in return for the right to build the museum on town-owned land.

Now he has been driven to spending even more of his own money to realize what may be his last dream. He is 83 years old.

The conservation group that opposed his use of the town's park land may have a point. There isn't much open space left in aggressively pro-development Winchester. The little that remains should be a resource for all to enjoy.

Marcia Morris, a spokesperson for those opposing the museum, has said that a gift that you don't want isn't a gift. That certainly is true. If someone gives you something you don't want and then takes something away that you treasure, the exchange is uneven. Griffin intended to give something, but he wanted something in return, public land.

However, the judgement as to whether the town should or should not give up its land is moot. Not wanting the aggravation of dealing with cantankerous official bodies and snarling residents, Griffin shot first. He is moving his museum to private land. If he cannot get a decent site in town, he will be forced to take his photographs somewhere else.

A question can therefore be asked after the fact. Was the town in error in harassing the man?

Unavoidably, the greatness of Griffin's work comes into focus, so to speak. Is he to color photography what Ansel Adams was to black and white? As lay people, the good burghers of Winchester cannot be called upon to know how history will finally judge Arthur Griffin.

But suppose for a moment that he is built of the same timber Adams was. Winchester would lose untold fame and revenue by alienating him. Some towns make their entire living by association with a great personage. When tourists come to Boston from, say, France or Nebraska, they want to know what there is in the region to see. If they are told that there is a lovely permanent exhibition in Winchester, the extra 10 miles, when they have come all the way across the ocean or prairie, is trivial. They want to see what New England has to offer.

Griffin's work documents a wide swath of New England history. Many of his scenes are gone now, as rampant growth has overtaken the quiet backwaters of the region, and suburbs stalk the countryside.

Certainly for what they are, his photographs couldn't be any better. They are technically as perfect as the medium will allow. They also are composed beautifully. There is a tranquility about them that calms the soul. But are they great? Only time will tell. But the town must ask itself, if he were Pablo Picasso, would they reject his museum?

Now for a moment let us take the other tack. Let's suppose that his work is trivial and commercial, and that he has become merely rich by selling gaudy images to corporate America, and now in his old age wants to build himself a mausoleum like an Egyptian Pharaoh.

Then the town would be absolutely right in denying him the use of its land. Personal monuments without other merit belong on private land. But people travel halfway around the world to see the pyramids.

So the merits of the case really rest on an aesthetic judgement that no wise person should be prepared to make.

In the meantime, Griffin has been personally hurt by the innuendi that have been floated about in connection with his museum. He thought he was giving the town something valuable that it would appreciate. Some people do appreciate his gesture. But others do not.

In the end money talks and Griffin may walk. If he were destitute and without friends, he might be in worse shape now, but by digging deeper into his own pockets, Griffin is going to solve his problems.

He says the museum is likely to make money through the sale of calendars and prints as well as the rental of exhibition space. Far from being a financial burden on the town, the museum in all likelihood would contribute to it, at least indirectly. And that is to say nothing of its artistic and historical value.

Griffin doesn't really need Winchester; he loves Winchester. It has been his home for many years. He came to the town, not on bended knee with hat in hand, but with a gift that he thought the town would value.

He has not been treated with the respect he deserves. Whip Saltmarsh has said that the articles relating to Griffin's project will be indefinitely postponed. Town meeting will have nothing further to say about the museum.

Winchester will be lucky if Griffin finds a suitable site in town. Then they will really get something for nothing.

Roger L. Kay

If Arthur Griffin can't find a place in Winchester to house his photos, he may have to take them somewhere else.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Schwartzman lauds Dewald on several points

TO THE EDITOR:

On, my my. Did I ever rub a raw nerve close to home! Delightedly, Mr. Dewald's letter, that supposedly was in rebuttal to mine, actually fully supported my main point.

Mr. Dewald concurs that, to quote his words, "The town has real issues to deal with." Absolutely right! So why aren't Mark "The Missing" and "Metoo" doing so? No doubt Mr. Dewald voted for both these "honorable selectmen" to represent him. Where? On a Winchester sidewalk or at weekly board meetings? Did Mr. Dewald vote to be represented only when Mrs. Muggia very capably conducts the meetings? Did he vote to be represented only on issues that were going to go his way? Did Mr. Dewald's ballot list either of these men as candidate for the position of board vice chairman?

My letter was not an example of debate, dignified or otherwise, but rather a sardonic commentary on the behavior of two selectmen. Perhaps said twosome can be capoled into engaging in debate, hopefully dignified, where it is supposed to take place: the weekly selectmen's meetings.

In closing, I do want to commend Mr. Dewald for reaffirming that my wife, Misty, chaired exemplary campaigns for both Mrs. Muggia and Mr. Schmitt. Hopefully, other candidates possessing their innate qualities of dignity, dedication, and especially selflessness will come forward to join them and Mr. Deering on a board of truly select persons.

Dewald says long-range housing plan is not a plan

TO THE EDITOR:

After reading the Long-Range Housing Plan submitted by Pattison, Slavet and Associates, I came to the conclusion that they submitted a report on housing, but not a plan.

At the public hearing, held on Oct. 22 at the Jenks Center, it was confirmed by Mr. Mortensen, chairman of the special study committee on housing, that indeed their report was not a long-range housing plan.

It is difficult to understand why the town still does not have a long-range housing plan, especially after Town Meeting voted some $20,000 to hire a consultant to put together just such a plan. More remarkable, without a comprehensive plan, three members of the Board of Selectmen voted to sponsor articles on the warrant to implement the long-range housing plan that doesn't exist.

In other words, Town Meeting will be asked to vote into existence a housing development department, the majority of whose members will be appointed by the Board of Selectmen to implement a non-existent housing plan. Therefore, Town Meeting has no option but to defeat the housing articles. If they are approved, Town Meeting will relinquish its legislative responsibilities on housing in the future.

History tells us that whenever a legislative branch relinquishes such duties democracy is in serious trouble. Hence, the housing articles must be defeated as they now stand because a housing plan must be approved first. In other words, the town must have a housing plan that clearly states its objectives, namely the number and types of units to be developed, precisely what town lands will be used, and what the long-range costs will be to the taxpayers.

Under Article 2, it is proposed that Winchester join the Massachusetts Housing Partnership (MHP). The MHP only works (supplying some housing below market value) if the town donates land to contractors for development. Since the Pattison/Slavet report mentions Amberwood Drive, are we in fact voting to sell town-owned land along Amberwood Drive singled out when other town-owned lands such as Glen Green, land between Highland Avenue and Stevens Street and Denett Road, among others, were being ignored?

It seems reasonable to put low and moderate income housing close to public transportation since there are no jobs in town. It is inconceivable that Pattison, Slavet and Associates could have ignored this fact if indeed they wrote an objective proposal. How could our highly-paid consultants miss such a prime building site as the site at Highland Avenue, a 10-minute walk to the center of town railroad station?

It is clear to me that if Winchester joins the Massachusetts Housing Partnership at this time, the town of Winchester can kiss its open spaces good-bye. In fairness to all neighborhoods, if the town uses one open space the town must then use them all. That is the only fair way that the housing can be shared equally throughout the whole town.

There are big profits to be made in low and moderate income housing, especially in a desirable community like Winchester. In some communities, contractors reportedly now have difficulty selling their condominiums, and this makes Winchester a prime target at this time. Therefore, it is no coincidence that the contractors, lawyers, etc. are the big pushers behind this latest "innovative" scheme.

Robert R. Dewald

Town employees' timely warning saves house on fire

TO THE EDITOR:

Sometimes my faith in my fellow man is sorely tested. There are so many nasty, callous people on the roads and highways and in so many day-to-day contacts. But last Monday, that faith was rewarded in spades.

Two Winchester town employees, Richard Gately and Brian Cleary, were driving by my house that morning and saw the roof on fire. I was in the house, but had no indication of the fire until I heard their knock on the door to tell me to call the fire department.

Everything was under control in an hour or so, but I shudder to think how serious it could have been if the fire had more time to grow. These men, and the men (and woman) of the town fire department are caring, conscientious and heroic.

No amount of thanks can say what I really feel. I just love those guys.

Mary Cullen

P.S. And disregard the bad puns about the hot dogs and marshmallows. O.K.?

We Americans pay fickle tribute to our luminous stars

By TERRY MAROTTA

In this age of incandescent stardom and laser beam fame, the celebrity suffers a lot of wear-and-tear.

It's no easy thing to be a bigshot, what with the facelifts and the tabloid interviews and all those cars you have to maintain.

Even folks closely associated with stars have a rough time of it, historically, sometimes their pleasant facade cracks just a tad and reveals a certain irritation with the luminary. Nora Joyce, for example, said once about her famous novelist husband James, "I guess the man's a genius, but what a dirty mind he has. Hasn't he?"

Stars must endure the glittering cruelties of a fickle public and the occasional barbs of those closest to them. Why? Because a star is a sun, and suns are hard to look upon, especially at close range.

Take Brigitte Nielsen, formerly the wife of all four Rockers and Rambo One Through Three, the fabulous ly wealthy, fabulously pectoral Sly Stallone. For the time she held the job, Gitta must have found it hard to be his adoring satellite. What he needed was a drab and grateful peacenik. A peacenik herself, she couldn't be that.

With her record-length legs and her bottle blonde hair, with that secretary/companion to whom she's given gifts of both a nose-job and silicone implants, she needed too much of the stage. She made poor Sylvester crazy, they say, lolling around half-dressed in this or that fortress, while he pumped iron with his goons and cooled out afterward in front of his VCR. Both were suns, it seems, at least in their own minds, she was too busy shining herself to reflect back to him any loving dazzle.

The record does not show how those closest to Michael Jackson feel. Michael is single, of course. He loves Laz Taylor, he says, but when he asked her to marry him, she issued a prim shocked no in response. He sleeps alone, if he sleeps at all, in a specialized tank designed to extend his days and further postpone, perhaps, his passage through puberty.

Some find Michael silly. He keeps a slew of zoo animals in his home, his best friend is a chimp named Bubbles, and he attempted, six months or so ago, to purchase the poor twisted bones of the Elephant Man from a London Medical Society, who themselves issued him a prim shocked no.

In answer to his critics published in a recent People Magazine, he writes the following, with grammar, spelling and punctuation that would curl the hair of any fourth-grade teacher in the land.

"Most people don't know me, that is why they write such things in which most is not true," he states. "I must endure, for the world, for the children." And finally, "Have mercy, for I've been bleeding a long time now."

I know what he means. The rest of us have done some bleeding ourselves now and then, and the world's children aren't even depending on us.

It's a terrible responsibility, being famous and owing all that entertainment and spiritual guidance to the hungry yearning mass of humanity.

Some folks laugh at Michael. I am not one of them. His music is plain wonderful, and he can comfort himself with the words of Benjamin Disraeli, who said that the defects of great men are the consolation of the dunces.

We pay a fickle tribute to our stars; even those married to them do. First we love 'em and then we revile 'em.

Years after Joyce's death, that same supportive spouse Nora said to someone, "What's he doing under the ground, that idiot?" Even in the sod, the great man couldn't escape the contumely of the individual presumably closest to him.

The lesson bears reflection. Andy Warhol used to say that in the future everyone would be famous for 15 minutes. As for me, I think I'll pass on my quarter-hour; I'd rather sit around in my dunce cap and hang on to my friends.

Residents petition to preserve parks

TO THE EDITOR:
We the undersigned residents of Winchester object to the redesignation of any park land in the Town of Winchester.

Should any redesignation of park land come before the state legislature, we hope Rep. Saltmarsh will work and vote against such changes, and help us keep beautiful what open space we have left.

Griffin exhibits at library

Works by photographer Arthur Griffin will be on display during November in the Winchester Public Library art gallery. This exhibit will coincide with discussion of the proposed Arthur Griffin Grist Mill Museum of Photography under Warrant Articles 17 and 18 in November Town Meeting.

Featured in the exhibit will be an artist's rendering of the proposed museum by architect Barry Wills. The museum would maintain the entire collection of Griffin's photographs and display traveling exhibits of other photographers.

The library gallery is open during regular library hours.

Griffin offers to 'go private'

TO THE EDITOR:
Five months ago, State Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh and I came to the Winchester Board of Selectmen and as the Star said, "dropped a bomb on the selectmen. A pleasant bomb, that is."

We announced that I wanted to build and endow a self-supporting replica of an old New England grist mill for a photography museum for my collection of photographs taken over the past 60 years as well as interesting photos of other photographers. This Museum will have exhibits of my color images, traveling shows of nationally known photographers, and will sell framed color prints, calendars and my books.

The large fieldstone gallery would be available for Winchester Art groups for their large exhibitions and would provide scholarships for Winchester High School seniors who are going on to major in photography in college.

Selectman Francis Sopper suggested that the "selectmen form a committee to get started on this before he changes his mind..."

Well, I haven't changed my mind as to building the museum, but I have discovered that to build it on town-owned land (by far the best land in town) would be very difficult. The conservation board is completely against anything being built on park land. Frankly, I agree that perhaps they should object for they are in existence to preserve park land.

Therefore, I believe that I should try and find a suitable private site, hopefully in Winchester, on which to erect the museum.

Griffin's grist mill photo museum stirs up opposition

By ROGER L. KAY
Star Editor

The gift of a photography museum Arthur Griffin wishes to give the town of Winchester is proving more difficult get rid of than the donor anticipated.

Griffin, a highly-successful commercial photographer, decided last May to spend his own money to build a museum and endow it with his life's work if a suitable site could be found on public land in town.

In addition, he offered to fund a scholarship program for New England photographers out of his estate and set up a foundation to maintain the museum so that it would not become a burden to the town. "The whole thing is going to be definitely self-supporting," he promised.

To convey his desires with a certain amount of force, he asked Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh to present his proposal to the selectmen at one of their regular meetings. The reaction of the board was extremely positive. Selectmen Chairman Judith Muggia called Griffin, "...one of our treasures."

Griffin expressed a particular interest in the land tentatively called Wadleigh Park. It is close to the town center and the Aberjona River.

Being close to water would go well with the museum's design, that of an old New England grist mill.

The selectmen agreed unanimously to get to work and try to realize the offer. The Wadleigh site ran into immediate opposition by neighbors committed to preserving the open green space there. The Conservation Commission voted unanimously to oppose the use of the site.

An alternative site was found on Shore Road. The selectmen drafted two articles for fall Town Meeting, Articles 17 and 18, to cover the legal aspects of leasing public land to the non-profit organization, the Arthur Griffin Old Grist Mill Museum, Inc. The articles were structured around the Shore Road site.

Griffin's architect, Richard Wills of Royal, Barry, Wills, had already produced site plans for the Wadleigh site. Griffin says the building "would have taken up one-tenth of the site." The plan called for a "lawn and sprinkler system all around the building."

The architect told Griffin that the Shore Road site could be used with some minor modifications to the original design. A builder in town, Charlie Westgate, offered to build the structure at his cost, according to Griffin.

But then the project ran into further difficulties. A grass-roots group began a ground swell to deny the use of any town land for the museum. The Conservation Commission backed them up. According to Griffin, the "conservation board didn't want to give us any land at all."

Conservation Commission Chairman Jerry Cura says he thinks the "sense of the commission is that they would oppose the use of park land for solid structures." Cura said the use of other public land might be acceptable to the board.

A petition, aimed directly at the museum, circulated and signed by a number of residents, seeks to keep all park land from being developed. The petition appears elsewhere on this page. Marcia Morris, a Wadleigh neighbor, led the signature drive. She expressed dismay at the prospect of all the town's green space being eaten by building projects, well-intentioned or otherwise.

In addition she said she was worried about the possibility that photographic chemicals from photo labs associated with the museum might pollute the river. Griffin says he has no intention of having photographic facilities in the museum.

His avenues thus cut off, Griffin has turned to the possibility of putting his museum on private land, land he will have to purchase himself. His letter appears on this page.

According to Selectmen Muggia and Thomas Schmitt, Saltmarsh told them that a motion will be made to indefinitely postpone the two articles when they come up at Town Meeting.

Griffin has "two or three sites in mind" but has not yet decided what to do.

He hopes to keep the museum in town.

OBITUARIES

Margaret Russell

Margaret C. Russell of West Medford died Oct. 24 at Mt. Auburn Hospital in Cambridge. She was 75.

Mrs. Russell was born in Winchester and lived here for 54 years. She worked many years ago for Federal Distillers in Cambridge for 15 years.

Mrs. Russell had been a retired member of the Teamsters Union Local 25.

She is survived by a son, Alfred N. Russell of Boynton Beach, Fla.; two daughters, Alice M. Saleme of West Medford, and Elizabeth A. McBroom of Frederic, Mich.; 11 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

A funeral service was held at St. Raphael's Church in West Medford, Oct. 29.

Burial was at Oak Grove Cemetery in Medford.

Arrangements were by the Lane Funeral Home.

In lieu of flowers, donations in her memory may be made to the Massachusetts Chapter Lupus Foundation, 88 Tremont St., Boston.

Dennis Twomey

The Rev. Dennis Francis Twomey of Cambridge, former pastor at St. Mary's Church, died Oct. 16 in St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton. He was 57.

Father Twomey was pastor of St. Mary's from 1985 until earlier this year. He was parochial vicar in St. Peter's Church in Cambridge at the time of his death.

He studied in St. John's Seminary in Brighton and was ordained in February, 1959, in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross by Cardinal Richard Cushing. He received a master's degree in social work from Boston College in 1963 and a doctorate in social work from Brandeis University.

Father Twomey was an associate in family counseling in Boston for more than 20 years. During that time, he was in residence in St. Lawrence Church in Chestnut Hill and St. John the Evangelist Church in Wellesley Hills.

He was an assistant in St. Theresa's Church in North Reading in 1959 and became an assistant in St. Leo's Church in Dorchester in 1961. He served as Parochial Vicar in Sacred Heart Church in Roslindale in 1984.

Father Twomey is survived by his mother, Mary Twomey of Cambridge; two sisters, Margaret Hannibal of New York and Eleanor Rogan of Wayzata, Minn.; and three brothers, Daniel Twomey of Cambridge and John and James Twomey, both of Belmont.

The funeral Mass was said by Cardinal Bernard Law Oct. 10 in St. Mary's Church.

Heidi Diercks

Heidi (Parrot) Diercks of Concord died at the Phillips House at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston Oct. 24 after a long battle with cancer. She was 38.

She was the wife of William E. Diercks, and lived in Concord for 10 years.

Mrs. Diercks was born in Boston on June 24, 1949, the daughter of Scott and Nonie Parrot. She graduated from Beaver Country Day School in Brookline and attended Boston University.

She was a member of the Parents Association at Nashoba, Brooks and Fenn School of Concord. Her favorite times were with her children. She was an active supporter of children's horse show competition.

Mrs. Diercks was a member of the Old North Bridge Hounds of Concord, the Millwood Hunt of Framingham, the Concord Country Club and The Country Club of Brookline.

She is survived by her husband, Bill; a son, Wylie; two daughters, Amy and Lexi, all of Concord; her parents, Scott and Nonie Parrot of Belmont; and a brother Kent Parrot of Belmont.

Memorial service will be held in the Memorial Church at Harvard University today at 3 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, contributions in her memory may be Noble and Greenough School in Dedham or Belmont Hill School in Belmont.

Arrangements by the Joseph Dee and Son Funeral Home in Concord.

League describes warrant articles

Article 1: This is a general procedural article to hear reports from the town officers and the Finance Committee.

Article 2: This article creates a seven-person board to promote affordable housing in Winchester, four members appointed by the selectmen and three representatives from other boards or authorities. The Housing Partnership Board would monitor affordable housing efforts in Winchester, seek funds and opportunities for housing and make recommendations to the selectmen, the housing authority and the Planning Board. The creation of the partnership would not decrease the authority of existing town entities with regard to housing responsibilities.

Article 3: Articles Three and Four are responses to recommendations of a housing study committee. They are offered in the alternative. Article Three creates a new town department to increase affordable housing and provide some other services such as municipal planning and grantsmanship. The department will cost at least $50,000 per year but it is expected that state and federal money may defray Winchester's expense.

Article 4: Article Four calls for the use of a consultant to assist town officials in promoting affordable housing. Should Article Three be approved, Article Four will be indefinitely postponed.

Article 5: This article adds a bylaw which specifically prohibits disposing of snow, ice and leaves by putting them on town streets.

Article 6: Article Six provides for the non-criminal disposition of violations of town bylaws which carry specific penalties. This procedure, provided by state statute, allows the town to assess a fine without applying for the issuance of a complaint.

The article also sets fines for certain bylaw violations.

Article 7: This article proposes adding an arithmetical formula to the table of dimensional requirements to restrict buildable lots with long tails.

Article 8: Through an agreement with the commonwealth, Winchester has committed itself to build seven units of housing for low and moderate income families. Two are completed. The remaining five are expected to cost about $124,000 more than the $500,000 provided by the executive office of communities and development. This article would appropriate the money needed to complete the five units.

Article 9: This article permits the acceptance of a gift of money from the family and friends of the late Betsey G. Morton for the public library.

Article 10: Article Ten supplements the state wetland regulations with a wetlands by law drafted to address Winchester's needs. The bylaws decrease the size of an area needed to trigger Conservation Commission jurisdiction, specify the data required by the commission in plans and drawings and set a permit fee schedule.

Article 11: This article seeks to have the town accept the recommendations of the Committee on Names for a name for the park at the intersection of Mount Vernon and Washington Streets. The committee has not yet recommended a name. The article's proponents hope that naming the park will make the public more aware of this land's park status.

Article 12: Article 12 limits alcoholic beverage licenses to the downtown center business district. At present, these licenses may be awarded to restaurants with at least 100 seats in the general business district, the local business district, the center businesses district and the limited industrial district.

Article 13: This article is advisory in nature, directing the selectmen and the Conservation Commission to consider the acquisition by the town of certain land near Horn Pond Mountain. This land was listed as third on the Conservation Commission's acquisition list and supports some rare plants. The land was recently sold to a developer who has proposed building about 100 units of congregate housing for the elderly.

Article 14: This article proposes increasing the amount of life insurance provided to town employees and retirees and calls for the necessary appropriation.

Article 15: This article seeks a vote on accepting Massachusetts General Law Chapter 32B, Section 7A, which permits payment of more than half of the health insurance premiums of town employees to be a collective bargaining issue. At present Winchester is required to pay for half the premiums at a cost of more than one million dollars.

Article 16: This article calls for a five person appointed commission to evaluate the fire department.

Article 17: Articles 17 and 18 relate to the offer of photographer Arthur Griffin to donate his photograph collection to Winchester along with the funds to construct a building to house the collection. Article 17 authorizes the town to lease land on Shore Road across Judkin Pond from the Jenks Center for this purpose.

Article 18: This article allows the town to seek permission from the legislature to lease the land on Shore Road.

Article 19: Article 19 rezones portions of the Woburn Loop from general residence district and limited light industrial district to multiple family residential.

Article 20: This article permits the sale of a portion of the Woburn Loop north of Swanton Street. Both Article 19 and 20 relate to land which has been the subject of detailed discussions between town officials and developers.

Article 21: This article decreases the mandated width of off street parking spots to 8½ feet from 9 feet and decreases the depth to 17 feet for angle parking and to 20 feet for parallel parking from 19 and 22 feet respectively. In large parking lots, this article would increase the number of spaces. In smaller lots it would increase the amount of land available for greenery.

Article 22: Article 22 decreases the necessary frontage on a cul-de-sac from 200 feet to 50 feet in the multiple family residential district.

Article 23: This is a general procedural article to permit the acceptance of committee reports, the creation and dissolution of committees and the funding of committees.

MORTGAGE WEATHER REPORT.

They say that in New England if you don't like the weather, wait a minute. New England mortgage rates can be tough to predict, too. One way to gain the upper hand is with a Convertible Rate Mortgage from CambridgePort. That way you can start off at a low rate, and lock in an even lower rate when you see the chance. We have two sensible plans, both with one of the lowest lifetime caps around. And we don't charge you a fee to convert, which is the whole idea in the first place. If you're not sure which way the wind is blowing, now you can take the pressure.

Convertible Plan A.

Pay half a point, float at a competitive adjustable rate with the opportunity to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate	9.72%
Annual Percentage Rate	9.78%

Convertible Plan B.

Pay two points, and we will give you an even better adjustable rate for the first year, then let it float until you decide to nail it down to a good fixed rate.

Interest Rate	7.97%
Annual Percentage Rate	9.76%

Other Facts.

No fee and minimal paperwork when you convert to a fixed rate. Convert anytime between months 13 and 60. Annual cap: 2%. Lifetime cap: 5%. Margin: 2.50%. For homes throughout Massachusetts call Rebecca Taber at 661-4900 to find out more.

WINCHESTER'S 350TH ANNIVERSARY

School system fetes town's 350th

350 years ago, the settlement of Waterfield, later to become Winchester, was laid out. Recently, an ad hoc group of citizens who wanted to see this event commemorated approached the town, and the 350th Committee was appointed at last spring's Town Meeting. The committee, led by Dan Chane, set as its goal to interest all groups and citizens in town to join in the celebration, and Winchester schools have done so.

The year-long theme in the school system will be a "Celebration of the Arts" in the schools. The goal is to give all students in the elementary and junior high schools an opportunity to publicly express involvement in the arts during the months from January to June of 1988.

Major performances at Winchester High School are planned and will come from the music, art, home economics, industrial arts and English departments with additional events from various other departments. There will also be a focus on integrating the arts into the teaching of all subject matter.

All artists at Winchester High School will have an opportunity to participate in the early stages of the celebration. The townwide 350th Committee is seeking a logo, and high school students are encouraged to submit their ideas. All work submitted by fall Town meeting, will be displayed throughout the Town Meeting, and in November, a logo will be selected from those submitted.

The junior high school is planning a heritage fair for late March. The fair will involve the staff, students and parents, and will highlight townspeople's diverse backgrounds, as well as their similarities, through the medium of the arts.

The elementary schools have plans to involve their entire student body as well. A sample of the offerings include the Wax Museum with a focus on artists, the decades of dance and music, school musicals, and murals.

The Community Schools Association is considering making quilts for display at the schools with squares designed by students depicting various aspects of Winchester.

A calendar of all the events and dates will be available in the near future. The celebration is an opportunity for everyone to participate and learn about the town's heritage.

Annie Sullivan

SMU admissions officer comes to Winchester

An admissions officer from Southeastern Massachusetts University will visit Winchester High School at 1:30 p.m. Oct. 28.

The officer, Annie Sullivan will supply interested students with admissions bulletins and information about the university's facilities and programs.

SCHOOL NEWS

Nursery school enrollment full

The 1987-88 school year is well underway at the Winchester Cooperative Nursery School with full enrollment reported in all classes.

The two-morning class is once again being taught by Jean Mortensen, director of the school.

Mary Jo Curley is assisted by Judy Andriesse in the five-morning class. The four-afternoon class is being taught by a new member of the WCNS staff, Phyllis Gleason, a former WCNS parent. Gleason received her bachelor's degree from Wheaton College, and earned her masters of education degree from Lesley College. To this strong academic background, Gleason brings teaching experience gained in Norton, Stoneham and Melrose schools.

Extended Day Program activities are conducted under the supervision of Pat Malcolm, assisted by Carol Beals, Chris DiSarcina and Judy Andriesse.

WCNS activities to date include a fall workday, in which a wide range of needs and projects were accomplished in support of indoor and outdoor activities of the school. An orientation took place in September for parents, including first aid training for parent helpers given by Dr. Richard d'Entremont and Dr. Peter Rotolo.

An open house, dedicated as "special friends night" was held for each class, and Mortensen reports the Curriculum Enrichment Committee's excellent progress with the creation of a special environment room for each class. To date, special focus has been given to the color red, to seeds of many kinds, and to the creation of a dinosaur unit as well as an undersea unit.

The Board of Directors for 1987-88 includes Margie Harvey, president, Linda Tirella, vice president, Donna Skerry, secretary, Robert and Carol Saivo, co-treasurers and Gail LaRocca, assistant treasurer.

Jenks building and grounds committee prepares for winter

By LEONOR RICH

Special to the Star

The vast amount of preparation that is necessary in securing a large building for seasonal changes is being handled by 16 members of the Jenks Senior Center Building and Grounds Committee, chaired by Anthony Nowlan.

This group of men and women is comprised of Vincent T. Berger, Richard Clarke, John F. Corcoran, Joanne Galvin, Helen H. Hodgdon, Lawrence A. Hutchings, Evelyn M. Jenks, Randolph L. Kazazian, Claire Masters, Mal Masters, Pauline D. McGuigan, Anthony Nowlan, Edwin L. Palmer Jr., Byron S. Peterson, Alvin Wallace and James Wilson. Some of these members have served since the inception of the committee, when it was titled the House Committee.

Maintaining the Jenks Senior Center building and grounds in a safe and sound condition for the comfort of its members, developing and implementing procedures for the protection of the building and its contents and supervising the work of the part-time custodian and services by various contractors are of prime importance in a smooth-running building.

Among the responsibilities for getting things ready for the winter season are the following:

- service the roof-top air conditioning unit, draining the freon;
- disconnect the automatic lawn sprinkler system;
- install storm windows on the pond side of the older part of the building;
- make arrangements for the completion of work on the alarm system, which is connected directly with the Winchester Police Department;
- handle the ordinary maintenance activities such as cleaning carpets, curtains, windows, vacuuming rooms, etc.;
- check the lighting fixtures frequently;
- check for safety the automatic gas heating system for the entire building.

Grounds
Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm and Nursery landscaping staff have worked constantly on the plantings around the new wing ever since Open House this past June 14.

Flowers have been replaced seasonally with the present chrysanthemums where the earlier summer flowers bloomed. The excellent attention that Mahoney has given during the growing season has kept the grounds around the new wing perpetually beautiful.

Don Ellis, a horticulturist with great expertise, is employed by the Board of Trustees. He keeps the lawns, the plants, the shrubbery and the trees manicured to perfection. The roses at the entrance of the center thrive under his special care, continuing to bloom until mid-November as one of the last vestiges of the summer season.

The appearance of the building and grounds is a credit to the committee that holds the Jenks Senior Center in good custody, along with the specialists who have been so skillful in attending to the grooming of the grounds. Don Ellis and Mahoney's Rocky Ledge landscape staff.

Eating together program at Jenks Senior Center

People who plan to attend the "Eating Together" program that began this Wednesday noon at Jenks Senior Center, must make reservations at least by 11 a.m. the day before the meal.

Catered lunches will be served each Wednesday and Friday with the exception of holidays. It will be helpful to the planning committee for sign-ups to be made immediately for the first meal in order to determine the degree of interest in the program. Meals will be served at the modest cost of $1 per day.

Those willing to assist with registration, table setting, serving and/or cleaning up after the meal are requested to give their names and telephone numbers to the Jenks Senior Center receptionist (721-7136).

Alzheimer's disease to be discussed at Jenks Center

The Jenks Center Health Committee is sponsoring a presentation of information Nov. 9 at 10:30 a.m. pertaining to the dreaded Alzheimer's disease that strikes too many loved ones.

Nancy S. Bartlett, Alzheimer's specialist at Minute Man Home Care Corporation and Marilyn Mulligan, director of Program Planning at the Community Family Adult Day Health Center in West Medford, will provide valuable information to assist family members in coping with this severe problem.

They will give some typical symptoms of early recognition such as loss of memory, impaired cognitive ability, coordination of motor skills, mood changes, ability to carry out activities of daily living, communication losses and other significant personality changes.

A general invitation is extended to all who are interested and especially to those who have family members or friends who are afflicted.

Mini Fair

With one fair in the immediate past, a Mini Fair on Saturday, Dec.

5, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., is the next activity for the Ways and Means committee. The committee has not been dissolved yet for the year 1987.

All chairpersons will appreciate the donations of articles for their booths. The snack bar will be open during the fair hours.

Bingo

The popular game of Bingo will now be played in the new auditorium to provide more space for the players.

The starting time is 1:15 p.m. on the last Friday of each month.

Health benefits counsellors

The Health Benefits Counsellors will assist with getting material ready for seniors to send for financial returns on prescription drugs. Make an appointment with any one of the 11 trained elder advocates, all of whom are keeping abreast with the newest information from the health insurance sources.

Members are on duty at the Keep Well Clinic one morning each month for pre-arranged appointments; they make home visits to those people who are unable to come to the center.

Rug hooking

The rug-hooking class is scheduled for the first and third Tuesdays of each month from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. on the lower level in the craft room. Doris Reid, instructor, states that there is room for more people to come to learn the art.

Glee club

The Glee Club will meet on the first and third Tuesday of each month, barring holidays, from 10:30 a.m. to noon at the Jenks Senior Center. The new director, Betty McAdams, has had experience in directing a church choir during her residence on Cape Cod. She attended the Boston Conservatory of Music and the New England Conservatory, majoring in pianoforte. For the past three years, she has served as president of the Palmer Street Tenants' Association.

She is warmly welcomed at the Jenks Senior Center to continue with the directorship of the Glee Club done so ably by Bob Mulford for the past six years.

New members are invited to join the dozen songsters who enjoy singing together twice monthly.

Church Women United luncheon

The Church Women United luncheon sponsored by the women of the First Baptist Church will be held at the Jenks Senior Center Tuesday, Nov. 3 at noon.

Reservations should be made between Oct. 26 and Oct. 31. Please call Betty Newall, 729-1499, or Betty Matthews, 729-5876.

The entrance to the Jenks Senior Center is decorated with flowers during the entire growing season.

Buick puts the show on the road.

The 1988 Buick Regal. It's a showstopper.

This year, you'll see something that's truly new at the Auto Show.

But it's not a concept car or a one-of-a-kind custom creation. It's everything you'd imagine in a car of the future... available in a Buick you can drive today. The all-new 1988 Buick Regal. There's nothing like it on the American road.

Beautiful to drive. Sculpted in the wind tunnel, the new Regal's .305 coefficient of drag is the lowest in Buick's 85-year history. It's a sleek design that is shared with no other car in the world.

And Regal is the world's first coupe with 6-passenger room, 4-wheel independent suspension and 4-wheel power disc brakes, all standard. Beneath the graceful hood: a 2.8-litre V-6 engine with multi-port fuel injection, and the security of front-wheel-drive engineering.

Beautiful to be in... and behold. Inside, Regal is also beautifully new and richly Buick, with room for 6 adults, a generous 15.7-cubic-foot trunk and an impressive list of comfort, convenience and luxury features.

Come see the all-new Regal, and all the other exciting 1988 Buicks at the Auto Show. Then, buckle up and visit your Buick dealer. And put the new Regal on the road yourself.

dedicated to serving students on campus, the Resident Hall council creates an organization that can communicate directly with the students living in the residence halls. It also deals with any problems or requests that residents might have. It provides a variety of programs for the residents.

The Resident Hall Council consists of 14 students, elected at their building meetings at the beginning of the year. The council members serve as a voice for the students to the administration, and in particular the Student Life Office. Currently, the Resident Hall Council holds a formative role in the F&M move toward a more residential campus.

Purdy awarded Horace Mann grant

Pamela Chatterton Purdy of 30 Dix St. has just been awarded a Horace Mann grant in the Brookline public schools. This state-funded grant will be used to facilitate the incorporation of her recently published book, "Beyond the Babylist, A Story of an Adoption," in the Brookline school system.

The book is about the Purdy's inter-racial family, the prejudice they have encountered and how they have dealt with the pain and hatred of racism.

Purdy is a visual arts specialist in the Brookline schools. The book will be used as an auxiliary text in the fifth and eighth grades. It will be used in conjunction with the fifth grade's study of "the changing and diverse family" and the eighth grade's Holocaust curriculum, "Facing History and Ourselves."

Purdy's husband is the Rev. Dr. David A. Purdy, pastor of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Church.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Wife decries tone of debate

TO THE EDITOR:

I would like to respond to Mr. Dewald's rebuttal to the letter written by Carl Schwartzman. First, I agree with Mr. Dewald that there is nothing to be gained by ridiculing personalities ever - period. Furthermore, I think it is sad when people ridicule themselves by certain behaviors, and even sadder when the media considers such exploits as news.

Second, I am glad that Mr. Dewald agrees with Carl that the town has real issues with which to deal - which was the main idea, point or topic (if one will excuse my school marm terminology) of the aforesaid letter.

Third, I also agree that Mr. Schwartzman's letter was definitely not a dignified debate - I have a sneaky feeling after more than 27 years of being married to the man that he did not intend it to be. When he writes his letters he awaits in great anticipation my shocked (usually) reaction. Perhaps he is less happy with my tendency to correct errors and to bemoan the increasing amount of bad proofreading in all newspapers.

I even agree that Mr. Dewald has as much right to express his feeling concerning the letter as Mr. Schwartzman has in expressing his feelings concerning his views on what he has read in the papers and seen on Cable 19.

Where Mr. Dewald and I part is in his second paragraph, after he so kindly and accurately credits me with managing the campaigns of both Judie Muggia and Thomas Schmitt. He says, and I quote: "it is inconceivable that one so familiar with town politics would write such a letter independently." What that is supposed to mean, heaven only knows. Perhaps the Star left out a word - or phrase or line. Friends and my neighbors have jokingly interpreted the remark to mean that Mr. Dewald implies that my husband is incapable of writing such a letter all by himself.

If that is indeed what Mr. Dewald meant - fine, he got an insult in where intended. I would, however, refresh Mr. Dewald's memory that it was Mr. Schwartzman who directed some very detailed questions to both Mr. Dewald, and the successful candidate for the Housing Authority, Dennis O'Malley, at last spring's League-sponsored "Meet the Candidates."

My husband is quite capable of writing and speaking for himself.

If, on the otherhand, Mr. Dewald meant attack Mrs. Muggia and Thomas Schmitt, as his last sentence certainly implies, then I suggest it is he who insults the electorate. I would be the very last person who would slight an electorate who voted for my candidates - an electorate more able to separate personalities than Professor Dewald seems capable of. If my memory does not fail me, I seem to remember that in a recent election, Mrs. Sopper won an elected position, whereas in the last election Mr. Sopper lost his bid for town meeting membership.

Amy Binding scored five goals in the Oct. 23 game against Reading, four in the first half and one in the second. (Paul Drake Photo)

Binding's 5 sink Reading

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' varsity soccer team ended a busy week last Friday with a 6-0 romp over Reading as Amy Binding exploded for five goals against the hapless Rockettes. Earlier in the week, the Sachemettes were frustrated by pesky Arlington and had to settle for a 1-1 tie after cruising past Burlington, 4-0.

Debbie Nowell was a standout against Burlington picking up a hat trick and leading the Sachemette onslaught as they outshot the Red Devillets, 35-4. Cara McDonough set up the first two goals as she directed a penalty kick and a corner kick towards the goal and Nowell used her head, literally, to put each in the net. In the second half, Ingrid Spanjaard fed Nowell for her third goal before Binding rounded out the scoring after being sent in alone by Sandra Bennett.

The battle with Arlington was a hardfought match as the Spy Ponders looked for their first point ever against Winchester. The Sachemettes dominated play as they normally do but as has been too often the case this season, they had little to show for it. Denise Chabot was back in the lineup after recovering from a sprained ankle and it was not a moment too soon as Spanjaard went down early in the first half with a sprained ankle of her own. Nowell had the best chance to score in the first half but her header off a McDonough corner kick went just wide.

In the second half, Binding began to assert herself on offense as she constantly had the Arlington defense on its toes as she buzzed about the Ponder net. She had several chances set up by her aggressive play and feeds from the Sachemette halfbacks but her shots rolled past the left post. Finally, Binding found herself with an open net to shoot at but she was unceremoniously dumped by an Arlington fullback, setting up a penalty shot. Nowell took over from here and despite being harassed by a belligerent Arlington boys' soccer team on the sidelines, she coolly deposited the ball in the lower right corner of the net.

Although they only led by a goal, it seemed like it would be enough as they continued to carry the play. But Arlington never gave up and with only three minutes left, they stunned the Sachemettes by tying the game. Margaret Cunningham had a great chance to win the game, but her shot missed the post by inches.

Everything fell into place for the Sachemettes, particularly Binding, against Reading. Every time she touched the ball it went into the net. Her first goal went past the goalie's right, the next one to her left. The third one went through her and the fourth one went over her. All this happened before the halfway point of the first half. Coach Chris Scanlon decided to have mercy on Reading and their shellshocked goaltender as he pulled Binding for the remainder of the half.

The other Sachemettes were not through, however, as Cunningham got into the act with an unassisted goal which gave Winchester a five goal bulge at the half. Binding started the second half and picked up where she left off as she scored her fifth goal on her fifth shot on a pass from Julie Sexeny. Nowell assisted on three of Binding's goals while Emily Doherty picked up the other assist.

The outburst against Reading could be a positive sign for the Sachemettes as they may have finally found a goal scorer who can clean up the loose balls in front of the opposing net. This coupled with the return to the lineup of Spanjaard, Beth Small and Laura Rutherford will be necessary for Winchester to pull out wins in their showdowns this week with Lexington and Belmont.

JV wins 3, loses key player

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' junior varsity soccer team continued their winning ways as they squeaked by Burlington and Arlington before breezing through Reading in last week's action.

The victory over Burlington proved to be a costly one, however, as star forward Cheryl Casalnuovo was lost for the season with torn ligaments in her left knee. The Sachemettes were on the comeback trail against the Devillets after trailing 1-0 at halftime. Danielle Berkhout tied the game and Winchester was pressing hard for the win when Casalnuovo went down with only two minutes left in the game. The girls quickly adopted a "win one for the Gipper" attitude and came back doubly strong in the waning moments of the game. The pressure payed off as tri-captain Christine Sullivan came through with the winning goal with only 30 seconds left on the clock.

Coach Paul Austin was pleased with the all out effort of fullback Heather Walsh in the 2-1 triumph.

"Heather always gives 100 percent," said Austin. "Her play in this game set a good example for the other girls to follow."

In their 3-2 win over Arlington, the Sachemettes got goals from Siobhan White, tri-captain Katie Coakley and Berkhout. Austin was not too pleased with his team's effort in this game as they blundered away many easy scoring opportunities.

The Sachemettes rebounded in their 4-0 whitewashing of Reading. Coakley scored the first goal and Shana MacConkey made it, 2-0. In addition to her goal, MacConkey dominated midfield and controlled the tempo of the game. Berkhout also had a big game as she collected two more goals and praise from her coach.

"When we lost Cheryl, we needed someone to fill the void," said Austin. "Danielle has come on strong and has given us the goals we need."

Goaltenders Lisa Donlon and Stephanie Keefe shared the shutout for Winchester. Halfbacks Sarah Wilson, Alison Alberts and Jenny Campbell also played well for the Sachemettes. Although the Sachemettes continue to win, Austin and the rest of the team will sorely miss Casalnuovo.

Swimmers tread on Woburn

By WENDY BOERNER
Special to the Star

The Winchester High girls' swim team topped Woburn, 44-27, on Saturday afternoon. Winchester's hard training was rewarded with many personal best times and an excellent display of team unity.

Meghan Herlihy, Kara McGillicuddy, Suzanne Foley and Ifer Boerner placed first in the 200 medley relay. Woburn placed second and Diana Coughlin, Jen McCart, Kendra Lombardo and Heather German placed third for the Sachems. Katherine Martinelli won the 200 freestyle with a time of 2:23.77 and was followed by teammate Mary Murray.

The 200 individual medley was also won by Winchester as Sheila McCarthy went 2:40.05 to capture first. Woburn's Karen McLaughlin placed second and Sachem Kim McCarthy third. Juliette Estridge and Beth Crawford went 1-2, respectively, in the 50 freestyle.

Woburn's first win of the meet was in the 100 butterfly. Winchester's Lombardo received second place with a time of 1:40.30. The 100 freestyle was won by Winchester. Estridge and fellow Sachem Amy Doe both beat the Woburn swimmers by over five seconds.

The 500 freestyle was a clear win for Winchester as Boerner placed first and Murray, second. Both girls finished over one minute before the Tanners. Coughlin swam the 100 backstroke alone. Despite the lack of competition, she did a personal best time of 1:32.71 and scored four points for her team. Woburn's Tracy Cavaganaro placed first in the 100 breaststroke but was closely followed by McCart and Chrissy McGee for Winchester.

The three Winchester 400 freestyle relay teams all did remarkably well. Murray, Foley, McGillicuddy and Sheila McCarthy were in the first relay. Herlihy, Germain, Kim McCarthy and Coughlin, composed the second while Lombardo, Crawford, McGee and Julie Adelsberger made up the third relay. All 12 girls displayed excellent team spirit and unity and thus, ended the meet on a good note.

The Sachem girls face their toughest competition on Saturday when they go against Belmont. The meet will be held at 5:00 p.m. at the Northeast Regional Vocational School in Wakefield.

Sachems beat Rockets, remain perfect at home

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High football team remained undefeated at home this week after an opportunistic 20-12 triumph over the Reading Rockets. The Sachems evened their overall record to 3-3 with four games remaining in the season.

The key to this game was the Sachems' ability to cash in on turnovers. Sophomore Chris Umscheid started at quarterback for the injured Micky Feeley (bruised shoulder). While he didn't orchestrate any long drives, the stand-in ran the option well enough to convert two Reading fumbles into home team touchdowns.

Winchester caught its first break midway through the first quarter when Todd Crandall (who also had a sack) pounced on the first of seven Reading fumbles on the Rocket 27. With the Rocket defense keying on Scott Garvey running outside, co-captain Greg Winn became the offensive hero with his quick bursts up the middle.

On this drive, Greg's running gave the Sachems first and goal from the six yard line. On fourth and goal, coach Manny Marshall called a play-action pass. Umscheid proved equal to the task, lofting a short pass to Jon Furey for the touchdown. Clayton Wight's point after attempt was good, and the Sachems led, 7-0.

The Rockets pulled within one point on their first drive of the second half, but defensive standout Phil Svahn roared in and smothered a Reading punt attempt. The ball rolled within inches of the endline in the back of the end-zone before it stopped. Mark Koffman, the first to arrive at the scene, scooped it up for the score. The Sachems then tried for two, but the pass attempt failed.

It didn't take long for the Winchester offense to get the ball back as Frank Curtis recovered a fumble on the ensuing kickoff. After runs by Umscheid and Winn gave the Sachems a first down on the Reading 11, Winn came through again, blasting into the end-zone. Wight's extra point gave the Sachems a 20-6 advantage.

Reading turned the tables on Winchester, converting a fumble into a touchdown of their own. Fortunately, there was only a minute left in the game. The Rockets tried an onside kick. Frank Gianci picked up the attempt and nearly ran it back all the way. Winchester ran out the clock and their home record remained unblemished.

The Sachems will be looking to end their road woes when they travel to Stoneham this Saturday.

Booters belt Reading, 4-0

By MARK NADEAU
Special to the Star

The Winchester High boys' soccer team brushed off Reading 4-0 last Friday as they prepare to do battle this week with league rivals Lexington and Belmont.

Vandy French and Paul Capodano were the stars of the game as they each scored twice and added an assist. All the damage was done in the first half.

Halfback Paul Erbafina set up the first goal ten minutes into the game, feeding French for his first goal. Seven minutes later, Capodano got in to the scoring column with a brilliant rush down the right side. French set up Capodano's second goal. The two then reversed roles for the final goal, scored with only eight seconds left in the half. French headed in a Capodano cross, making the score 4-0.

The Sachems will tune up against Stoneham before they do battle with the Minutemen and Marauders. The victory over Reading clinches a spot for Winchester in the post-season tournament.

Sachem girls win, 5-0

By CYNTHIA PREE
Special to the Star

The Winchester High field hockey team burned Burlington in a 5-0 shutout last week. This game brought together great offense with unbeatable defense as the Sachemets scored goal after goal. While playing on their home field, the girls well planned plays and aggressiveness awed spectators.

The unbelievable five goals were scored by a variety of players. The talented Colleen O'Connor slapped in a pair of goals while making one assist. Her sister Katie shared in the glory with a goal while Leslie Pedulla and Catherine Coleson each scored once as well. After barely missing a goal herself, Shelly Curtis achieved an important assist.

"There was a super effort by all the girls in this game," said coach Mary Brown. "We came out strong and scored a substantial number of goals."

Unfortunately, the girls could not repeat their overwhelming success in their other recent games. Following the rout of Burlington, the Sachemets lost to Reading, 1-0, Lexington, 2-1, and Belmont, 1-0.

The Belmont game was especially nerve-racking and seemed a sure tie until Belmont scored with only 5:30 left in the game. Midfielder Sarah Power played a major part in getting the ball upfield in this game while Tammy Berman's excellent drives as a sweeper prevented many shots on goal.

"These few games were real heartbreakers for the team," said Brown. "They were all very close and could have gone either way."

The girls' season is almost over but they hope to make the most of their remaining games by demonstrating the winning spirit they have shown in the past.

NOTICE WATER SYSTEM FLUSHING PROGRAM

The Winchester Water and Sewer Division of the Department of Public Works will be flushing the Middle Low Distribution System beginning November 1, 1987. Hydrant flushing will be taking place between the hours of 11:00 P.M. and 5:00 A.M. Areas being flushed extensively are encompassed by the area east of Cambridge Street from the Arlington Town Line to Pond Street and the Woburn City Line and the Area west of the Town Forest, South Main Street and Washington Street from the Medford City Line to the Woburn City Line.

It is anticipated that it will take about three (3) weeks to flush the system and individual notices will be left at each household prior to flushing. A temporary discoloration of water may develop and owners of home water filters should refrain from their use during this period.

We apologize for any inconvenience you may experience and we acknowledge your continued support in our efforts to improve water quality in the distribution system.

ABOUT TOWN

Valia Downes, left, and Elizabeth Bichan are giving a two-person show at the Winchester Art Association gallery in November.

Gallery opens two-person show

Winchester artists Valia Downes and Elizabeth Bichan will exhibit prints and paintings during the month of November in the Winchester Art Association Gallery.

Downes was born in Paris, studied at the Boston Museum School and DeCordova Museum and has lived in Winchester for many years. She has exhibited in national juried shows, won first prize for painting and graphics at various New England Shows and is represented by galleries in Boston and New York. Her work is in many permanent collections, among them IBM, the First National Bank of Boston and DeCordova Museum.

She has taught art therapy at Glenside Hospital, where she founded the program, and has supervised Lesley College students in graduate art therapy studies.

Bichan moved to Winchester three years ago and has been very active in the Winchester Art Association, where she chaired the 1986 Prize Show and has won first prize for oil painting.

She received a master's degree in art education from Wayne State University in Detroit and has also taught in Wilbraham.

The media Richard works in include oils, acrylics, watercolor, pen and ink, clay and metal. Her most recent work has concentrated on pen and ink and oils. The oils often describe still life objects in dramatic light and trompe l'oeil style.

She has taught at all levels from kindergarten to junior college and currently does interior design consultation and free-lance pen and ink commissions.

The hours of the Winchester Art Gallery are from noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. It is located at 585A Main St.

Bookmark contest for Children's Book Week

In celebration of Children's Book Week, the Winchester Junior Library is sponsoring a contest.

This year, children from the ages of three to 12 are invited to draw a picture to be used on the library's bookmarks.

A bookmark is a handy invention that replaces pencils, gum wrappers, paper clips, combs, napkins and ticket stubs to mark the reader's place in a book. With the help of community talent, the Junior Library's bookmark will be much improved.

Winners will be chosen from three age categories: 3 to 5, 6 to 8 and 9 to 12. All entries are to be submitted by Friday, Nov. 13. The winners will be announced Monday, Nov. 16. All entries will be on display during Book Week.

A special entry form is available at the Junior Library. All art work must be done on this form to be eligible for the contest. Black on white drawings will reproduce the best.

The subject of the drawings may be anything that has to do with the library or reading.

For more information call the Junior Library at 721-7140.

St. Mary's to hold All Souls Mass

On Sunday, Nov. 1, at 11:30 a.m. Saint Mary's Parish will have its second annual Mass for all the members of the church who died since last All Souls Day in 1986.

The parish gives thanks to the Lord for their lives, and will celebrate a special Mass for them.

All are welcome to participate. A reception for their families will follow immediately after the Mass in Saint Mary's school hall.

Lincoln School parents to meet

All parents are welcome to attend a board meeting at 7 p.m. followed by a general meeting of the Lincoln School Parents Association on Tuesday, Nov. 3, in the cafeteria at the school.

Wittet book available locally

"Hoof Beats from Forest Crest Farm," by Elsa Wittet of Forest Street is available at the following locations: Holly Berry Fair at the First Congregational Church Wednesday, Nov. 4 from 6 to 9 p.m. and Thursday, Nov. 5 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Book Ends book store at 9 Winchester Terrace; The Winton Shop at Winchester Hospital; Cradock Apothecary at 22 Church Street; and Wenham Exchange Tea House in Wenham.

Berry to perform classical program

Pianist Laurence Berry will present a program of works by Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, and Schumann in the recital hall at Bran-nen Brothers Flute Factory, 58 Dragon Court, Woburn, Sunday, Nov. 1, at 4 p.m. Berry, also an organist, is director of music at the Parish of the Epiphany.

A student of Allison Nelson, Bela Nagy and Ruth Slenczynska, Berry is active as a piano teacher in Winchester. The public is cordially invited to this event.

Ward's Has A Gift For Any Occasion

For more than forty five years Ward's Gift Shop, located at 24 High St., Medford, has supplied that special something for many occasions from weddings and showers to birthdays and anniversaries.

For around thirty of those years the shop has been managed by one person who is on a first name basis with most of Ward's customers—they know her as Dorothy.

Ward's strives to give what they call "that personal touch" to the service of its customers and Dorothy is always on hand to offer gift ideas and assist them in finding the appropriate present for a friend or relative.

Ward's carries one of the largest selections of Waterford crystal in the Boston area, a collection to which even more pieces have recently been added.

They also have more than 300 Patterns of china including such well-known names as Lenox Royal Doulton, Pickard, Wedgwood and Noritake.

Among the 15,000-20,000 items in the store is one of New England's widest selection of figurines, collector's dolls, and limited-edition plates featuring such well-known names as Lladro, Royal Doulton, Hummel, Kaiser, Anri, Sebastian, Francis Hook and Precious Moments.

Adding to the already extensive collection of Edna Hibbel prints and lithographs, Ward's has enlarged their selection, bringing the collection up to date. They also feature Edna Hibbel collection plates, Christmas ornaments, figurines, music boxes, & gift boxes of wood, marble, soap stone and now onyx.

Most of the Christmas collector's plates and ornaments are now in and the Lladro first-edition Christmas ornament is another recent arrival.

For your gift ideas and selection, or any of your collectors items, come into Ward's and receive the attention and treatment that has lead to thousands of satisfied customers, many of whom have moved away but still order from Ward's from as far away as Florida and California.

Ward's is open Monday-Saturday 9-5:30, Thursday nights until 8:30. In October they will extend their hours and be open until 6:00.

IT'S EASY TO SUBMIT NEWS IF YOU...

follow several simple, understandable tips, as outlined in this ad. We want to help publicize your group's activities, but you've got to help us, too.

We attempt to ensure that news appearing in The Winchester Star is interesting to as many of our readers as possible. By following these few guidelines, your group's news can be used most effectively to establish a mutually helpful working relationship.

THREE QUICK POINTS TO REMEMBER...

Give us your information in writing.

Give us ample time to process your news.

Include a name and phone number so that we can contact you for more information if necessary.

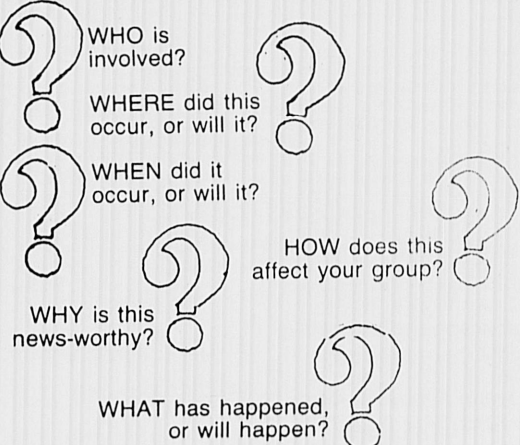

HOW TO REPORT A NEWS ITEM...

A news release tells Who is doing What, When, Where and Why. Often the How may be necessary, too. Always include the time, date and place of the event, including the address of the meeting place.

Double-spaced typewritten copy is preferred. If information must be handwritten, write legibly on one side of the paper only. We cannot publish information that is not clear.

HERE'S WHAT WE NEED...

SEND NEWS ITEMS TO...

Editor
The Winchester Star
P.O. Box 550
Winchester, MA 01890

Items also may be dropped at The Star building at 3 Church Street. If you have questions call the editor at 729-8100.

ABOUT TELEPHONING...

We can handle short facts by telephone if timeliness is important. But for your own protection against error and misunderstanding, we recommend that news information be submitted in writing.

SOME WORDS ABOUT DEADLINES...

Different departments have different deadlines. But the basic rule for each department is that we would like to get the news from you as soon as possible; that way we have more time to prepare it for publication. However, some specific deadlines are necessary in order for us to publish the newspaper each week.

All press releases and social announcements should be submitted by Monday 4 p.m.

HOW TO GET YOUR NEWS STORIES PUBLISHED IN THE STAR

WHAT TO REPORT...

1. If the article is an advance notice of a meeting or program, include details about the speaker, topic and general agenda items.
2. If the article deals with a meeting or program that has taken place, try to assemble the most interesting facts for inclusion in the story. If there was a speaker, for example, try to summarize what was said.
3. If the group took any action on news issues of the day, such as adopting resolutions of support or opposition, include this.
4. If officers were elected, include the names, addresses, and new officers.
5. Include details of any major events being planned.

6. If you wish to arrange for special coverage of an event, please contact the editor at least two weeks in advance.

7. Omit routine matters such as refreshments were served, names of new members or guests, and items of interest only to the immediate group.

8. Let the publicity person be the only group member handling contact with The Star. And notify only one department about your news items to avoid confusion.

9. Keep the time element in mind. Submit all articles as soon as possible.

10. Remember, too, that we're always looking for news tips of any kind. Feel free to contact us if you know of a news story or something that might develop into a story.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO BE A GREAT WRITER...

If fact, we just want the facts. Don't worry about writing the story in Star news style. One of our reporters will prepare the story, based on the information you submit to us. In your own words, tell us what has happened or will happen. We'll do the rest.

A WORD ABOUT PHOTOGRAPHS...

We are always looking for good suggestions for news photos and will be happy to talk with you about them. Please make photo arrangements far enough in advance to make all necessary plans. And do not call a photographer directly. Work with an editor to get your picture into the paper.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR...

Letters to the editor should be brief and contain the signature, address and telephone number of the sender. Addresses and telephone numbers will not be published. The Letters section will not include letters sent to others. Letters are subject to condensation and standard editing. Send letters to: Letters to the Editor, P.O. Box 550, Winchester, MA 01890.

DON'T FORGET ADVERTISEMENTS...

Any group or organization is entitled to news stories with no obligation whatsoever to purchase advertisements in The Winchester Star. Feel free to contact the Advertising Department if you wish to determine additional methods of informing others about your upcoming event, in addition to news stories.

If you plan to finance a home with an adjustable rate mortgage (one that goes up and down with the interest rate at periodic intervals) make sure you focus on the presence or absence of interest-rate "caps."

Caps are "security blanket" ceilings. They represent a guarantee from the lender that you will not be required to pay more than an agreed-upon maximum rate no matter how high interest rates may skyrocket.

The two most common rate caps are life-of-the-loan and annual. Life-of-the-loan caps shield you against total rate increases beyond, say four to five percentage points through the entire term of the loan. Annual caps are usually in the 1 to 2 percent range, offering protection against sudden, sharp run-ups.

Remember that these consumer features are optional and valuable. If you are offered an adjustable loan rate without a cap, you should be getting a price break to compensate you for the additional risk.

Changing fashion is reflected in Halloween costume tastes

By KAREN BUCKLEY
Special to the Star

Alf and Freddy Crugar are in, Strawberry Shortcake and Sesame Street characters are out, say local costume shops.

With Halloween just a few days away, trick-or-treaters and party goers are planning the final touches for costumes. Classics and the old stand-bys can still do the trick, but for a real treat, here's what's hot this year.

Whether people are buying costumes, making their own, adding accessories, or renting an entire outfit for the evening, tastes are varied for this Halloween.

According to most retailers, Alf, of television fame, is the number one seller among both kids and adults.

For others, horror is in, and Halloween just wouldn't be complete without it. As a result, says Fred of Little Jack Horner Joke and Magic Shop in Boston, "Freddy Crugar is very big, like all the horror things. Jason is still big, and planet of the apes types," he said.

Kids are also opting more for make-your-own costumes, says Derrick at Osco Drug in Woburn. "The kits where you add your own accessories seem to be more popular," he said.

Another big seller this year is the dinosaur, either store bought or homemade. "The dinosaur was our hottest item," said Derrick. "It sold out the quickest."

The ever-dependable witch and ghost costumes are still popular as well, according to most fabric stores, while Disney characters are also in increasing demand.

"The tiger and dinosaur costumes were really big, too," said Marjorie of Fabric Place in the Woburn Mall. "Everyone wanted to be tiger or a dinosaur!"

However, Strawberry Shortcake, Sesame Street characters, Superman and fur costumes, are on their way out, with declining requests.

For adults, masks are back, and make-your-own costume kits are in. The Little Jack Horner Joke and Magic Shop carries masks ranging from Jim and Tammy Baker and Ronald Reagan to Max Headroom and Spud MacKenzie, which are selling like hotcakes. As in the past, wigs, for characters like Tina Turner, Marilyn Monroe and Dolly Parton are hot items. In addition, punk is still strong among costume buyers.

Homemade costumes are also a hit among adults, according to local fabric stores. Elvira, French maids, pirates and witches are all big sellers, according to Ella at Winnil Fabrics in Woburn.

Marjorie, of Fabric Place, said the strangest request she had was for shade interfacing for a teabag costume.

"The raisin is also popular this year, because of the commercials," she noted.

Costume rentals are becoming a trend. According to Debbie of Pixie Costume Shop in Medford, they have had a large number of requests for flapper girls and male genies. For a classy look, Debbie recommends a Maid Marion or Medieval male costume. Rentals range from $25-95.

The Boston Costume Company has over 30,000 costumes for rent, with everything from Superheroes to roaring 20s costumes. Rentals range from $15 and up.

Overall, says Gerry of Bradlees in Burlington, "Everything is in."

WINCHESTER'S 350TH ANNIVERSARY
Of smugglers and a witch

Winchester, over the years, has had its share of intrigue and supernatural events — and in the spirit of the Halloween Season, two subjects bear retelling.

The "Winchester Journal" of Dec. 20, 1856, alludes to "Devils Den" or "Robbers Cave" a quarter of a mile northwest of Bear Hill in Winchester near the Stoneham line.

"It is located on the edge of a dismal swamp, whose gloomy recesses are intersected by a slimy stream, the unearthly gurgling of whose waters is flung back from the depths of the cave in frightful echoes that sound to the heated imagination like the howling of demons pursuing their infernal orgies. On the south lies a dark forest of pine and birch, through whose tall tops the wind shrieks a wild requiem for the victims of the bloodthirsty cutthroats who once inhabited this retreat."

Indeed this area of Winchester was dark and remote, even in the daylight, and seemed quite forbidding to the wayfarer passing along the cart path that was to become Forest Street.

Legend tells us that the elusive robbers Thunderbolt and Lightfoot once inhabited this God-forsaken cave and rumor of buried treasure was rampant among good Winchester folk.

By 1856, this cave had partially collapsed and today not a trace is to be found.

Of times in Winchester of 300 years ago, talk turned to the "queer, half-demented female whose strange dress, piercing black eyes, and singular aversion to the company of other human beings excited the awe and suspicion of the superstitious," according to Chapman in his History of Winchester.

Witch Belknap, as she was called, seemed to haunt the fields through which Cross Street then ran — and she became the self-appointed keeper of a gate composed of sliding bars that had to be taken down to afford passage through Cross Street — about where River Street is at present.

Chapman reports that once, when a man jumped his horse over the gate, the witch sprang from the underbrush, leaped onto the horse behind the man, and rode the half mile to Washington Street to the terror of both the man and the horse, who galloped wildly all the way.

Chapman relates to us that the witch told the man she would see him again when he passed that way, and she apparently did in the form of a large black crow that pecked viciously at the man's eyes.

Wide-eyed people also related the tale of the man who once spied a fallen rail from one of the Belknap fences and threw it into his wagon as he passed. Instantly the witch appeared and the cart sank to its hubs where it stood.

The oxen were unable to move until the man had thrown the rail off his cart. The witch, all the while, jumped up and down, clapping her hands and shrieking with laughter.

Verily, northeast Winchester was not the place to visit casually 300 years ago.

From time to time throughout the next commemorative year this committee will issue historical articles.

— The Winchester

350th Anniversary Committee

350th Committee seeks community ideas and input

The 350th Anniversary Committee is planning events for the upcoming year. The surveying and allotment of lands along the Aberjona River to inhabitants of Charlestown occurred 350 years ago, but, according to Chairmen Daniel Chane and Mary Vitka, the committee has decided to celebrate all historical accomplishments of Winchester and its future potential.

Chane said the committee welcomes ideas for the celebration, and will publicize and schedule specific events. The committee needs information on the events by Nov. 10, either by letter or by telephone to 729-3261 or 721-7125.

Music students, from left, Cathy Keane, Wen-Wen Chen, Kim Shubrooks, and Elizabeth Cavitch will travel to New York City Nov. 7 to perform music for flute quartet as part of the National Guild of Community Schools of the Arts 50th anniversary celebration.

Music school quartet goes to New York

Elizabeth Cavitch, Wen-Wen Chen, Cathy Keane, and Kim Shubrooks will represent the Winchester Community Music School at the 50th anniversary celebration of the National Guild of Community

School of the Arts.

The flute quartet will play in New York City at Symphony Space Nov. 7 at a special student performance, and on Nov. 8 will attend a gala concert conducted by Joseph Silverstein and featuring trumpeter Wynton Marsalis, pianist Leonard Pennario and the Harlem Boys Choir.

The quartet is coached by Amy Flemming, a Music School faculty member.

Library joins national music celebration

By ELLEN KNIGHT
Special to the Star

Music at the library will present the Tamarack Trio (violin, cello, and piano) in concert on Sunday, Nov. 1, at 2 p.m. in the reference room of the Winchester Public Library. The public is invited to attend, free of charge (donations will be accepted).

The concert is part of a nationwide celebration of American music. The composers on the Tamarack Trio program include Henry Cowell and Charles Martin Loeffler, two of the most eminent names of America's recent musical past, and Ned Rorem, Robert A. Olson, and G. Theodore Wiprud, three living composers, the first a Pulitzer Prize winner and the latter two local composers who are expected to be in the audience.

Not only because the names of these composers are generally unfamiliar, but also because they are American, next Sunday's concert may draw a small audience. Americans, it is still generally felt, cannot be taken seriously as composers, certainly not of first-rate music, and certainly not on a par with Europeans.

To help increase public awareness of American music and create a new audience for the American composer, National American Music Week was instituted to be observed during the first week of November. During this week all varieties of American music are being performed, studied, and promoted.

A renaissance of interest in American musical heritage is past due. Oddly enough, in the country whose pride in its own accomplishments knows few bounds, the general attitude seems to be that American art is a matter of historical curiosity, not a subject of true artistic attention.

This attitude itself is a historical curiosity, a hold-over from the 19th century, when it was felt that anything of any particular musical value had to be imported from Europe, a time, for example, when the American symphony orchestra was filled primarily by Europeans, conducted by Europeans, and performed music written by Europeans.

Americans cannot, even now, quite accept the fact that Americans could compose good music. Yet Americans have composed enough excellent music to fill concert programs with fresh and attractive repertoire for some time to come. The program of the Tamarack Trio concert is comprised not of a series of historical oddities or of modern experiments beyond the appreciation of the average listener. It is composed of music that may easily delight and charm, music well worth hearing.

The Tamarack Trio will perform in the library reference room at 2 p.m. Sunday. The members, Ann Karnofsky, piano, Cynthia Stutt, violin, and Wendy Smith, cello, are experienced local chamber and orchestral musicians. The concert is produced by Winchester Community Arts.

In its own modest way, the Tamarack Trio concert will be an event, not only because it will include a premiere performance of a Loeffler work and because of the presence of two of the composers, but also because this concert is a recognition of our own national heritage and of our potential, and because it may just be in the vanguard of an overdue musical renaissance.

Selectmen support Housing Partnership board ed a Housing Partnership Board and a Housing Development Department could help find the best solution for the town.

Lombardi did not speak about the article.

The selectmen voted, 3-2 with Soper and Lombardi in the opposition, to support Article 4 if Article 3 were defeated. Article 4 would appropriate funds for a housing consultant. The consultant would help the town implement its long range housing plan. The length of the position is indefinite.

The selectmen will move to postpone to a time certain Article 11. The article asks the town to accept a name chosen by the Committee on Names for the land currently known as the Wadleigh School site. The Committee on Names has two vacancies and has not yet met to discuss a name.

Muggia appointed Lombardi as the board's representative on that committee, but the vacancies have yet to be filled. Muggia said she will try to organize the committee and arrange for the selectmen to fill its vacancies before the end of Town Meeting. The committee would then be able to choose a name and have Town Meeting vote on it before the fall meeting adjourns.

The board remained undecided on Article 13, which would instruct the selectmen and the Conservation Commission to consider the acquisition of Horn Pond Mountain for open space and conservation purposes.

Lombardi said he would like to hear the presentation of the petitioners at Town Meeting before he makes a final decision. The rest of the board agreed.

The board voted to ask for a postponement of Article 14, which would increase life insurance benefits of town employees and retirees from $2,000 to $5,000, and Article 15, which would allow town employees to bargain for more health insurance. Town Manager W. Chadwick Maurer said the extra life insurance would cost the town $15,000 per year, and $7,500 for the remainder of this fiscal year.

Since it is the middle of the fiscal year, Lombardi said, why not wait until spring Town Meeting and allocate the money in the budget? He suggested allowing unions to bargain for the increased insurance.

If one union gets the added insurance, according to Maurer, all other employees must get the insurance as well. If the issue went to collective bargaining, unions that the School Committee bargains with would also be affected.

Selectmen Robert Deering said he was concerned that one union might end up giving something up in negotiations in order to get the insurance, and then all the other unions would have it without giving anything up.

Lombardi said he wanted to know whether all the unions want the extra insurance before he votes to give it to them. He added that the town should offer the insurance during negotiations to see which unions are interested.

The board voted 5-0 to ask to postpone the articles.

lengthening the time students spend in the bus by creating new stops. She said she felt uncomfortable removing the no-new-stop requirement and that she would like more time to think about it.

"I have difficulty looking at a policy with a problem over here at the side being funnelled in and out of the discussion," McCarter said.

But committee member Donna Brandt-Landry said she had no problems with removing that restriction.

Another change in the policy the committee discussed was the means of measuring the distance from the school. Committee member Edward O'Connell suggested limiting the description to one sentence. "Distance is measured from where the student normally egresses from home (driveway or walkway) to the point where the bus normally discharges the student," as stated in the current policy.

The committee will vote on the policy at its next meeting, Nov. 10, at which time the policy will get its first reading. The sub-committee on policy will bring its recommendations to the committee at that time.

SPRUCING UP YOUR HOME

When a house goes on the market, it's important that it "show well". A house that looks well cared for inside and out has extra buyer appeal and is more likely to sell quickly for top dollar.

Your professional Realtor can provide valuable advice on cost-effective ways to make your home most attractive. He or she can start outside, and go with you through decorating hints that will help your home sell. There may be plumbing or other maintenance items that should be fixed before the home is shown. If you are considering any home improvements that you think will help, discuss them with your agent. A fresh coat of neutral paint and refinished floors, for example, could add thousands of dollars to your sales price. On the other hand, new wall paper or wall-to-wall carpeting that reflect your personal taste might appeal to fewer buyers. There are also many small touches, like house plants or a new shower curtain, that can help a good house look even better.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate professionals at The Bixby & Porter Company Realtors are ready to serve you. Call us at 729-7000 or drop by our offices at 33 Thompson Street in Winchester.

What to know

Story and photographs by Susan Hershey

Magic: the natural order of things

Witches are making magic all around us

Do you believe in magic? The Druids did and the witches still do.

Sherry Gamble, owner of the Cambridge store, Arsenic and Old Lace, says that "practicing magic is changing one's reality at will." Her store is full of herbs, toy bats, crystals, vintage clothing, incense and books on witchcraft. The sign on the front window says "Costombs."

Upon entering the store, one is struck by the prevalence of death-related items: coffins, skeletons; on her desk a raven perches.

Gamble, who calls herself a follower of the Celtic Shammanic path, is one of the many women and men practicing the religion of what is known as Neo-Paganism or modern witchcraft or Wicca today.

"Anyone can become a witch," Sherry says. "It is a spiritual path. A religion involved with the earth's energy."

The followers of the modern witch movement insist that their religion, referred to as the Craft, has nothing to do with black magic, Satan or the devil.

Followers of witchcraft believe in reincarnation and that death is not bad but only the next stage.

Gamble says that the practice of magic and witchcraft is not an "out-there kind of thing. It's an in-here kind of thing," she says, pointing to the area of her heart.

"We don't pray through anybody. Everything is connected with everything. Everyone: animals, trees, desks. As Einstein said, matter is energy. Vibrating energy has life. This is where the belief in crystals comes in. For example, if at night, you cannot sleep, instead of concentrating on thinking about sleep or why you can't sleep, become one with the bed. Be aware of the vibrations and you will drift off to sleep."

In his well-attended class in Witchcraft, Magic and the Mysteries at the Cambridge Center for Adult Education, Andras Corban explains that magic goes beyond verbal explanations. It is the natural order of things, he says, the art of pattern and order in nature.

To illustrate this point, he tells a joke. A priest and a witch are in a rowboat in the middle of a lake. The boat springs a leak and begins to sink. The witch jumps overboard and appears to walk on the water to shore. The priest thinks, this is something I can do, too, and plunges in. As he sinks to the bottom of the lake, the witch calls from the shore, walk on the rocks, walk on the rocks.

The answers to many things are there in nature, waiting to be found, assures Corban. There is more to everything than what is visible on the surface. These are the magical lessons.

He continues, "magic is not accessible through everyday senses. Look beyond the surface of things. Look in the cracks and in the rocks, in the crevasses." Corban cites Alister Crowley, who defined magic as the art and science of causing changes in accordance to will. Corban says that you can control your reality through magic.

He defines reality as non-one-dimensional perceptions. "Picture reality as a big box," suggests Corban, "most of us spend our lives in the box itself. A mystic will climb to the edge of the box and spend his life looking out. A witch's work is to build a ladder to the rim, on which she can go back and forth between the two worlds."

In her book, Drawing Down the Moon, Margaret Adler, a reporter for National Public Radio and granddaughter of Alfre Adler, the Viennese psychiatrist and contemporary of Freud, speaks about magic. She says that "the foundation of magical beliefs, of which witchcraft is a form, is that unseen powers do exist, and that by performing the right sort of ritual these powers can be contacted and either forced or persuaded to assist one in some way. People believed this in the Stone Age," Adler continues, "and they believe it, consciously or not, today."

Andras Corban contends that magic is neither black nor white. It is neutral - gray. It is the consequences of the magic, he adds, that can be good or bad.

"Outer magic effects the external world, inner magic causes changes within one self. There are benefits and drawbacks to both. The ethics of magic is a very complicated issue. The disbelievers point to science as the ultimate answer, but science is only one approach to reality," says Corban, "magic involves science, philosophy, religion and politics."

Corban, an intense bearded man, with a friendly twinkle in his dark eyes, says that to become a witch is a lifelong occupation. He began his training 18 years ago. The training is long, difficult, arduous, he says. Instant gratification, so popular in our society today, is not a part of the Craft.

Witches are passive observers and their Craft is an integral part of their everyday life.

Adler refers to witchcraft as the revival of the ancient mystery traditions and a belief in many gods. In 1951 after the witchcraft laws were repealed in England, followers of witchcraft began to surface. People were less afraid of persecution and Gerald B. Gardner's book, on the Meaning of Witchcraft energized the movement.

In the 16th century, according to Adler, paganism or the worship of nature, existed peacefully. The Cats have been thought to house the spirit of those departed ones who were punished by being turned into a cat.

word pagan comes from the Latin word pagani meaning country dweller. The heathens were those people who lived on the heaths. Because Christianity came late to the country people, they held on to their pagan beliefs and at different times were either accepted or rejected by the Christians.

In Looking for History in the British Church, M.C. Anderson describes how the church yards were used for meetings and celebrations because they were centrally located, presumably.

"In the old times the churchyard was quite a feasible place for merymaking," says Anderson. This may explain why pagans are often depicted as dancing on graves. In fact, according to Anderson, burials were not made in church yards until Christianity prevailed. Only the rich were buried inside the church and the peasants were disposed of in other ways.

Adler describes the pagan god, the horned god of the hunt, as the oldest diety known to man. This creature was depicted in the oldest representation of a divinity, which has yet to be found, namely Stone Age paintings in the innermost recesses of the Caverne des Trois Freres at Ariege, France.

Today witches believe that the power resides within them and that their rites serve to bring this power out. According to Adler, this is the great difference between them and the practitioners of ceremonial magic: black or white.

Andras Corban has passed on the good word on witchcraft to a large number of people through his classes at the Unicorn Book Store and the Cambridge Center for Adult Education.

Various items used in rituals and ceremonies of witchcraft are found on the shelves of the store, Arsenic and Old Lace.

Witches convene in covens, which are usually made up of 13 people. The full moon is a time for rituals and these occur every 13 weeks, 13 times a year. The Wiccan movement celebrates four important holidays: Candlemas, Feb. 2; May Eve or Beltaine, May 1; Lammas, Aug. 1 and Samhain, Nov. 1. The equinoxes and the solstices are also recognized as times for celebration.

Sherry Gamble explains that feminists and members of the women's movement have adopted Neo-Paganism as a means of throwing off the traditional male hierarchical ways of Christianity.

Judaism, Buddhism. Unfortunately, says Gamble, as with any organized group, there are people who give the Craft a bad name. Because the practice of witchcraft through the years has been thought of generally as those who practice black magic and cast spells, the practitioners of the revivalist movement find it difficult to throw off these old stereotypes, particularly when there are those who persist in perpetuating the old ideas.

Gamble allows that a modern witch believes that "you do as you will, but harm no one. Your morality is your own business. You commit no sins and live in harmony and balance with the universe."

Margaret Adler explains that the unseen powers that have interested man most in his history have been the powers of fertility and of contact with the spiritual world. These are the elementary powers that become the divinities of the witches and their worship is as old as civilization itself.

The meaning of witchcraft is to be found, not in strange religious theories about God and Satan, but in the deepest levels of the human mind, the collective unconsciousness and in the roots of the earliest developments of human society. It is the deepness of the roots that has persevered the tree, claims Adler.

Corbin alleges that there are many misconceptions about witchcraft. One, that it is a cult. Most cults have charismatic leaders who demand a certain allegiance and require followers to conform to certain rules. Another is that witches cast spells to harm or effect bad changes. These are the old stereotypes. The Craft does not proselytize. Converts are not sought after. Corbin says that people find their way to the covens and the festivals on their own.

Corbin says that although the new witch movement (or the Nouveau Witch Movement, as he called it) is growing, people are still concerned about losing their jobs or having their homes vandalized. These are regular people, claims Corbin. "You would not know that they are believers in magic."

Followers of the Craft are people who have had some kind of transcendental experience, such as psychic revelations or glimpses of past lives, says Corbin. A common response to reading any one of the works on witchcraft, which treat the subject sympathetically, is "I've been there. I know what she is talking about."

A religion, more than 2,000 years old, specifically northern European in beliefs in nature, not separate from the belief in trees, sky, birds, plants, water, witchcraft is a manifestation of the earth. Although the prevailing goddess is a woman, there are both men and women witches. Witchcraft flows with the earth's patterns.

This weekend a pagan, Wiccan, magical street festival takes place in New York City, sponsored by Magickal Child at 35 West 19th St. Rituals, music, singing, and entertainment are part of the celebration.

There are many gatherings for witches, the most well known according to Adler, and closest to home, is the Rite of Spring Festival, sponsored by the Earth Spirit Community.

It takes place in a woodland setting, with cabins nestled in the forest. Rituals, workshops, bonfires, sweat lodges, swimming, activities for kids all take place there. Issues of building community are primary.

For more information send a SASE to the EarthSpirit Community, PO Box 365, Medford, MA, 02155.

For further reading on the subject, read Drawing Down the Moon by Margaret Adler, The Meaning of Witchcraft by Gerald B. Gardner, and The Spiral Dance by Starhawk.

The Unicorn Bookstore (646-3680) on Mass. Ave. in Arlington has an extensive collection of books on the subject as does Arsenic and Old Lace (354-7785) on Mass. Ave. in Cambridge.

Salem witch memorial

According to history, in Salem in 1692 more than four hundred people were accused by a group of children of being witches. Before the trials ended, nineteen innocent men and women were hanged, one man was pressed to death, and three others died in jail. Even two dogs were hanged.

Four years ago Yiannis Stefanakis, a sculptor born and educated in Egypt and currently residing in Salem, became acquainted with the history of these events and came to believe that a formal apology after 300 years was due. He began to form the idea for a memorial.

After concluding months of preparation of sketches and plan proposals, the artists presented his idea to the Salem City Council in 1985. The proposal was approved.

Stefanakis' studio is open to the public and work on the sculpture of three sisters whom he believes are truly representative of the victims of hysteria, is in progress.

Visitors to Salem are invited to watch the artist work. Kids from Salem State College and the Salem Public Schools have been helping out, says Stefanakis. When completed the sculpture will be approximately fifteen feet high and cast in bronze.

Stefanakis believes very strongly that an important part of history needs to be clarified and through his sculpture this will be done.

Numerous kinds of special herbs are sold for healing and ceremonial purposes at Arsenic and Old Lace in Cambridge.

What's On The Boards?

The wild and wacky sisters are back in town

NUNSENSE, a musical comedy written and directed by Dan Goggin, with musical staging and choreography by Felton Smith, musical direction by Leo P. Carusone, musical arrangements by Michael Rice, scenic design by Barry Axtell, and lighting design by Susan A. White. With Diane J. Findlay, Yvette Freeman, Mary-Robin Roth, Lyn Vaux and Nancy E. Carroll. At the Charles Playhouse, 74 Warrenton St., Boston for an open-ended run.

Those wild and wacky Little Sisters of Hoboken are back in the Hub, raising the devil at the Charles Playhouse! Frocked in gimp, veil and wimple, and winking at their vows of poverty, chastity and obedience, these zany nuns continue to frolic where angels fear to tread!

From the moment the peppy band under Leo Carusone's unflagging musical direction strikes up the overture with Dominique, segues incongruously into the Klezmer sounds of Hava Nagila and proceeds to the hand-clapping, foot-stomping When the Saints Go Marchin' In (all superimposed on a background of Sound of Music), Nunsense is off and running...incorrigible, outrageous, irreverent fun!

And although the cast is not quite as strong as the original that opened in Boston just one year ago, Dan Goggin's direction and Felton Smith's musical staging and choreography are so sharp and slick that the show keeps rolling merrily along at a no-nunsense clip!

For those of you who did not catch Nunsense during its nine-month stint last season, the two-act musical comedy is guaranteed to provide an evening of sheer enjoyment while disturbing not one particle of gray matter. The five performers are most engaging, possess infinite comic flair and solid voices, and the storyline is carried forward by Goggin's clever lyrics and funny skits.

The scene is Mt. Helene's school gym, cluttered with set pieces for a student production of the musical Grease. For the moment, however, the Little Sisters have commandeered the facility to stage a talent show, hoping to raise enough money to bury four Blue Nuns stashed away in the convent freezer, victims of botulism from vichyssoise concocted by the convent chef, Sister Julia, Child of God.

It seems that the Order has already buried 48 of Julia's victims, but when the Mother Superior, St. Mary Regina (Diane J. Findlay) impulsively purchased a VCR no funds remained to bury the remaining four. Plagued by pressure from the health department, the surviving quintet of nuns decide to stage a musical review, the result being a hilarious fund-raiser that will keep you in stitches! Suffice to say that while their efforts fall short of the mark, they miraculously fall heir to a bonanza that should keep them in good shape for many a moon!

With an impish gleam in their eyes and a bit of devil in their hearts, the five scurry about the audience prior to the show's opening spreading chummy good cheer. Sr. Regina pins a skirt on a scantily-clad cutout of Marilyn Monroe and, moments later, strikes the tone of the evening in her welcome... "Though we're on our way to heaven, we're here to raise some hell!"

Sweet Charity plays at the Colonial Theatre through Nov. 5. Tickets, $21 to $40. Call 720-3434 or 426-9360.

Sweet Charity: the persistant romantic

SWEET CHARITY, the musical comedy, conceived, staged and choreographed by Bob Fosse, based upon an original screenplay by Federico Fellini, Tullio Pinelli and Ennio Flaiano; book by Neil Simon; music by Cy Coleman; lyrics by Dorothy Fields; scenery and lighting by Robert Randolph; costumes by Patricia Zipprodt. With Donna McKechnie, Ken Land, Lenora Nemetz, Stephanie Pope, Mark Jacoby, Michael Cone, Christine Colby, Celia Tackaberry and James Siavali. At the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., Boston, through Nov. 8.

Charity Hope Valentine is back in town, back where she belongs, and the oil 'ga never looked better. She's still plying her trade as a taxi dancer with a little extra on the side at the Fan-Dango Ballroom and, along with Helene and Nicki and the rest of the gang, wowing audiences at the Colonial Theatre!

Sweet Charity is the same wide-eyed, somewhat simple-minded, madcap spiritual virgin we fell in love with 20 years ago — the good-natured, innocent dance hall hostess passing herself off as a social consultant, who runs her heart like a hotel, with guys checking in and out all the time. She's still the persistent romantic who wants only to be loved and forever hopeful that that elusive commodity is just around the corner.

Actually, this energetic, bubbly, sentimental farce is far better the second time around. The show has been tightened; it's taut and moves like wildfire! There's absolutely stunning picturization! That the music and script have been slightly reworked is of little import.

Sweet Charity underscores the brilliance of Dorothy Fields' lyrics, Cy Coleman's often underrated score, and Neil Simon's serviceable book (great first act but overly saccharine in the second). It is further enhanced by Robert Randolph's spectacular lighting and his fragmentary scenery (at divergent angles and at odds, like the turmoil in Charity's life), and Patricia Zipprodt's glittery costumes. From the first downbeat of the overture, Ralph Burns' orchestrations as conducted by Wayne Green are scintillating!

But it is the rare genius of the late Bob Fosse that surges through!

Mystery at Nickerson

Just in time for Halloween season is Peter Colley's suspenseful mystery, I'll Be Back Before Midnight, opening this week and continuing through Nov. 29 at the Nickerson Theatre as the second production of the fall season.

First performed as part of a Canadian play festival in 1979, the gripping comedy-mystery has been described as more spine-chilling than Deathtrap and somewhere between an Agatha Christie mystery and a Hitchcock thriller.

Directed by John Grant-Phillips, the cast includes: Robert Riley as Greg Sanderson; M. Lynda Robinson as Jan Sanderson; John Adair as George Willowby; and Marina Re as Laura Sanderson. Set design is by Donald Soule, lighting design is by Jace Holmes, and costumes are by Denise Wallace.

Performance times are 8 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday; 8:30 p.m., Friday and Saturday; 7 p.m. Sunday; and matinees, Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

There will be two 4 p.m. matinees on Nov. 21 and Nov. 28.

Tickets are $17 for Friday and Saturday evenings, $14 for all other performances. For tickets and further information, call or write the Nickerson Theatre box office, P.O. Box 272, 30 Accord Park Drive, Accord (Norwell), MA 02018; 871-2400.

The theatre is easily accessible off Route 3, South at Exit 14, and convenient parking is located on the grounds.

Performance Place announces season

The Performance Place, the new center for innovative theatre and performance in Boston, has announced its season's schedule. The Performance Place is located at 277 Broadway in Somerville. Information and reservations are available at 623-5510 and tickets are on sale at BOSTIX, Out of Town News in Harvard Square, Ticketron, and the Somerville Theatre. All performances are at 8 p.m. unless otherwise indicated.

On Sunday, Nov. 1 at 2 p.m., the David Cleary Quintet will be featured. From Oct. 30 through Nov. 15, News From Crazy Horse will be presented, offering a fusion of poetry, theatre and music by the October Poetry Theatre.

From Dec. 10 through 19, The Performance Place will spotlight Crazy Jane, an avant-garde vaudeville on the social struggle of 16th century England by Deborah Fortson. The new year will open with Vessel, Thursday through Sunday, Jan. 7-10. This is a new performance piece by Scott deLahunta utilizing suspended skeletons and performers connected by long manila ropes.

Theatreworks will present a revival of the critically-acclaimed solo piece Baby Steps from Jan. 21-31, originated by Deborah Fortson and developed with Mabou Mines, based upon four generations of family history and the intimate chronicle of Fortson's daughter.

The Angel Dialogue will take center stage from Feb. 11 to March 12. "Every angel is terrifying" begins this new opera based on German poet Rilke's Elegies as seen through the eyes of J. Robert Oppenheimer, father of the atomic bomb. Presented by Theatre S, with special late shows on Saturdays at 10 p.m., the show is referred to as a tragic comedy of the ridiculous and the sublime.

New works by the Performance (See page 9)

From left: Larry Kert stars as Georges and Harvey Evans stars as Albin in La Cage aux Folles, opening at the Wang Center, Nov. 3 for 2 weeks only through Nov. 15.

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Worries should disappear and you can express yourself and take charge of your life. Get your ideas down on paper, they could be worth some money! An apparent loss could rebound in your favor — begin streamlining your methods.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Take time in seclusion to collect your thoughts, analyze and get organized — you have behind-the-scenes support. A lucrative offer may come your way and your self-esteem will soar. A burden lifts and a lost article is found.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — You are very persuasive now, so ask for what you want and you'll get it. You may be involved in secret arrangements and a long-held wish could come true. Follow through on what you initiate, be confident and positive of your convictions.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — The accent is on career and prestige — an honor from your peers could be bestowed. Friends and others will be supportive and helpful, so expand your horizons. You'll find what you seek and gain access to confidential information.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Concentrate on communications, travel and educational opportunities. Make new starts in career, accept responsibility and you may get a promotion. Attend a VIP social affair and pay close attention to your personal image.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — It may be time to cut your losses on a financial proposition and take a bold approach to moneymaking. Romance is favored and you can win your heart's desire. Indulge your restless urge for exciting travel and be on the move.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — With your charisma so high, you can deal very productively with partners, large groups and the public. Focus on financial security, bill paying and budget. Investigate and dig deep for the answers to knotty problems.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Promote your ideas and methods at the workplace and you'll impress your associates. Maintain a low profile with mate, partner or the public and be sure to honor commitments and rules. Help a relative arrange a needed loan.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — It's party time — enjoy your popularity and a round of social pleasures, but don't spread yourself too thin. Concentrate on work responsibilities and don't "dog off." You may be expecting perfection from mate or partner.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — Good time to entertain in your home, but don't take on more than you can handle. Romance, creativity and renewed understanding of a loved one are favored. Pay attention to health and diet to gain more vitality and vigor.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Catch up on bookkeeping, accounts and bank records. Get involved in community affairs — you could meet someone fascinating! Hold off on key decisions just now. Beautify your home and enjoy the secluded comfort it brings.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — You stand to gain somehow through the written word but should guard against overly extravagant redecorating projects. A phone call or the mail could bring new career opportunities. Trust your own judgements about romance.

What's On The Boards

Fosse's genius alive in show, Sweet Charity

Brilliantly re-directed and re-choreographed by Fosse, and well-deserving of its four Tony Awards, Sweet Charity is a rousing, raucous, rollicking, wonderful good time crowned by Fosse's stamp of individuality — his vibrant, volatile, electrifying and explosive choreography!

There's no better example of Fosse's distinctive style than his sullenly sexy Big Spender (with its syncopating burlesque beat and soft staccato), opening with the silhouette of the line of girls hanging over the dance railing, then breaking into a routine with bodies moving in ways never humanly intended — butt-jutting, hip swaying, pelvic gyrating, head jerking, knock-kneed, and arms and legs flaying in every direction! It's great fun and great staging!

But there's more! Sweet Charity features the boundless and unflagging talents of Donna McKechnie, Tony Award-winning star of A Chorus Line, as the sassy, spunky, spirited, sympathetic Charity, the role originated by Gwen Verdon, who reconstructed the show's original choreography for the role of Charity.

Poured into the familiar black body-hugging sheath, shoulder bag and high-heeled shoes, heart-shaped tattoo and dangling hoop earring, the fluid, versatile, dynamic McKechnie sizzles on all four burners, kicks up a storm, and is a joy! She shines in the captivating sequence featuring the infectious If My Friends Could See Me Now, creates a gorgeous dramatic moment when anguishing over her deception with her boyfriend Oscar in the poignant Where Am I Going?, and excels once again in the spirited I'm a Brass Band.

Another luminous dance number that vibrates with excitement is Rich Man's Frug, spotlighting the amazing body control of the super dance ensemble in contortionistic posturing and in the flamenco. Other highlights include There's Gotta Be Something Better Than This, sung and danced by Charity, Helene (Stephanie Pope) and Nickie (Lenore Nemetz), and the overlooked Baby, Dream Your Dream, beautifully rendered by Pope and Nemetz. The tough, street-wise, wise-cracking Nemetz is terrific!

Mark Jacoby, re-creating his Broadway role as the celebrated Italian movie star Vittorio Vidal, makes the most of his two scenes in the first act, showboating a handsome tenor voice in Too Many Tomorrows, and, as a straight man for Charity when he observes, "Your religion is love," to which Charity quips, "Well, I'll tell you one thing...I go to church a lot!"

Ken Lane is by far the best Oscar I have ever seen! He adds tremendous dimension to the role and makes it all his own! As the shy accountant who suffers from acrophobia and claustrophobia, and who finds purity in Charity, Lane is ideal! And Christine Colby is visually perfect as Vittorio's blonde, statuesque fiancée.

The basic changes in the musical comedy are a shorter and reworked version of the gospel/rock Rhythm of Life, new music for the Bravest Individual, and the music used in the film version for the title tune.

To truly appreciate Fosse's genius, to understand the tremendous loss to the world of theatre and the gaping chasm left by his death, you must see Sweet Charity. Here is Fosse, at the height of his creative talent and virtuosity! Catch it! You'll pop your cork!

Jayne West, soprano, sings with the Civic Symphony Orchestra of Boston, Nov. 13, 8:15 p.m., Jordan Hall. Tickets $10 and $7. Call 536-2412.

In 1977, he moved to Paris and formed the South American jazz group Tamarugo. Their album, Tan Lejos Del Mar was released in France and Spain on the CBS L'escargot label. From 1978 to 1981, he worked as a performer and arranger with the flutist Una Ramos and participated in a music festival near Casablanca with Ravi Shankar.

and cultural complexity of the countries that make up the Latin American region.

Tickets for the Nov. 1 concert are $10.50 in advance and $12 the day of performance. Available in advance at Wood & Strings (Arlington, 641-2131), Out of Town Tickets (Harvard Square), Food for Thought (Jamaica Plain), Concert Charge (497-1118), Bostix/Ticketron (Faneuil Hall, Burlington and Braintree) or at the door the night of performance. Nuns

(From page 4)

Thou!

Sr. Mary Amnesia (Nancy E. Carroll), so named after a crucifix fell on her head causing loss of memory, goes through a gleeful ritual of getting up in the morning, then testing the audience in The Quiz. Her face is at once animated and blank, and very funny! She does a riotous hand puppet routine with Sr. Marionette, with the puppet noting, "Everyone can see that nuns don't have ears!", and Miss Carroll scores resoundingly with I Could've Gone to Nashville, recounting her lost opportunity to be a country/western star.

Sr. Mary Leo (Lyn Vaux) is hilarious in Benedicite, dancing on pointe and recommending "Start the day off with a tour jete", and in an impossible take-off of Swan Lake (The Dying Nun Ballet) in which, as a result of a mouthful of Sr. Julia's vichyssoise, she eventually flutters her wings for the last time and topples to the floor.

Sr. Robert Anne (Mary-Robin Roth), the street-wise convent driver, is not cast in the show but is designated as a stand-in by Sr. Mary Regina. She bemoans her fate in the delightful Playing Second Fiddle and, when the Mother Superior becomes incapacitated, Roth goes on in her stead and shines in I Just Want to Be a Star.

As a group the freshly scrubbed, spirited five, in their crisp habits, are uproarious in Nunsense Is Habit-Forming, as well as the wild A Difficult Transition, describing their woes while serving in a leper colony south of France.

They reflect, "We were building leper huts while the Protestants had leper condos by the sea!", then comment on their decision to depart... "Everybody's business was about to decompose!" And they bring down the house in the first fact finale, a song-and-tap routine, Tackle That Temptation with a Time Step.

Nunsense is a sister act like you've never seen! When these gals come bouncin' in, the saints go marchin' out!

What About Art?

By Meredith Fife Day

A shaft of outdoor light illuminates the inside space of Carol Anthony's The Forgotten Letter: Another Cosmos. The artist's craypas and enamel painting on paper is among 50 works in the Danforth Museum exhibition, Interior Spaces: Works by Contemporary New England Artists. (Photo courtesy Danforth Museum)

Exhibit tells inside story

What's inside?

The artist's ability to respond to that fundamental inquiry, to draw viewers into their works by addressing the element of curiosity and, often, to further pique it, were among the major considerations in putting together the Danforth Museum's exhibition of interiors. Curator Elizabeth Wylie says that her selection of work for "Interior Spaces: Works by Contemporary New England Artists" was determined, after the formal standards of quality, by the images' potential to "elicit some kind of reaction — almost physical, with a feeling of enclosure or limitation or recession — or show evidence that the artist, having chosen to work with a defined space, addressed the issues presented by the limited space."

The viewers' reaction to the works is clearly in evidence, provoked by the interaction of their own curiosity with the artists' widely varying interpretations of interior space.

Standing on their tiptoes, gallery-goers peer into Michelle Samour's vertical, pointed totem glowing red light from inside its rough bark-like exterior. They walk around Margaret Swan's tall, monumental silver vessel form, as if to get a clue of its contents. They are drawn by the partially opened doors of Emily Eveleth's quietly geometric Framingham dining room china cabinet, by the dizzying look from a stairway up into the Gothic arches of a Blois, France ceiling in a lyrically disquieting photograph by Christine Gebhard, and by the quickly diminishing perspective of Ilana Molson's large charcoal on paper, Florence on the Move, a humorous nod to the Italian Renaissance and its perfection of arches and vanishing points.

Its theme notwithstanding, the exhibition is eclectic and diverse enough to make the 38 artists' 50 works seem like more. After looking at some 300 slides and visiting the studios of exhibiting artists to select the works shown, Wylie feels, finally, the show contains "something for everyone." As a means of providing a sense of cohesion within the wide range of style, attitude and medium, the curator has loosely grouped works with some common element — usually formal or psychological.

On one wall hang the poetic spaces of Carol Anthony and Mark Wethli. A warm, open-air light filters into Anthony's noiseless interiors, respectful of the genteel mysteries and fantasies promised in their spaces. The surfaces, soft and layered with craypas marks, are in contrast to the crisp clarity of the neighboring trompe l'oeil oils. Wethli's eye for the relationships of images' size, shape, color and value is as sensitive as his feeling for the stilled visual drama of an inside space. His images are as specific in their character as they are in their rendering. To name them — chair, radiator, pink wall, curtain — does not tell a fraction of what the picture does.

On the opposite wall, Denny Moers's photographic monoprints are as vague as Wethli's pictures are particular. Fragments of interiors, strong and subtle in their tonal-shape relationships, are like soft wanderings through the space of dreams.

Farther along the gallery walls, the spaces of George Nick's oil paintings have more concrete reality. The claustrophobia of objects and artifacts, even in museums' cavernous spaces, is the aspect of interiors that Nick has communicated in his paintings, Boston Museum and Peabody Museum. The soaking up of interior space through density of objects is the common thematic chord that links works nearby, too, including photographs by Vin Borrelli of a furry customized 1963 Chrysler and Dana Salvo of a Nativity alter in Mexico.

An entire gallery is filled with interiors that Wylie considers generally "disorienting" in some respect. Viewers are inevitably drawn to Pike Powers's sculpture, a giant perforated aluminum pillow form that stands in the corner like a satellite dish. The tease of a tiny television screen, almost totally concealed inside, but relentlessly glaring forth its artificial blue light and electric noises, bears witness to our obsession with technology and its role in our interior spaces.

Finally, in light of Wylie's emphasis on viewer participation and feeling that "whatever it is you see in the work is absolutely correct," it is the photographs in this show that are its special strength. Perhaps because actual interior themselves have such a richness of associations, the photograph, even with contrivances and manipulations, allows them to be more fully what they are, thereby giving the viewer a greater range of personal input.

The striking arcs of wood making up the curved niche within a niche, stripped bare of its wall covering, in Salvo's C-print, Urban Ruins, have in their scarred emptinues a stark beauty and wealth of associations from spiritual to emotional to physical.

Halloween history

According to Geroge William Douglas' Book of Days, published in 1937, the mystic rites and ceremonies with which Halloween was originally observed had their origins among the Druids centuries before the dawn of the Christian era.

In the course of time rites were added which were observed at the Roman festival of Pomona, the goddess who presided over the harvest. Many of the ancient rites were brought to this country from Europe and are observed today only in fun, not as a religious observance.

The Halloween is of Christian origin and refers to the eve of All Hallows or All Saints Day, which falls on Nov. 1. Among the Druids, it was the eve of the festival of Saman, or lord of death.

The early Christian Church, according to Douglas, adopted the eve and the day following it and gave new names to them as it did with many non-Christian observances.

Halloween is the time when it was once supposed (and still is by modern witches) that ghosts of those who have passed on into the other world would most likely wander about.

The belief in witchcraft is very old and evidences of it are found in the Bible, says Douglas.

The ancient Egyptians and the Romans believed in witches as did early Asians and Indians.

The opinion of the Christian Church varied during the first 5,000 years. At one time it regarded the belief as a delusion and at another time accepted its existence, but by the end of the 15th century, it had adopted a policy of punishing witches with extreme severity.

During the following two centuries thousands of women were slain after being charged with witchcraft.

For the believers in witchcraft, Nov. 1 was (and still is) the beginning of the new year. The end of summer was celebrated with a festival to the sun god. Fires were lighted in his honor.

Cats were considered sacred and it was believed that cats had been human beings which were changed into cat form as punishment for evil deeds.

The origin of the jack 'o lantern, according to Douglas' Book of Days was an Irish tale about a stingy man named Jack, who was barred from Heaven because of his penuriousness and forbidden to enter hell because of the practical jokes he played on the devil. He was condemned to walk the earth with his lantern until judgement day.

Dracul impaled his enemies

Where is he now?

A wolf howls in the distance, then another and another. Their calls fill the night air. You're suddenly afraid of the dark. A dark man emerges out of a mist. He smiles. "Children of the night... what music they make!"

Those immortal words spoken by — you guessed it, Count Dracula.

He lives by night and sleeps by day — the sleep of the undead. As the sun sets, his hunger rises, an all-consuming, irrational need that burns in his heart; his every limb. It is a lust for blood.

Darkness and despair fuel his powers. They are the powers to change into a bat or a wolf...to meld in the deepest shadows or into shimmering mist. Incredible strength of mind and body is his — enough to break your back like a twig or hold you spellbound against your will.

He has two retractable incisors, as sharp as a pair of hypodermic needles. These can tear a person apart or put two small puncture marks on the side of the neck.

Humanity's only defenses against his omnipresent evil are the age-old belief of hope: a cross, holy water, a mirror, a garland of garlic, a wooden stake driven through the heart.

But even these precautions and remedies are useless without belief — belief in yourself. And belief in one greater than all, one who embodies ultimate good the way the Prince of Darkness embodies evil.

Dracula, was created over eighty years ago by Bram Stoker, who in the late 1890's journeyed to Transylvania and saw the land and people. Stoker heard excellent lore and learned much about Vlad Dracul. This was his inspiration to write the novel Dracula.

Of all the vampires, the silent 1922 classic, Nosferatu: The Vampyre [Count Orlock] is probably the one you'd least like to encounter in a dark alley.

He comes closest to the dictionary definition of a vampire as a "night-walking, blood-sucking reanimated corpse."

He is so thin that he looks like a skeleton, his eyes bulge, his front teeth are fangs that would do credit to a diamond back rattlesnake and his fingernails are clawlike into what can only be called talons. He moves in jerky spider/rat-like bursts.

Over the years Dracula has been given life by Bela Lugosi, Christopher Lee, Jonathan Frid, Frank Langella to name a few.

But unlike Hollywood's version of Count Dracula [romantic or horrifying] there was the real [religious] Count Dracula...his name was Prince Vlad Dracul Tepes Basarab III.

Vlad III was born sometime in 1431 in Wallachia Romania. His father Vlad II was an ambitious and ruthless bloodthirsty soldier.

The Turks and Hungarians called Vlad's father Dracul [which means Devil]. The name brought fear when it was spoken because the Turks and Hungarians believed that Vlad II was the actual son of the devil.

In 1438 Vlad II was crowned Vlad Dracul Basarab II and became prince of Wallachia. Vlad II kept the name Dracul and his coat of arms was a symbol of a dragon [which was a symbol for the devil]. In 1447 both father and older son Mircea were assassinated. Fearful of being the next in line Vlad III hid for several years with his cousin Steven.

In 1456 Vlad returned to his homeland in Wallachia and regained his title. He would be known as The Prince of Darkness for six, long bloody years.

For six years he ruled with confidence and authority and with a blend of terrible force and generosity unprecedented in Romanian history. He introduced his own unique form of ultimate torture: impalement on Stakes. Thus he became Prince Vlad Tepes (Vlad the Impaler). His victims were literally skewered on wooden stakes and hoisted into the air to die slowly.

Dracul impaled enemies, wrongdoers, thieves, and sinners by the thousands. He launched massive political, religious, and social reform, which earned him respect if not the devotion of most peasants. This devotion was so intense that Dracul had a priceless solid gold drinking cup placed outside by the drinking fountain. Anyone who wished to drink from it could help themselves. The cup never disappeared during the six years he ruled.

He began building scores of churches and monasteries. He hated weakness, laziness, and all forms of dishonesty; at the same time he admired hard work and rewarded honesty.

Story and illustrations by Deborah Gordon

Priests accompanied him and witnessed his murderous bloodthirsty acts. Dracul felt he was appointed by God himself to destroy all evil everywhere.

There have been many tales of Dracul's monstrous crimes during his six years of rule. Here are four:

Some tales say he occasionally drank blood while dining among a forest of impaled victims. He was known for being bloodthirsty.

During one of such meals a servant made a face of disgust. Dracul asked the servant, what was the matter. His servant told him that the smell of rotting flesh was making him sick. Dracul then asked his servant if he wished not to smell the stench of rotting flesh anymore during his life. His servant replied that he would be very happy to never smell the stench again. So Dracul had the servant impaled on an extra long stake. His body now towered high above the rotting corpses. Dracul told the servant that now he wouldn't have to smell the stench during his last breath.

Once a visiting merchant had a purse of gold ducats stolen by someone. Dracul heard of this and threatened to burn down the entire city if the thief was not found within hours. The thief was quickly rounded up and Dracul impaled him. He then called in the merchant and returned his ducats, but Dracul carefully included an extra coin. The merchant counted his coins, discovered the added ducat, and wisely returned it to Dracul—preserving his own life.

Turkish ambassadors visited Dracul in his court. Dracul asked them to remove their hats in his presence. They informed Dracul that it was not their law to remove their turbans in the presence of a noble. They were sent home with their turbans nailed to their heads.

Dracul saw a man working in the fields. The shirt on his back was worn and tattered. He asked the man if he had a wife to take care of him. The man told Dracul that he did. Dracul went to the man's home and spoke to his wife. He asked her if her husband had put food on their table every night so that she didn't go hungry. She answered yes. He asked if her husband worked hard in the fields and if he took very good care of her. She told him, yes her husband took very good care of his family and worked hard. He then asked her why she couldn't take care of her husband. Why must he be seen in public with a dirty and tattered shirt on his back. She didn't have a good enough reply and he had her impaled. The man was given a new wife. His new wife was told if she didn't take care of her husband, she would meet the same fate.

In the year of 1476 at the young age of forty-five Dracul was found beheaded. By Whom remains a mystery. His body was taken to a church and buried somewhere inside in secret.

He left a wife and child behind. His family went on ruling and killing for decades.

An excavation in 1931 by Professor Radu Florescu lead a team that broke through a stone under an altar in the same church that was known to be the grave site of Vlad Tepes. They found nothing. The team discovered another grave inside the entrance to a tiny chapel. They found

Safety tips for Halloween

Here are some tips to help prevent problems on Halloween evening:

Use reflective tape on costumes and trick-or-treat bags, and provide flashlights for high visibility.

Be aware that costume materials may not be flameproof. There are flame resistant solutions available.

Don't let costumes interfere with child's vision.

Advise children against eating any of the treats until they can be checked for possible foreign objects.

Make sure very young children are accompanied by an adult and stay in areas close to home.

or...plan a Halloween party at home as an alternative to trick-or-treating.

By following these safety tips and guidelines, everyone can have a safe and happy Halloween.

What's On The Boards

Don't be afraid to see Phobias, the Musical

(From page 9)

Phobias, the Musical

The New Ehrlich Theatre presents a NETworks production entitled Phobias! The Musical for three weeks only, opening on Tuesday, Nov. 3 and continuing through Nov. 22.

Performances are Tuesday through Friday at 8 p.m., Saturday at 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., with a 2 p.m. on Sunday. Ticket prices range from $8 to $15. The New Ehrlich Theatre is located in the Boston Center for the Arts in the South End, at 539 Tremont St. The theatre is a seven-minute walk from Back Bay Station on the Orange Line. For reservations or ticket information call 482-6316.

The eighties are the phobia generation! Perhaps you've experienced fear of flying, fear of heights, or fear of open spaces. Now NETworks, the New Ehrlich Theatre's resident company troupe, takes you on a musical journey to some lesser known but equally frightening phobias including 'octadecaphobia' — fear of the 80s.

This phobia manifests itself in fear of technology, fear of food additives, and fear of dating services. Phobias! asks the vital question: Is modern romance a contradiction in terms? With original urban technopop music by John Bowen, Phobias! The Musical will scare you silly.

Friends in Newton

Absent Friends, Alan Ayckbourn's hilarious and piercing comedy about modern relationships, is currently on the boards of the New Repertory Theatre through Nov. 22. The theatre-in-residence is housed at the Newton Arts Center, 61 Washington Park, Newton, just 14 minutes west of Boston.

Performances of Absent Friends are Fridays at 8 p.m., Saturdays at 5 p.m. and 8:30 p.m., and Sundays at 2 p.m. Tickets are $12 for Friday at 8 p.m. and Saturday at 8:30 p.m., and $9 for Saturday at 5 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. There is a $2 discount for seniors and students.

The New Rep performs at the Newton Arts Center, a historic stone church in Newtonville. The Center features a large gallery that displays the work of local artists. The gallery is suitable for group events and receptions. The Newton Arts Center is easily accessible from the Mass Pike, Route 128 and Route 9.

Call 332-1646 for reservations, group rates and directions.

Collage opens season

On Nov. 2, at 8 p.m. in Sanders Theatre at Harvard University, Collage New Music Ensemble opens its season with the semi-staged work Cymbeline After Shakespeare by Charles Fussell — conducted by the composer and featuring Jack Larson as narrator with tenor David Gordon. This romance for soprano and tenor solo includes an ensemble of eleven players performing fourteen musical sections tied together by a spoken text. Cymbeline is directed by Patrick Swanson, former artistic director of the Castle Hill Festival.

Tickets for the November 2 performance are $10 general admission, $5 students/srs. Available in advance at Bostix/Ticketron (Faneuil Hall, Burlington, Braintree), Out of Town Tickets (Harvard Square) or by calling Concert Charge at 497-1118. Subscriptions are available. For information, call 437-0231.

Ponty at Berklee

Jean-Luc Ponty appears in concert at the Berklee Performance Center, 136 Mass. Ave. in Boston, on Nov. 5, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $18.50 and $16.50 and are available at all Ticketron outlets, Strawberries Record Stores, Out of Town Tickets in Harvard Square, Berklee Performance Center box office, and by phone through Concert-charge (497-1118) or Teletron (1-800-382-8080). For further information call 266-7455.

Appearing with Ponty on tour will be James Glaser on guitar and keyboards, Wally Minko on keyboards, Baron Browne on bass guitar, and Rayford Griffin on drums. Jean-Luc is world famous for his intense jazz fusion violin sound, perhaps lesser known is the fact that he is also a skilled keyboardist.

La Cage returns to Boston

La Cage aux folles, in its first return engagement to Boston following its spectacular world premiere here in 1983, will star Larry Kert and Harvey Evans in the new national company. The Jerry Herman (music and lyrics), Harvey Fierstein (book), Arthur Laurents (direction) musical hit will begin performances at the Wang Center Tuesday, Nov. 3 and continue for two weeks, through Sunday, Nov. 15.

Tickets may be purchased directly at the Wang Center box office, or through TicketMaster, 787-8000. Mail orders are also being accepted and may be sent, with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to The Wang Center, 270 Tremont St., Boston, MA, 02116. For other information, call 482-9293. For Group Sales, call 426-6444.

The performance and price schedule for the two-week run are as follows: Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m. (except for Friday, Nov. 6, when curtain is 7:30 p.m.), Saturday matinee at 2 p.m. and Sunday matinee at 3 p.m.; orchestra, $37.50, $32.50, mezz. and dress circle, $37.50, balcony, $32.50, $25.50 and $15.50. Wednesday matinee at 2; orchestra, $30.50 and $25.50; mezz. and dress circle, $30.50, balcony, $25.50, $17.50 and $10.50.

CAR CARE CORNER

By Dan Hogan,
Service Manager

It's a cold, damp, nasty day and the car keeps stalling... but then after a few seconds, it'll start again... Water in the fuel, possibly from either condensation or from a bad lot of fuel the oil company laid on poor oil. George, What happens is that on cold, ugly days, the water in the fuel freezes when it vaporizes in the carb, clogging everything with ice crystals... until the warmth of the inert engine melts it out, letting the engine start again. Your best bet here is just to get a can of gas-line antifreeze at your dealer's, and pour it in the tank... It'll take a few miles to start working, but finally it'll have its effect and you'll have no more trouble.

The technicians at PETER FULLER OLDS are ASE certified. We keep a computerized history of all cars serviced here to notify you of preventative maintenance. Open 8-5. Tel. 924-8100. M/C, Visa & A/E accepted. We are located within walking distance to public transportation. Come to PETER FULLER OLDS, Watertown Sq. "Olds National Service Award Winner."

Audi Remanufactured Parts. Built Like New. Priced For Less.

Remanufactured parts are better than "rebuilt" or "reconditioned" parts. They may even be better than original parts since technical advances are often incorporated into the remanufacturing process.

Each unit — alternator, water pump or one of over 300 other parts — is disassembled, cleaned and tested to exacting standards. During reassembly, parts that do not meet these standards are replaced. Then the assembly is tested again to make sure it works as well as the original in every way.

Our remanufactured parts carry the same 6-month/6,000-mile limited warranty as new Audi Parts. The only thing that isn't like new is the price.

*Ask for Autobahn or Audi Limited Warranty at our Parts Department.
